DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW.—Hay supplies on the small side, but sufficient for slow trade passing. Straw supplies also small, but with few buyers in attendance, prices showed a weaker tendency at 1/6 to 2/- per cwt. both classes.

EXTRACTS FROM TESTIMONIALS:—

JAS. BYRNE, Esq., Wallstown Castle—"It is a most invaluable remedy for Scour in Calves, a disease which has hitherto baffled veterinary skill."

H. E. TURNER, Esq., Payne's End, Tring—"I find it quite the best remedy, and have used it successfully in cases where all other remedies have failed. I consider it a boon to anyone rearing calves."

E. W. HALL, Esq., Kill-o'-Grange, Blackrock—"The Calf, a pure-bred Jersey, which I am keeping for breeding, was so far gone that it was lying unable to rise, and grinding its teeth for death, as I thought. RECREATION FOR THE HOLIDAYS

CAMPING, HIKING, AND A VARIETY OF GAMES

Are the young people enjoying their summer holidays as well, I wonder, as we used to enjoy ours twenty, thirty and more years ago?

They certainly have every opportunity. Walking through Dublin the other day, I saw, in the window of a shop devoted to sports goods, a collapsible boat of green canvas with neat sculls. Like the poet who said

My heart leaps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky,

I felt a throb of olden excitement. That boat, which you unfold from a small grip-bag to fasten the struts and launch upon some inland water, is just the toy that I coveted in boyhood, but never possessed, although I saw pictures of the like, and heard of luckier lads who could sail their craft on the lough in the hills, or go sculling down the lower reaches of the river. For a few pounds now any lad may become an inland mariner.

Then there are tents. A young fellow called at my house, during last year's holidays, and asked permission to camp in the field by the river. He was like a snail, travelling with its house on its back. He swung his kit to the ground and unpacked. A ground-sheet he pegged out, and he prepared to erect a tent. The sectional tent-poles, fore and aft, were missing, but he was not dismayed; rather did this difficulty afford him a chance to exercise his manly skill. He whipped out a hunting knife, hacked two light spars from a mass of brushwood where we lately had felled an old beech tree, whittled with craftsmanlike strokes—and, behold you, two tent-poles such as no machine could make. Up went his tent, then, and soon his portable kitchen of aluminium was arrayed, and river water was boiling briskly over his field primus stove. He declined hospitality under our roof, preferring to spend the night in his woolly sleeping bag, under his own shelter, and to begin the day with a river plunge and a meal of his own cooking.

Profitable Pocket-money

Such, indeed, were the holidays of which we, too, once dreamed; but this new generation enjoys them at no prohibitive cost. The equipment is offered by many firms as thoughtful as good uncles, and the thing is the fashion. I remember our own first tent. In our family the young people used to get some small pocket-money week by week, but it was regarded as highly incorrect to spend that money weekly. The cash was to be saved, if the spirit of the house was observed, until the end of the school year. Then a goodly sum, not diminished by weak purchases of toffee, was available for the joint purchase of some object that would give lasting pleasure to all—fishing kit it was once, and a tennis net on another occasion. Once we became the proud possessors of a bell tent, a second-hand military tent which was said to have seen service in Morocco—but I daresay that this was mere dealer's romance. The raising and lowering of that tent, the manipulation of the pegs, cords, flaps and ventilators, made weeks on a lonely stretch of seashore as full of glamour as a seaman's yarn. If anyone objects that toffee is a good thing, too, I will not gainsay him. The girls were expected to make it, and they did so, with an odorous frying pan. We saved our money from loose expenditure, and yet got better sweets than shops could give.

Among the benefits that the "hiking" movement has brought is a liking for free styles of clothing. Our boys long cherished the ambition to be promoted to long trousers. Now, thanks to the "hikers," they are willing to go in shorts in summer time, and so good clothes are spared, to the benefit of parents' pockets, and a healthy, athletic style is in favour.

Rods, Bats and Hurleys

Thorough-going holidays, with tent or boat or fishing rod, make for mens sana in corpore sano; they send the young people back to school with quickened minds, and enrich their lives with happy memories. A boy's first fishing rod, especially if it is bought with carefully saved money or presented to him as earned by a good term's study, means as much to him as a young knight's spurs. Be sure that he will know all about greenhearts and the less sportsmanlike steel rods before he is taken to the shop, where rods line the wall in racks, and the shopman, with cunning fingers, draws the many-coloured flies from the little transparent envelope. Alas! only a few weeks remain of this year's angling season, and sport now is not what it was in May, the angler's month of months. However, there is a joy of its own in the last spell of the fishing year. A tight line now gives matter for boasts when school begins again, and the rod which is bought now will be handselled well before it is put into careful storage till next year's runs begin.

Choice of a cricket bat is an exciting business wherever cricket is played. Whether that stately game ever will become popular in Ireland, I cannot guess. Some say that our moist climate is unsuited to the game; we cannot hope for the hard, dry English, Australian and Indian wickets. Others say that the national temperament is for a quicker game, here as in Scotland. England is perturbed by the news that willow trees, suitable for the making of bats, are growing few. Some far-seeing folk are planting willows for the bat trade. Hurleys, for the Irish game, are of ash. A fine display was given in a Dublin shop recently of hurleys in every stage of manufacture, from the rough block to the finished object. The Scots play hurley in many schools and colleges of high standing, but under slightly different rules. I believe that the hurleys used in Scotland are made here.

Chess and Stamps

While speaking of the educational value of sports and games, may I plead for the revival of two olden amusements? One is chess. If the young people could be persuaded, by discreet urging of their competitive instincts, to play chess tournaments among themselves, they would be given an early taste for intellectual pastimes, and their brains would be exercised in a manner that would show itself in their lessons, too.

The other is stamp-collecting. Thirty years ago few new impressions would be made in most lands, so that a fairly representative collection of the world's stamps was not beyond ambition. To-day, when such prodigious variety of stamps is extant, most collectors specialise. Whether a general or a specific collection is undertaken, the hobby has immense value in the teaching of geography and history. No lad who collects stamps is puzzled about the whereabouts of Abyssinia and Eritrea, or ignorant of the sovereignty of Somaliland.

DEMONSTRATION FLIGHT FROM DUBLIN TO CORK

IN 'PLANE THAT CARRIED HORSE SHOW VISITORS

Members of the Irish Aero Club and others interested in the development of internal air lines in this country to-day will take part in a demonstration flight from Dublin to Cork in a six-seater Short Sciom monoplane, which has been suggested as the most suitable machine for the service.

The party will include Mr. Sean O hUadhaigh, solicitor; Mr. E. J. Desse, the inspector of the Irish Aero Club, at whose instigation the demonstration is to take place, while the pilot is Mr. R. L'Estrange Malone, of Airworks, London, the agents for the manufacturers of the 'plane. On their arrival at the Cork Aerodrome they will be received by Mr. Sean French, the Mayor of Cork, and members of the Cork Aero Club, who will entertain them to lunch.

The Short Sciom 'plane is recognised as one of the most suitable for short journeys. It has accommodation for six passengers with luggage, and uses eight or nine gallons of petrol to the hour. It has a short take-off of 140 yards, and can land in the same distance. It is fitted with a twin engine of 95 horse power, and has been used already extensively in England in conection with air ferries.

The 'plane landed at Baldonnel Aerodrome yesterday afternoon, having brought a number of passengers from London to Dublin for the Horse Show. Last evening the pilot was met by Mr. O hUadhaigh and Mr. Dease, who was accompanied by Mr. Crawford, of the Straits Settlements, who is interested in the purchase of Irish horses.

GOLD HISTORY REPEATED

Australia appears well on the way to repeat its halcyon days of gold production between 1851 and 1860, when it mined fourteen million pounds' worth a year. This year the official estimate of production is considerably more than a million fine ounces, worth about £10,000,000, of which at least £6,000,000 is expected from Western Australia, where something approaching a boom is in progress. These figures are a record for very many years.

The actual quantities discovered and mined are smaller, but with modern treatment plants the enhanced price of gold and the incidence of exchange second grade ores are highly profitable. Gold is now worth £8 15s. an ounce in Australian currency, which is 25s. to the £1 sterling.

Last year the Federal Government provided £400,000 to help the development of new gold areas. These have gone ahead all over Australia as a result, and have given employment to thousands of men.

"LAWRENCE OF ABYSSINIA"

FRENCHMAN'S RISK FOR SCIENCE

A book shortly to be published in England will reveal a figure as romantic as that of the late Colonel T. E. Lawrence. Its author, Marcel Griaule, is, in fact, known as the "Lawrence of Abyssinia," and on behalf of the French Government he led two expeditions into the heart of Abyssinia to collect ethnological data and specimens.

The first mission was supported by various French scientific bodies, including the National Foundation for the Study of Foreign Civilisations. So successful was this mission that the second expedition received backing from no fewer than twenty-seven official French and American foundations. It brought back 3,500 museum specimens and a wealth of photographs, paintings, sound records, manuscripts and live animals, in addition to valuable documents on language and customs.

It is the first of these missions that M. Griaule describes in his book, which in its English version will be called "Abyssinian Journey." In France it has won the coveted Prix Gringoire for the best book of the year. It is the narrative of a man who took his life in his hands and penetrated into the wildest and darkest regions of Abyssinia. Master of both the ancient and the modern languages of the land, he was able to talk freely with high and low in every part of the country and secure such a knowledge of the people as no white man has ever secured before.

IRELAND WINS THE AGA KHAN TROPHY

BRILLIANT SUCCESS IN THE INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION

IRISH RIDER GIVES BEST INDIVIDUAL PERFORMANCE

THE International Military Jumping Competition for the Aga Khan Cup, as in previous years, proved the biggest attraction at the Show, and it looked as if the attendance was the largest on record. Only four countries competed, and when the teams had completed the first round, it was quite apparent that the trophy would be won by Ireland.

The standard of jumping of the other three teams was by no means good, whereas the Irish three, who were the last to go round, had only one fault, this being a slight error by Blarney Castle, the mount of Captain F. Ahern. Even though they did not give the same polished display at the second attempt, they again had the best round, and their total of 15 points for the two rounds left them easy winners of this much coveted trophy.

Germany, who finished second with 59 faults, were a long way in front of Sweden, whose 86 faults gained them third place, and the Netherlands, with 143 faults, were fourth.

The excellence of the performances of the Irish officers at English and foreign shows had more or less prepared us for such a result, but it was not anticipated that their superiority would be of such a marked character. Limerick Lace, the mount of Commandant J. G. O'Dwyer, had not a single fault the first time round, and Captain D. Corry, on Miss Ireland, had a similarly faultless round. Consequently, the award of the special prize for the best individual performance was left in abeyance until the second round, and Captain Corry, this time having only two faults, as against four marked up against Commandant O'Dwyer, gained the honour. Where the Irish horses excelled was on the outer course, which embraced a stile, two in-an-out obstacles, a sheep pen and triple bar.

RIDER THROWN

The Netherlands made a bad start when Jimmy threw his rider at the single bank, and Gawein and Godard, who followed, made many errors on the outer circuit, the outcome of which was that 77 faults were marked against the team for a single round.

Sweden, the second team to appear, did better, Kornett having only six faults, Valencia twelve, and Cork fourteen, making a total of 32 faults.

The German horses finished the first round with a total of 28 faults, Kalmota being responsible for three, Tora twelve, and Senator thirteen; and, in view of their earlier performances at the Show, the team's prospects of success looked well until the Irish three went their rounds, when the announcement that only one fault had been registered against Ireland left the result a foregone conclusion.

The competition was remarkably free from mishap of any kind, but in the competition for cobs and ponies, which the old reliable The Nugget won, Master Nial Finnegan, of Cork, was thrown off Eileen Oge at the double bank and sustained slight concussion. Goblet, ridden by Major J. Hume Dudgeon, won second prize in this event, the remaining prizes going to Snowball and Cherry Blossom.

The consolation class, for which forty-one horses competed, was won by Comdt. O'Dwyer's Colleen Dubh, ridden by Lieut. Heffernan; and the other prizes went to Bounder, Peter and Surtees.

WHAT THE BLOODSTOCK SALES MEAN TO IRELAND

559 LOTS REALISE 72,211½ GUINEAS

IRISH GRAND NATIONAL WINNER SOLD

Fourth Day Last Year .... 8,395 gns.
Fourth Day This Year .... 9,985 gns.

The hunters will be sold by Messrs. Goff and Co. to-day in the Sale Paddocks, but the bloodstock sales proper may be said to have concluded yesterday, when the 121 lots of a miscellaneous description changed hands for 9,985 gns. That gives us a grand total for the four days of 72,211½ gns. It is nothing like the results achieved in the peak year of 1928, when the yearlings alone fetched 102,340 gns., but the figures are greatly in excess of the subsequent years, except 1929, when the aggregate for the youngsters alone was 101,012 gns., and an improvement of 20,951½ gns. for the corresponding days twelve months ago.

For the purposes of comparison, we append the official figures for last year and this week:—

	Gns.
1st Day—98 lots yearlings sold for ...	9,010
2nd Day—152 " " " ...	19,684
3rd Day—150 " " " ...	14,171
4th Day—108 lots mixed catalogue for	8,395
	51,260

	Gns.
1st Day—135 lots yearlings sold for ...	13,808
2nd Day—144 " " " ...	28,669½
3rd Day—159 " " " ...	19,749
4th Day—121 lots mixed catalogue for	9,985
	72,211½

There was nothing of outstanding importance in yesterday's catalogue of yearlings, horses in training, brood mares and foals, etc., except this year's Irish Grand National winner, Rathfriland, a seven-year-old bay mare by Cottage—Noreen Rhue, and Mr. R. H. Walker's chestnut gelding, Lateeve. The sale thus proceeded along the customary fourth day lines, few prices running into three figures.

Rathfriland, however, did not top the price list for the day. That distinction was secured by Mr. R. H. Walker's promising steeplechaser, the four-year-old gelding by Yutoi—Angentan, for whom Messrs. Kerr and Co. paid 750 guineas. For Rathfriland the English trainer, Mr. T. Morgan, went to 600 guineas, but little else of note came under review.

The hunters' sale will begin at 10 o'clock, and will conclude in time to enable buyers to get to the Phœnix Park races.

THE HORSE SHOW COMMITTEE

DIRECTOR, STAFF AND HELPERS THANKED

A meeting of the Royal Dublin Society Horse Show Committee was held yesterday, Mr. Bertram T. O'Reilly in the chair.

On the motion of the Chairman a special and hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Director and staff for their untiring efforts in producing one of the best Horse Shows ever held by the Society, where organisation had played a great part.

The Committee also thanked the following:

Mr. John Higgins, for his generous and handsome donation of all the publicity sites in London and district, which have assisted so materially in promoting the publicity of the Show;

The railway and shipping companies for the excellent travelling and cheap facilities provided. In this direction the Committee recognised in particular, the efforts of the London, Midland and Scottish, and Great Western Railways in running excursions from all parts of England, Scotland and Wales at such cheap rates as brought Dublin within the reach of so many who previously, on account of expense, were unable to visit the Horse Show;

The Press in general for their great assistance in giving all possible publicity to the many features of the Horse Show, and thereby encouraging in particular the horse-breeding interests of the country;

The Dublin Broadcasting Station, which granted such facilities as enabled the work of the Society and its Horse Show to be known throughout Ireland and across the Channel by means of the Directors' broadcast talks;

The Committee acknowledge the most complimentary manner in which the British Broadcasting Station spontaneously referred to the Show over their National system. This cordial co-operation is much appreciated.

The Chief of Staff of the Army of the Free State for the hearty co-operation of the Army in assisting the Committee by providing special transport facilities for the various officers who were guests of the Society, and also in granting the use of bedsteads, blankets, etc., to enable the Society to house the orderlies in charge of the foreign horses within the Society's premises in a manner in keeping with the high standard set for comfortable facilties for the soldiers who were also present as guests.

The Civic Guard (Metropolitan Division) for the excellence of their arrangements, not only within Ballsbridge, but also on the main roads and thoroughfares, which have been of such service in dealing with the great concourses of visitors.

The Bank of Ireland for the assistance they so readily rendered in dealing with the financial side of the Society's operations during the Show.

The Royal Irish Automobile Club for the manner in which they had taken control and carried through the work of the Society's official garages.

The St. John Ambulance Brigade (Ireland), for the services they had given both night and day in their temporary hospital within the grounds, and the readiness with which their members rendered first aid, and thereby gave that immediate professional attention in keeping with their great reputation.

To Mr. D. E. C. Price, Master of the Scarteen Hunt, together with Mr. John J. Ryan, the owner of the famous "Black and Tan" hounds, which gave such a delightful display in the Jumping Enclosure when they headed and introduced the inter-hunt competition on Wednesday last.

An order was made for the payment of all prizes and accounts immediately after the close of the Show.

The attendance included:—The Right Hon. Viscount Powerscourt, K.P. (President); Harry Franks, M.A., F.S.I.; D. R. Pack-Beresford, O.B.E., D.L., and the Hon. Mr. Justice Wylie (vice-presidents); W. J. Walsh, Captain R. H. Fowler, D.L.; R. K. Wright, J. V. Coyle, C.B.E.; Vice-Admiral A. Craig Waller, C.B., D.L.; J. E. St. George, the Right Hon. Lord Farnham, Major-General Sir G. M. Franks, K.C.B.; E. C. F. Coyle, J. A. Leonard, Senator T. Westropp Bennett, Lieutenant-Colonel E. F. Farrell, D.L.; Professor J. P. Drew, M.Sc., A.R.C.Sc.I.; P. Dunne Cullinan, Henry Kennedy, M.A., D.Sc.; Major-General M. Brennan, T. Levins Moore, Major C. K. O'Hara, H.M.L.; H. J. Toler-Aylward, John McCann, B. J. O'Kelly, A. T. McM. Kavanagh, Major J. W. Aylmer, T. O'Connell, F.R.C.Sc.I.; H. Barrington Jellett, the Right Hon. Lord HolmPatrick, Major M. C. Hamilton, M. P. Minch, John Kernohan, M.R.C.V.S.; John J. Ryan, A. F. Kinahan, Richard Kelly, Major W. G. Dease, Professor F. E. Hackett, M.A., Ph.D., and John Leonard (honorary secretaries).

YOUNG COMPETITOR INJURED

The youngest competitor in the jumping competition for cobs and ponies at the Horse Show yesterday was Master Niall Hannigan, aged thirteen, of Cork. He negotiated the course very bravely against competitors much his senior. At the difficult double-bank, however, his horse (Mr. C. D. Moylan's "Eileen Oge") fumbled a little. Niall was thrown heavily forward, and apparently was "winded" on the saddle. He fell from the horse, and was knocked unconscious. Ambulance men carried him to their temporary hospital on a stretcher, and some hours later, following treatment, he was able to leave.

In the 121 county boroughs and great towns of England and Wales the births registered last week numbered 6,681, corresponding to an annual rate of 16.7 per 1,000 living. The deaths numbered 3,561—159 less than in the preceding week—corresponding to a rate of 8.9.

★When Frederick Krackenberg, of Long Island, New York, won £10,000 in the Derby Sweepstake of 1934, his mother declared that he had never done a reckless thing in his life. She was sure he would just put the money in a bank and continue his bachelor existence. But it is a wise mother who knows her son's intentions. He has already invested some of his Irish Sweepstake prize-money in the purchase of a house, has married a girl, and gone away with her on a Havana honeymoon. When they return, Frederick intends to resume his occupation as letter carrier.

THE WEEK'S SALES

MR. MYERSCOUGH'S REVIEW

Seen by an Irish Times reporter after the sales had concluded yesterday, Mr. F. S. Myerscough, managing director of Messrs. Goff and Co., expressed himself well pleased at the result of the four days' sales.

"We had more buyers than ever before," he said, "and several English trainers attended who had not before been at the sales. They declared their intention of continuing to come here if we produce the material to buy. Unfortunately, many of our best stallions have left Ireland, so that pedigrees do not read as well as previously. Nevertheless, from last year's sales there have been over 70 two-year-old winners so far this year.

"It is to be hoped," Mr. Myerscough added, "that the Horse-Breeding Commission set up by the Government will see to it that breeders will have at their disposal the services of the best bred stallions on terms that will enable them to compete with breeders in other countries. There is no doubt that if we get the right animals to sell the sales which are held in conjunction with the Royal Dublin Society's Show can be made one of the most famous markets in the world, and then there would be no need for breeders to take their produce to Doncaster and Newmarket as they do at present."

Mr. Myerscough had also something to say about the effect of the tariff on the horse breeding industry. The sales, he remarked, had been brought up to the 100,000 guineas mark, but the duty on the import of animals to England hod forced that figure down to 20,000. They were, however, gradually creeping up again. Despite the heavy duty paid into England 60,000 guineas worth of yearlings had been sold on the first three days this week. Buyers have to pay 40 per cent. duty on the purchase price, but, even though a quarter of the 40 per cent. is allowed as bounty by our own Government, it continues to have a depressing effect on the prices realised by breeders here. We have, however, every reason to hope that our sales will continue to develop as they have been doing.

IRISH HOSPITALS' COMPETITION

YESTERDAY'S WINNERS

The following are the winners of the cash prizes in the Hospitals' Trust free competition at the Horse Show yesterday:—

IRISH VISITORS TO GERMANY

Herr Hans Beckhoff, who represents the German Railways Information Bureau at the Horse Show, has been busily engaged all the week in supplying information to prospective visitors to Germany for holidays this year. He also dealt with many inquiries regarding arrangements for the Olympic Games, which are to be held in Berlin next year.

Herr Beckhoff informed an Irish Times reporter yesterday that it is probable that the Bureau will appoint a permanent representative for Dublin in the near future, in order to facilitate travellers going from Ireland to Germany for holidays or business purposes.

AN INTERESTING STALL

A most interesting stall at the Show this week is that of Messrs. Phelan and Co., Ltd., South Brown street, Dublin, whose splendid furniture display has attracted considerable attention. They offer a most enticing exhibition of sittingroom and bedroom suites in various styles, as well as oak, mahogany and walnut pieces, studio couches, bed settees, easy chairs, etc. Their exhibit of wood cots, mattresses, pocketed springfilled mattresses and diningroom and "Unit" furniture, constitutes one of the most arresting displays in the Hall of Industries.

A Famous Declaration

The Old Trafford cricket ground at Manchester, where the fourth Test match between England and South Africa is due to open to-day, was the scene, in 1921, of one of the most sensational incidents in the history of international cricket. The match—between England and Australia—should have commenced on the Saturday, but, in accordance with Manchester tradition, rain fell heavily, and no play took place on that day. On the Monday England forced the scoring so well that at 5.50 Lord Tennyson, the captain, declared the innings closed. The Australian captain, Warwick Armstrong, immediately objected, urging that such a declaration was against the rules of cricket. There was a long parley in the pavilion and a hurried search for the rules; but Armstrong proved to be correct, and, after a delay of twenty minutes, the England innings had to be continued.

It may be explained that the rules provide that, when there is no play on the first day, the match automatically becomes a two-day match, and a declaration must allow the fielding side at least 100 minutes' batting. Everyone but Armstrong had overlooked this rule.

Stingers of the Sea

Some time ago (writes a correspondent) I experienced an unpleasant shock while bathing at Shankill. In an attempt to reach deep water I had to pick my steps over submerged shingle, somewhat rough to the feet, so that any fair-sized flat stone came as a relief. I was just about to step on one of these when it moved away sideways, so that the memory of sundry illustrations in comic journals caused me to seek hurriedly another stepping-stone. As a general rule, however, the bather need have no fear of crabs unless he happened to encounter one species, rare in these waters, the nippers, which attack at sight. Perhaps, the worst dangers of the shallows is the weever, a small fish with sharp, poisonous spines in its back, which lies concealed in the sand. These creatures inflict painful wounds on unprotected feet. Another unpleasant animal is the stinging jelly-fish, fortunately not nearly so common as is usually supposed. When one of these fish is touched the cell where the contact takes place releases a poisonous sting which may cause severe inflammation. It is said that many small fish shelter a few inches under jelly-fish, their enemies from above and below being afraid to attack them in that position. The paddler in northern seas may count himself lucky that he need not fear the octopus, the sting ray, or the man-o'-war. Nevertheless, he will be well advised to wear shoes on the sands and in the sea if only as a protection against the broken glass scattered by seaside hooligans, to whom the opportunity of setting up an empty bottle as a cock-shy presents an irresistible temptation.

Celbridge

When a friend who has taken a cottage near Celbridge asked me to go and see him recently, I was glad of the opportunity to re-visit a place so much associated with Swift and Vanessa. In the grounds of the "Abbey," known in Swift's time as Marlay Abbey, the bower in which the Dean used to sit and read with Esther Van Homrigh is still pointed out. It is rather curious, by the way, that both the women associated with Swift should have borne the same Christian name, "Esther." The story of Swift's angry ride from Dublin to Celbridge, after which he flung Esther Van Homrigh's letter to Esther Johnston before her on the table and strode from the room without a word, is one of the best known incidents in a stormy and passionate career, but the consequences of that silent and dramatic accusation seem to be peculiarly characteristic of the age in which it occurred. It is difficult to imagine a modern woman of thirty-seven being slain by an angry gesture, yet Vanessa died of a broken heart three weeks later, a circumstance which seems to show that feminine fibre must have been considerably weaker two hundred years ago than it is to-day. Even our grandmothers took these matters very seriously, and, indeed, it might be argued that the change has only taken place within the past half-century. In Swift's time Celbridge was known as Kildrohid, the church of the bridge, but it has since suffered a peculiar form of anglicisation, in which "Kil" has been altered to "Cel," and the last syllable literally translated.

Tea Lane

There are scattered in odd places throughout Ireland traditions of small alien communities mainly introduced to establish industries at various times. The Swiss colony in Waterford, the Palatines, and the Huguenots in Dublin, were examples of foreign settlements which have either died out or become absorbed. Celbridge still possesses a tradition of this kind in the quaintly-named "Tea lane," a road on the right of the village at the southern end, leading to Rathcoffey. At one time there was a mill in the district, and the owner imported from England a number of trained mill-hands, for whom he built a row of cottages, the backs of which adjoined this road. In those days tea was by no means the universal commodity which it is to-day, and it had not yet become a popular drink in Ireland. When the local inhabitants saw the quantities of tea leaves which the English mill-hands threw into the roadway from their backyards, they were so impressed that they named the thoroughfare "Tea lane."

Weather Vanes

With the holiday season at its height, the gentle oscillation of the weather vanes is the subject of constant speculation, and all eyes are turned on these slaves of the wind that herald the arrival of fair weather or foul. A friend of mine tells me that the cock features as a weather vane more frequently on the steeples of churches in provincial towns and villages. The fish is usually adopted at seaside towns, where it is in harmony with its surroundings; but the most common type of vane is the feathered arrow, which has a functional appearance that makes it suitable for the job anywhere. According to my friend, one of the largest weather vanes in Ireland is to be seen on the spire of St. Macarten's Cathedral, Monaghan. The body of the cock is about two feet in height, and it stands seven feet above the apex stone of the 245-foot spire. The plumage of the bird is carved in bold relief, and its vigilant appearance is further enhanced by the eyes, which are cut out in glass.

Youth Hostel Discipline

A friend of mine in the North, who has just returned from a youth hostel mountaineering holiday in the Loch Lomond and Trossachs districts, tells me that discipline in the Scotch hostels is more rigidly enforced than it is in the hostels in Northern Ireland. At the Inverbeg Hostel on Loch Lomond, the beds are allocated to each member by the warden, who pins up a chart in the common room every night, giving each member's name against the number of his bed. My friend says that this is a contrast to the casual methods of the County Down hostels, where you walk into the dormitory, pick out the best bed available, and leave your pack on top to indicate that the bed is booked. The regulations concerning the use of sleeping bags are not enforced in the Ulster hostels by the wardens, but are left to the good taste of each member. Here, again, the Scotch hostels are more disciplined. My friend says that on each of the two nights he spent at the Inverbeg Hostel the warden examined every bed by electric torch-light to ensure that everyone was using a sleeping bag.

Stopped Clocks

There are few things so disconcerting as the sight of a public clock, on which one usually relies for the correct time, pointing to some misleading hour. This is particularly the case in the morning rush into the city before the events of the day have confirmed the accuracy of one's own watch. In Belfast I hear that two of the most prominent public clocks in the city have been temporarily out of action. The clock outside the Belfast Telegraph office was recently in the hands of the painters, and the hurrying crowds in Royal avenue consulted their watches in some alarm when they saw the hands pointing to whatever time suited the immediate convenience of the workmen. When the task of reconstructing the entrance of the Great Northern Railway was started some weeks ago, it was found necessary to remove the mechanism which drives the clocks both inside and outside the station. The outside clock in Great Victoria street has not yet been restarted, and in order that passengers may not be confused by seeing it registering an incorrect time, I hear that the railway authorities have covered both dials with strips of cloth.

QUIDNUNC.

A WELL-DRESSED SHOW

ENGLISH AND IRISH TYPES

FASHIONS AT BALLSBRIDGE

By a Special Correspondent.

ONCE a year we Irish get an opportunity of establishing contact with the fashionable world across the Channel. Punchestown brings us some fashionable folk, it is true; but at Horse Show they stay the week. Now, after looking at life during the past few days, I have decided that it is an Irishwoman to whom I would award a red rosette for style and appearance, good taste and good sportsmanship, if I had my way. To my mind, the Hon. Mrs. Gerald Wellesley was the most charming and tastefully dressed of all the women I saw. Not that she was dressed in any daring or unconventional scheme. That is one of the reasons why I place her first. She and her mother, Mrs. Edward Kennedy, of Bishopscourt, have succeeded in remaining smart and conventional in an age that is fast becoming dangerously unconventional. I liked Mrs. Wellesley's red Angora frock, with its long sleeves, her smart hats, and trim stockings and shoes. Let me say right away that I agree with Maurice Chevalier when he told the English girls it was such a pity they left off their stockings!

I thought Mrs. Hubert Hartigan, who was over from Penrith with her husband for the week, looked lovely—but I think I must admit that she is really English-bred.

Lovely Irish Girls

Lady Ainsworth can hold her own with all-comers, and her daughter, Miss Hope Johnstone, is developing into a very pretty girl. While in the "girls'" class I should like to remark that we have some lovely Irish girls coming out—I do not mean "Colleens"—they are definite types to themselves.

In this class there is Miss Heather Nugent, daughter of Sir Walter and Lady Nugent, whose party at the Shelbourne Hotel on Wednesday evening was one of the events of the week. Miss Nugent is a blonde like her mother. When you watch Lady Nugent seated at the sales ring beside her son, you realise what a fine type of Irishwoman she is, and yet she has always been a good sportswoman from the days when she played croquet at Birkdale, and her schoolmates still remember her long plait of fair hair down to the present day.

Another pretty young girl is Miss Alma Brooke, daughter of Sir Francis and Lady Brooke. She is tall and of rare colouring, and, I believe, very enthusiastic about hunting—as one might expect.

How "different" the name of Miss Brigid O'Malley sounds these days. Well, that is the name of Mrs. Mitchell's daughter by her first marriage, and she is one of the young girls I singled out this week. Mrs. Mitchell, wife of Major Mitchell, of Kildare Hunt Association, was originally Miss Blackwell. She is English, and was first married to a brother of Lieutenant O'Malley Keyes and Lady Nugent. Mrs. Mitchell has another daughter, little Miss Ann Mitchell, whom I always look out for at the Show. She was absent this year, because I hear something happened her pony at the last moment. As for little Miss Grania Kennedy, I saw her constantly at the bloodstock sales, and what she cannot tell you about horses is not worth while.

Our Visitors

Now if I have left the visitors, whom we only see once a year, till near the end of the story, I have done so on purpose, so as to be in a position to say more about them. Lady Lavinia Dundas, daughter of the Marquis of Zetland, is very fair. Her sister, Lady Jean Dundas, is tall and brown haired, and as she wore her dresses rather short, I mistook her a couple of times during the week for the Hon. Mrs. Greenall. The latter, who is the wife of the Master of the Belvoir, adheres to a distinct style of her own. I saw her bid for a yearling during the week, and I saw her going off to Mr. Victor Parr's cocktail party in the evening wearing a nice little red suit, and a jaunty little hat. The distinguishing feature of this ensemble was the brevity of its skirt, which did not conform to the 14 inches off the ground rule.

The Countess of Warwick favours sun-tan effects, wears an anklet, and quite a number of bracelets. When I saw her she was wearing a very simple, but a simply beautiful, dusty pink woollen frock. It will be remembered that a short time ago she went to Hollywood and took part in a crowd scene there during the making of a film. At the end of the day she drew her "pay," which she presented to her companion on the set.

As Miss Rose Bingham she was one of the beauties of her year. A daughter of Lady Rosabelle Brand and grand-daughter of the Earl of Roslyn, the Countess of Warwick is a member of the family of the Earl of Lucan; for her father was one of the younger Binghams, killed in the early days of the war.

The Fitzwilliam Diamond

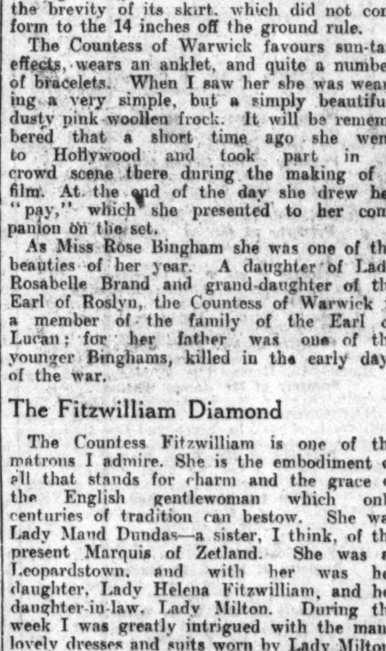

The Countess Fitzwilliam is one of the matrons I admire. She is the embodiment of all that stands for charm and the grace of the English gentlewoman which only centuries of tradition can bestow. She was Lady Maud Dundas—a sister, I think, of the present Marquis of Zetland. She was at Leopardstown, and with her was her daughter, Lady Helena Fitzwilliam, and her daughter-in-law, Lady Milton. During the week I was greatly intrigued with the many lovely dresses and suits worn by Lady Milton. I think I liked her whitish frock best of all her apparel of the week, because with it she had on a little close-fitting type of hat in white. Modelled on the jockey cap lines, she wore the Fitzwilliam diamond shamrock pin in the front of it.

Lady Adare, who is an American—a Miss Yuille, of New York—looked very smart when I saw her at the sales. Although I only got a fleeting glance at her, I saw she wore something very outstanding in black and white.

On the whole, it has been a well dressed Show, but in a quiet way, which always spells good taste. Mrs. Wylie's green suit, with its spacious cross-bar, and her green jockey cap style of felt hat was an example of what I mean.

One of the loveliest young English girls I met was Miss Putnam, from Devonshire. She was here with her father, who was buying yearlings. A large landowner in Devonshire, he is well-known in English racing.

FORTHCOMING MARRIAGE

Miss Mary Elizabeth Gilvarry, of 66 Maple street, Brooklyn, New York, and "Cill-Alaithe," Killala, Co. Mayo, whose marriage to Mr. Cathal Liam Flynn, of Hatley Manor, Carrick-on-Shannon, Co. Leitrim, will take place quietly at Saint Patrick's Church, Killala, on Monday, September 2nd.

Mr. Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, and Mrs. Norman are spending two days in Ottawa as the guests of the Governor of the Bank of Canada, Mr. Graham Ford Towers, and will then leave for the United States.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Yesterday's issue of your paper contained a review of an article published in the German paper, Völkerbund, entitled "A German View: Armaments of Czechoslovakia." May I be permitted to give you my opinion on this highly sophisticated statement?

According to Völkerbund, the Czechs are pacifists only so long as the revision of the peace treaties is not touched upon, and, together with the other members of the Little Entente, they believe that revision would mean war. Evidently, according to this paper, the defence of national existence and of the homeland is incompatible with the idea of profound pacifism.

It is sufficient to look at the geographical situation of Czechoslovakia to understand that the largest part of her, the old Kingdom of Bohemia, is in every sense of the word an island practically surrounded by a sea of German people. This sea had completely swallowed up all Slavonic races kindred to the Czechs, which, up to the 11th and 12th century, inhabited the present provinces of Saxony and Prussia. Only place names of Slavonic origin, such as Dresden, Leipzig, Chemnitz, etc., etc., now remain to indicate where these races once flourished. The Czechoslovakia race was the only one which defended its country against the many-sided onslaught of the German tide, swelling up either in a roar of turbulent violence or by the pressure of their cultural influence. For more than a thousand years they struggled against their mighty neighbour. There was an epoch when a Czech ruler was so powerful that, beside his royal crown, he accepted the crown of the German Holy Roman Empire. At other times the nation had to struggle for its very existence, and in the 18th century it was forced to fight even for the language.

Who can blame this nation, which after so many sacrifices has regained its freedom, of a lack of pacifism if she is determined to hold and defend her freedom? Few people realise also that Czechoslovakia has not taken any territory from Germany, and that the historical boundary of the Kingdom of Bohemia has remained unchanged.

Those who will take the trouble to study the present conditions in Czechoslovakia will realise what a fundamentally democratic State has been established in the heart of Europe, which, notwithstanding any disorder and crises in neighbouring countries, has remained a stronghold of order and liberty, such as one would wish to find in the whole of Europe.—Yours, etc.,

"PACIFIST."

KEEPING WEEDS IN CHECK

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I am greatly interested in the gardens attached to the new houses in the Killincarrick-Delgany district, which have been brought to an excellent state of cultivation by the tenants, and I greatly hope your notice in to-day's issue of your valuable paper may be the means of inducing many land-holders to destroy all the "rag weed" or "ben weed" in this and all other districts in our country. However, before work is begun, I would like the people to have an opportunity of seeing the very finest display of this really handsome weed, when grown in mass. I have cycled all round Ireland and have never seen it looking really beautiful before. The fields I refer to are just opposite to the Tennis Club, Greystones.—Yours, etc., S. R. McGee.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. John McCann had a large gathering at Simmonscourt Castle, where over two hundred guests attended. Nixon, Major and Mrs. Kirkwood and Miss MacDonald, Mr. Justice Wylie, Mrs. and Miss Wylie, Lady Murphy, Major and Mrs. Victor Parr, Dr. Lombard Murphy and Miss Eva Murphy, Major and Mrs. Lambkin, Mr. J. THE EARL OF MACDUFF

The Earl of Macduff, only child of Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught, celebrated his twenty-first birthday yesterday. He is heir to the Dukedom of Fife, and will also succeed to the Dukedom of Connaught.

At present the young Earl is with his regiment, the Scots Greys, but next month Braemar and all the country round Mar Lodge, his parents' home, will join in celebrating his coming of age.

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND APPEALS
CHILDREN'S FRESH AIR FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—The Committee of the Children's Fresh Air Fund have sent away 500 children for a fortnight's holiday in the country, and we have still over 120 children waiting to be sent.

Our friends and subscribers have been most generous in their support, and, perhaps, there might be another 120 kind people who would contribute £1 each, so as not to disappoint these children.

£1 keeps a child away for a fortnight, and will you please help us?—Yours, etc.,

Daily Programme Review

TO-DAY

DUBLIN: "To Horse with Sarsfield." Gabriel Fallon and Co., 8.

NORTHERN IRELAND: Cabaret from Ballynahinch, 10.40.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Opening Promenade Concert, 8.30.

REGIONAL: "New Songs For Old." Part IV., 9.5.

NORTH: "Isle of Man Night." Relays from Douglas, 8.50.

ROME: Opera, "Edgar" (Puccini), 8.40.

BRUSSELS NO. 1: Orchestral Concert, 8.

ONE is always glad to see another Gabriel Fallon production included in the Dublin programme. To-night Mr. Fallon, in observing the anniversary of Ballyneety, presents "To Horse with Sarsfield," a dramatic presentation of events in the Siege of Limerick in August, 1790. As always, he has chosen his cast with care, and, with his customary habit of leaving nothing to chance, listeners may be quite sure that, for this production especially, the effects department has not escaped his notice. Mr. Fallon, who has written and arranged this historic story for the microphone, will also produce.

Colonel Michael Hogan, who will broadcast a running commentary on to-day's Military Jumping Competition for the Nation's Cup.

Horse Show items for broadcasting this afternoon occur at 3 and 3.15. First, the winner of yesterday's International Jumping Competition will be introduced to the microphone in the show grounds. Following immediately, Colonel M. Hogan will give a running commentary on the championship for the Saorstat Trophy, which is open to the world.

Sir Henry Wood, when he takes up his baton to-night, will open the season of Promenade Concerts under his direction for the forty-first year in succession. In listening to the welcome which his audience will be sure to accord him, listeners will, perchance, contemplate what the ovation will be like should they be permitted to greet him in his fiftieth year at the Queen's Hall.

The programme for the first concert of the season is an international one. Smetana's "Bartered Bride" Overture represents Czechoslovakia as the opening item; then Verdi stands for Italy, Paderewski for Poland, and so on till Germany, with Handel's lovely Largo, for solo violin, harp, organ and strings; Russia, England, Hungary and Scotland, all have been embraced. In choosing Sir Edward Elgar as representative of English music, his "Enigma" variations will be played. The vocalists are Ina Souez and Harold Williams, while the solo pianist is Leslie England. Parts I. and II. of the concert will be separated by a break of twenty minutes, during which the second news will be read, the concert resuming at 9.55.

Just as a reminder to listeners who are following Tiger Standish in the Secret Service serial, "The Mystery of the Seven Cafés," the fourth instalment—the scene is now set in Moscow—will be broadcast to-night. (8, Regional.)

SIR DAN GODFREY made the Bournemouth Municipal Orchestra celebrated for its high-class concerts, given under his direction, during the winter months, and the more popular ones during the summer months, spreading over a number of years. Richard Austin, Sir Dan's successor, is maintaining the standard in splendid fashion, broadcasting invariably every Wednesday afternoon. Many listeners are deprived of hearing these performances, so, in addition this week, the orchestra will give a popular concert to-night, which also will be relayed from the Pavilion, Bournemouth. Starting with Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suite," and ending with Strauss's Waltzes, the programme also includes two Symphonic Rhapsodies by Eric Coats, and Joseph Farrington (bass) will sing two of Stanford's Songs of the Fleet, to orchestral accompaniment.

For the second of the three Malvern Festival Sunday Concerts, Leslie Heward will conduct the City of Birmingham Orchestra at the Winter Gardens, whence the programme will be relayed. Frank Titterton, the well-known Birmingham tenor, will sing "Sound an Alarm," from Handel's "Judas Maccabeus," with the orchestra midway in the programme, which also includes "On hearing the first Cuckoo in Spring," by Delius. The principal work for performance is Mozart's Symphony in C.

Heddle Nash (tenor) sings in the concert with the Western Studio Orchestra at 5.15, while at the same hour the B.B.C. Northern Orchestra will give a programme of light music with the Hull Male Voice Choir.

Andrew E. Malone, who will broadcast a talk entitled "The Tumult of the World" from the Dublin Studio to-night.

PROVISION OF PLAYGROUNDS

CITY MANAGER'S REPORT

"NO POWER TO CLOSE CITY STREETS"

A COMPREHENSIVE report on city playgrounds will be submitted to a meeting of the Dublin Corporation to be held next Monday night. The Corporation's resolution asking for a report on its powers regarding the closing of streets to traffic between certain hours, to give safe recreation for children "in areas where no such amenities exist," will be replied to by the City Manager.

In the course of his report he states:—"I am advised by the Law Agent that the Corporation have not power to close city streets against traffic, except as far as may be necessary for repairs, etc. I have communicated with the Commissioner of the Civic Guard, and have been informed that the Guards have no statutory powers which would enable them to close any street or roadway as a play area for children

"As the subject is of public interest, it may be useful to mention some feature other than the legal aspect," continues the report. "One of these is the preponderating use of the streets by children, even where there is a playground accommodation conveniently available.

RESULT OF INSPECTION

"In August, 1934, during the school holiday period, I had a special inspection made of playgrounds attached to or adjoining twenty-eight Corporation housing schemes. This inspection disclosed that out of some 14,000 children resident in the areas in question use of the playgrounds was being made by some 2,000 children, or 14 per cent. of the total, while nearly 5,000 were found playing in the roadways in front of the dwellings. At Lourdes road I myself counted thirty-two children playing in the street immediately outside the railings of the Corporation playground, while inside there was only an Irish terrier.

"There is another aspect more immediately related to central city tenement areas, where mothers have a practice of constantly looking out of their windows down on the public street, and calling to see that their children have not strayed away from the front of the house. Few young children, for instance, frequent St. Stephen's Green, possibly because of the risk attendant on crossing at the bottom of Harcourt street, and a like state of affairs prevails in many other similar districts. It must be recognised, of course, that many of the parents are not in a position, even if willing, to conduct their children to the nearest playground, especially when they have had to accompany them to and from school.

"On the other hand, Fairview and other parks are constantly being used; but parents and guardians usually bring the younger children to these places

EXISTING AMENITIES

"Further, even if there were legal power to close temporarily certain quiet streets for use as playgrounds, the residents there would have just cause for complaint, owing to the resultant broken windows or other damage, excessive noise, and general disturbance—particularly objectionable in cases of sickness or death.

"It may not generally be known that within the existing city boundary there are already forty parks, open spaces and playgrounds, with an area of 2,090 acres; in addition, in the past three years ninety-five open spaces have been provided as playgrounds by acquiring derelict sites, on which the Corporation has spent over £4,000 to clear and level. Further, there are ten playgrounds attached to Corporation flat dwelling schemes, and a new park at Crumlin is being laid out, with an area of 76 acres. Arrangements have now been arrived at which will enable the Corporation to take over half of Mountjoy square for use as a public recreation ground.

REQUEST TO MINISTER

"The continuance of the Corporation housing schemes will provide additional playgrounds in every case, while the lessening of density of occupation by removal of slums in central areas and transfer of inhabitants to suburban districts will diminish the numbers still unprovided with playgrounds."

Concluding his report, the City Manager states that an immediate improvement would be effected if the playgrounds attached to the city schools were thrown open after school hours. He mentioned in this respect that the Department of Education had been approached by the Corporation to permit the use as a playground of a portion of the very extensive ground attached to the Model Schools, Marlborough street. This request had been refused; a deputation had been sent to the Minister for Education, who, however, could not see his way to accede to the request.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS

In another report the City Manager deals with the provision of automatic light signals for the control of traffic in the city.

The Road Traffic Act (1933), states his report, empowers the Commissioner of the Civic Guard, with the consent of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health, to make bye-laws for the general regulation and control of traffic. This includes the control by means of mechanical signals. Section 36 of the Local Government Act (1925) empowers the Minister to make regulations prescribing the size, shape, colour and character of the signs. The same section "requires the Council in charge of a road to erect and maintain on such road so many of the signs as are prescribed by the regulations, and in such places as shall be necessary to comply with same."

"So far as legal power is concerned," concluded the report, "the position of the Corporation is to carry out the requirements of the Minister and of the Commissioner of the Civic Guard."

GOLF COURSE IN PARK

Councillor P. J. Cahill will put forward a notice of motion at Monday's meeting that the City Manager be requested to approach the Government with a view to obtaining a site in the Phoenix Park for a municipal golf course. An unemployment relief grant is asked for to cover the cost of the construction of such a course. This, states Councillor Cahill, would be work "eminently suitable for an unemployment relief scheme, as virtually the entire expenditure will be devoted to wages."

Among the letters forwarded for consideration at the meeting is one from Mr. James Kennedy, honorary secretary, Rathmines Development Association, requesting the Corporation to receive a deputation in connection with the construction of public swimming baths and the clearance of slum areas in Rathmines.

In his monthly report the City Manager records that, on the recommendation of the Art Advisory Committee, it was decided to accept the offer of Mr. Justice Meredith to present to the Municipal Gallery a painting of Mr. Jack Yeats, R.H.A.

The acceptance of a tender of Messrs. Merryweather and Sons, Ltd., for a motor combination turn-table fire escape for the Dublin Fire Brigade Station also is mentioned in the report. This escape will include 100 feet of all-steel ladders, and will cost £4,722, inclusive of Customs duty.

LOST TEMPER COST HIS LIFE

BOOKMAKER'S OFFICE SCENE

At the inquest yesterday on the body of Thomas Henderson (40), of Leopold street, Belfast, it was stated that he thrust his fist through a bookmaker's office window. In doing so he severed an artery and died shortly afterwards in hospital.

A verdict of "accidental death" was returned

A Greek Echo

By GEORGE CHESTER DUGGAN

Pass quickly hours and bring my love to me,
Out of the dark west and the grey sea
She comes with eyes sombre in mystery,
Pass quickly, hours.

So slowly goes the night and the dull day
Seems lingering long and will not quick away.
I would now have you with the yester-day—
Pass quickly, hours.

Swifter ye pass, so nearer will she speed
Straight to my heart and I will gently lead
Her homewards quivering like a tender reed:
Pass quickly, hours.

In the still night-time she is here beside me,
Her little weary body nestles closely,
Her tired eyes are drooping down dreamily:
Step slowly, hours.

Recollections of T.C.D.

Bury's "Courteous Contempt for Christianity"

Some Recollections of Trinity College, Dublin. By N. J. D. White, D.D. Dublin: Hodges, Figgis. 2/6 net.

DR. NEWPORT WHITE'S connection with Trinity College has been a long one. He entered college in 1878, when things were vastly different from what they are now. The College Races lasted for two days then, and it was not uncommon to have an attendance of 30,000 people, while the front of the College had a larger area between the façade and the railings than it now possesses.

He offers reminiscences of people connected with the College who are but names to modern undergraduates, and records several hitherto unpublished stories of Vice-Provost "Jacky" Barrett. His impressions of the various characters are recorded without fear or favour, and it is quite clear that the late holder of the Chair of Divinity is human enough to have had his favourites and other than favourites among the fellows and professors.

He relates many anecdotes of his subjects, and has much scope for his power of summing up a man in a few well-chosen words—for example, "The impression he (J. B. Bury) left on me as a man was that of a superior intellectualist, actuated by a courteous contempt for Christianity." Of one of the Provosts he observes that "his chief characteristics were dogged determination and an incapacity to assess the values of things and persons save in terms of £ s. d."

Graduates of Dublin University will be glad to possess this collection of recollections by one who has been part of the College to two generations of students.

At the Wheel

At the Wheel Ashore and Afloat. By Montague Grahame-White. London: Foulis. 12s. 6d. net.

Mr. Montague Grahame-White is a brother of Claude Grahame-White, the famous airman, who also was a pioneer motorist. His book is a useful addition to those we already possess on the early days of motoring in the British Isles, and contains enjoyable accounts of such adventures as his steering of a car for 52 miles—in the 1,000 miles trial of 1900—by standing with his left foot on the off-side step of a Daimler and his right foot on the hub of the off-side front wheel. The book, however, is almost entirely a personal record. Mr. Grahame-White met several very interesting people from time to time, but only a limited number of readers will want to know about these or about the details of the author's various yachts. At the same time, there are some really good chapters, among the best of which are those dealing with Mr. Grahame-White's service in command of the hospital steam yacht Queen Alexandra during the War.

The Cockpit of India

Forest Life in India. By the Hon. James W. Best. London: Murray. 10/6 net.

FOR many years the author was a Forest Officer in the great forests of the Central Provinces, that country where all the races of men in India seem to meet—Sikhs, Punjabi Mussalmans, merchants from Bombay, swaggering Marhattas, and men from Rajamandry, who worked their way from the Madras coast up the mighty Godaveri River.

In that rich expanse of country were found all the beasts of the other parts of the Province in those forests, such as buffaloes and swamp deer, spotted deer and mouse deer, tigers, leopards and wild dogs, but the birds as well. Here the two kinds of jungle fowl lived together in the same scrub, scratching the ground alongside one another. The golden cock of the North, the grey one of the Deccan. Where the tall twining canes grew there the imperial pigeon had its home and the litle love birds nodded and cuddled in the branches.

Of this land and its inhabitants the author writes with sympathy. He loved the animals more for their interest than for their sporting possibilities. Once through sheer admiration he let a great bull buffalo escape him. Towards the end of the book he criticises sharply defects in the administration which seem to him to affect the happiness of the jungle men he grew to know so well. He is equally decisive on certain aspects of that hydra "the Indian question."

A Camera in the Kremlin

Photographing Stalin

I Photograph Russia. By James E. Abbe. London: Harrap. 12/6 net.

"WELL, then, get me photographs of Hitler coming out of a synagogue!" said Herr Korff, the Jewish editor of Germany's largest weekly; "or," he continued slyly, "get me photographs of Stalin in his Kremlin." Mr. Abbe immediately seized upon the latter suggestion, probably as being the more reasonable, and that was the beginning of the Russian tour he describes in this book. Mr. Abbe not only is a brilliant and daring news photographer, but a literary man with a fine flow of language. He tells of his adventures with the heads of the Soviet Union, calling them "The Bolos," in an extremely entertaining fashion. Obviously he was not much impressed with the re-born Russia, and throughout the book there is a persistent atmosphere of amused contempt.

In accepting the suggestion that he should photograph Stalin, Mr. Abbe was biting off a considerable amount, since the redoubtable Stalin never before had been photographed in his stronghold. Mr. Abbe, however, managed it quite easily. This chapter he calls "Shooting Stalin," and the title is typical of Mr. Abbe's bold and nerveless attitude towards the dictator. Talking nineteen to the dozen, he moved remorselessly through the dictator's outer defences. Secretaries attempted to stay his progress. He swept them aside with a torrent of fluent Russian. He felt himself inspired to "speak better Russian than I knew." Then, at last—Stalin. "His private office was the longest I have ever seen . . . and there he sat behind his desk at the far end. I tottered off on the long trail across the polished floor. Stalin picked me up the moment I appeared on the horizon."

"Litvinov and Co."

Mr. Abbe then describes his subject virtually inch by inch . . . "Stalin's heavy head of black hair shot with grey," and his "simple suit of excellent material." The photographs were taken, Mr. Abbe even daring to touch the dictator in the process. Finally Stalin thanks Mr. Abbe politely, and the interview is over. The results of it appear in this book.

For the rest, Mr. Abbe tells of interviews with "Litvinov and Co.," various anti-Christians, and finally an unasked for one with the Ogpu. He reproduces eighty photographs of these adventures, all of them full size, and many marked "forbidden."

Wilful Murder

Wilful Murder: Fifteen True Trials. By Guy Logan. London: Eldon Press. 3/6.

THE appetite for books of gory association is never satisfied, and the output of popularly written works on famous trials must be now almost as big as the output in any department of historical writing.

The surprising thing is that the story of such trials as Mr. Logan deals with can be repeated again and again, and find old readers as well as new. Perhaps that fact is not quite so surprising when we consider that the Sunday papers of large circulation find it profitable to fall back upon true stories of murder and mystery of the past, or the near past, when the supply of current crime stories appears to be running short.

Mr. Logan's book is competently done, if neither very fresh nor very distinguished. He can tell his story well, and bring out attractively the points that will interest the trial fan. Of the stories in this volume we found Mr. Logan's accounts of the Stinie Morrison case, Kate Webster and Mrs. Thomas and Charles Peace the most interesting. Little less so are the chapters on unsolved cases, Chicago's "murder castle," and curious clues.

Shoes Shined by a General

Memories of a Varied Life

Been Places and Seen Things. By Kenneth Mackenzie. London: Cape. 8/6 net.

MR. KENNETH MACKENZIE has been a sailor, pugilist, "hobo," gunman, U.S. coastguard, private in the U.S. Army, beachcomber, actor for the films, and an unemployed worker in a Glasgow slum. He wandered the earth from Callao to Vladivostock, from Texas to Chicago, and from Hollywood to Alaska, and here in this book he has set down his experiences. He writes probably as he speaks, in curt, slangy sentences. Atmosphere means nothing to him; he never strives to transmit his impression of the places he has visited to the reader by heavy descriptive writing, and the whole thing runs like a tale told in a public-house. Mr. Mackenzie, in fact, has avoided all the pitfalls that beset the path of a non-literary man who writes the story of his adventures. There is no laboured attempt at high-sounding prose, no moralising on the subject of the squalor of dirty ports, and the down-and-outs that inhabit them.

For the rest, Mr. Mackenzie tells of countless impromptu fights in saloons all over the world and on board tramp steamers. Mr. Mackenzie does not seem to be a particularly peaceful individual, and the Greek who "got a plank wrapped round his neck" because he had "a fat ugly face" was only one of his countless victims. In time he reaches Shanghai, where he had his shoes shined by "a general of the Tsar's late army"; passes from there to Vladivostock, where he gives us the "low-down" on the Soviets, and then wanders on to Chicago, where he meets Capone, "a stocky-built man of Italian appearance." For a time he drives with a bootleg lorry, and gets involved in numerous shootings with rival gangs. Then he joins the army, buys himself out, and finds his way to Alaska, where "you get a thrill out of almost everything."

Finally, he is deported back to Britain, where "if you walk off the main road you're liable to be prosecuted for trespassing." Mr. Mackenzie does not seem fond of his native land, and his concluding words are: "Some day I'll hit the trail again."

Antiquities of Ireland

Place-Names in the South of Dublin

The Journal of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland (Series Seven: Vol. Five). Vol. LXV., Part I., 30th June, 1935. Dublin: Hodges, Figgis. 10/6 net.

IMPORTANT papers, read last year and this, before the R.S.A.I. by some of our most distinguished scholars, are printed in the current number of the Society's Journal.

In his paper on "Sescenn Uarbeoil of the Sagas and Other Ancient Place-Names to the South of Dublin," Professor Eoin MacNeill examines the Egerton 1782 version of the story of the attack on Bruiden Da Derga and the death of Conaire Mór, and makes a highly interesting contribution to the elucidation of Irish topography.

Professor Edmund Curtis, with genealogical help from Mr. E. St. John Brooks, writes on the Barons of Norragh, Co. Kildare, between 1171 and 1660. In the Journal of the Kildare Archæological Society, Lord Walter FitzGerald had written on the same subject, giving the gist of relevant documents that have since perished in the destruction of the Four Courts. With new material now available Professor Curtis and Mr. Brooks have been able to supplement Lord Walter on some points and correct him on others.

An extremely valuable communication is a first and lengthy instalment by Mícheál O Duigeannáin of Notes on the History of the Kingdom of Breifne. This constitutes a veritable treatise on early peoples, and is a fine example of good work being done in the best scientific manner in Irish local history.

Canon J. B. Leslie continues his papers on the Calendar of Leases and Deeds of St. Patrick's Cathedral, 1660-89; Lady Dorothy Lowry-Corry writes on the Sculptured Stones at Killadeas; Mr. H. G. Leask on Carved Stones discovered at Kilteel, Co. Kildare; Mr. H. O'Neill Hencken on a tumulus at Carrowlisdooan, Co. Mayo; Seán P. O Ríordáin on Bronze Age burials at Crookedwood, Co. Westmeath; and Messrs. E. E. Evans and M. Gaffikin on a Bronze Age cist containing food vessel and cremation burial, found at Ballynagross, Co. Down; and all these papers are richly illustrated.

The MacNeill and O Duigennáin articles are accompanied by maps.

Two Books on Golf

Length on the Links. By Abe Mitchell. London: Methuen. 5/- net.

So That's What I Do! By Enid Wilson and R. A. Lewis. London: Methuen. 10/6 net.

THE first of these two books on golf is for the player who is nearing scratch, or at least single figures; and the other is devoted to the instruction of him who is still in the "rabbit" class. In the first Abe Mitchell has performed a notable feat. He has given what seems to be a completely new piece of advice for the correct swinging of a golf club. "Use your legs," says Abe Mitchell. "They are your best ally in the game." "To play an iron," he continues, "one must hang on fiercely with the knees. One of the great secrets of the game is to control the swing with the knees; for by so doing we keep our weight behind the ball, flowing naturally into the stroke." Certainly if one tries it, it does give an unusual feeling of stability. The author has described the swing in its component parts, all the time stressing the importance of the left side. Then he gives some excellent hints on the pitch and run chip shot, the mashie pitch, and a variety of strokes with the longer irons. Every one of these shots is illustrated with photographs, taken specially for the occasion. This little book really is an advance on the usual golfing manual.

Miss Enid Wilson has chosen to teach her pupils exclusively by means of photographs, with a very brief written introduction to every shot. She herself appears many times in weird and wonderful positions, and a number of collaborators also show exactly what not to do. Then, to put one right at the end, she finishes with a chapter entitled, "So That's What They Do." "They" are Henry Cotton and others, snapped in the course of a championship.

ON THE AMERICAN LANGUAGE

THE CONSERVATIVE DRAG

WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO "THRU"?

AT the moment I am scrutinising a new work which bears the title of "A Dictionary of Modern American Usage," and has been prepared by Mr. H. W. Horwill. It is not only a very interesting, but a very serious, book—not, in any sense, a dictionary of slang, but a weighty contribution by a scholar to a subject which, unless I am mistaken, has not been taken in hand before. Mr. Horwill catalogues, in dictionary form, the great host of words which bear a different meaning in America from the meaning that they bear in England; gives a little essay, with examples, on every word, and presents thereby an idea of how far, in truth, the two languages are diverging.

The Indeterminate "U"

I do not propose to embark upon a review of Mr. Horwill's excellent book, but the sight of it has suggested to me a thought concerning the American language. Not so many years ago there was a general outcry on this side of the Atlantic at the manner in which the Americans gradually were "rationalising" the spelling of English words; and the best people were exceedingly supercilious about it. What has happened to this process of rationalising? I myself read a fair amount of American literature of one sort and another; and only the other day, while making my way through an excellent novel, it occurred to me that my attention had not been diverted by a single un-English spelling. Even those veterans of the divergence, "honor" and "labor," were content to be "honour" and "labour." On a scrutiny of the end pages, indeed, I discovered that the book was printed in England, so that the English forms might have been inserted for the benefit of readers on this side. But then I unearthed another novel, published by a New York publisher, and printed by a New York printer, and the situation there was precisely the same: "honour" kept its "u," and so did "labour."

Conflict

As for "thru," which only a few years ago we were told was the authorised American version, I cannot recall a single American book in which it has caught my eye. To be sure, I notice that a large poster advertising a current film in Dublin bears the appalling word this week—mercifully, in small letters; but book-writers seem to have rejected it uncompromisingly. Nor can anyone say that it is only the "literary" books and journals which are proving themselves thus conservative. I happen to be a devotee of that particular kind of fiction which places its scenes in the year 20,000 A.D., and plays merrily about with the fourth dimension and trips to Arcturus—the stuff that built itself upon Jules Verne and H. G. Wells, but surpasses their wildest imaginings; and every month I solemnly make my way to the newsagent's, and buy copies of the three American magazines which cater for my taste. One would hardly call such magazines literary; yet even there I have failed to observe a single "thru," and they seem to leave "honor" and "labor" to the discretion of the authors, fully fifty per cent. of whom apparently are content with the English spelling.

Speech Versus Script

It looks, indeed, as if the written word in America were trying to impose a brake upon the spoken word. I can well imagine that the American author may be fighting a desperate battle against the films, every one of which that visits these shores has some new and startling turn of speech to offer. This conservative element always has existed in American letters, from Emerson and Thoreau and Poe to the present day; but how long it will be able to maintain the unequal fight, who can tell? Not that I would care to see the American language toned down; for its extravagances are one of my greatest joys, and, if I had my way, there is not a gangster or "collegiate" film which I would miss.

Come-back

The Americans, of course, have never obtained what we call a fair deal, and they, I understand, a break, from people on this side. It must be many years since H. L. Mencken pointed out that the average English playwright will make Americans of the utmost social respectability use phrases that would cause such people in real life to recoil in horror; and he instanced, as an example of retaliation on the same plane, the consternation that would be aroused in England if an American playwright, dealing with the arrest of an English peer, put into his mouth the words: "Coo, officer, it's a fair cop," or something of the sort. Perhaps, some day they will get angry across the ocean; and I can just imagine the columns of abuse that will proceed from the English journals, which will probably take it as seriously as the House of Commons took the case of the school inspector and the small girl last week.

New Novels

Gods in Motley. By Seamus MacCall. Constable. 7/6 net.

MR. MacCALL'S novel opens in an Irish prison during the civil conflict of 1921-22; thence, after an interlude whose scene is laid in London, passes to the nitrate fields of South America, where the real action of the story begins. It is readable, moves rapidly, and wastes few words; and, if the personality of the Chilean woman who marries Darry Bowen, and brings his death upon him, is depicted too sketchily, the same charge cannot be levied against the male characters.

In essence, "Gods in Motley" is a straightforward and well-told tale of adventure. The importance of its "supernatural" aspect—which gives the book its title—has been lamentably over-stated by the English publicists. In point of fact, Darry Bowen's visions of Curoi Mac Daire and Cuchullain, and his Dunne-ish relation with the Red Branch period, are quite unnecessary to the tale's structure, and are, if anything, a weakness. The only purpose served in the story by the mythological projection is to warn Bowen's friend, Niall MacCarthy, that trouble is coming to Bowen; and the same end could have been served by simpler and more harmonious means. We recommend "Gods in Motley" as an entertaining tale, not as an experiment in time.

Provincial Interlude. Vol. VIII. of Men of Good Will. By Jules Romains. Lovat Dickson. 7/6 net.

"PROVINCIAL INTERLUDE," the eighth volume of M. Jules Romain's "Men of Good Will," brings Mr. Gerald Hopkin's excellent translation up to date with the French publications, and leaves us, like the French, eager for more. There seems to be no end to M. Romain's versatility, or any trace of fatigue or of a falling-off. As the title indicates, he is here concerned with life in a provincial city. M. de Saint-Papoul carries out an electioneering campaign, and is elected a deputy. His daughter Jeanne is married, and affords an opportunity for presenting a notable society event. Mionnet, the young but astute cleric, is shown at work on a confidential mission in the cathedral city, and Jerphanion studies a fresh aspect of life. The various threads of interest are brilliantly handled, and give a satisfying, but not yet complete, picture of still another phase of life in pre-war France.

Full House. By M. J. Farrell. Collins. 7s. 6d. net.

The Wedding. By Denis Mackail. Hodder and Stoughton. 7/6 net.

MISS FARRELL is well known for her descriptions of Irish sporting life, but here in her latest novel, though the scene is still Ireland, she is more concerned with her characters than with the scenery. They are, indeed, a strange lot. There are Sir Julian Bird, with his "flexible reticence," his wife, Olivia, aging, but still beautiful (and careful of her beauty), stupid, vain and a chatterbox. Their children, Markie, a small boy; Sheena, nineteen, and a sea of complex emotions; and John, recently returned from a lunatic asylum, are vivid creations. Then there is Miss Parker, a little mouse of a governess, much troubled with a beard, and, lastly, Eliza, the confidante of the whole family, "tall, thin, light on her feet." "She was her own age, which was anything you please for wit and tolerance and kindness and large experience." Sheena is in love with Rupert, a handsome young soldier, and Miss Farrell tells the tale of their youthful and indeterminate affair with understanding. John stalks through the book, a difficult and moody person, making embarrassing observations about his madness, and Markie, with his "rare savage and tender quality," makes life a hell for everybody.

* * * * *

Mr. Denis Mackail optimistically sets out to make a whole novel out of the single event of a marriage, and does not indulge in any sensations. There is no question of banns being forbidden, or of a defaulting bride or bridegroom in this book about the wedding of Ann Pilgrim and Peter Troutbeck. Ann and Peter behave perfectly normally on their wedding day. So do their parents and their nearest relations.

There is literally nothing in the book that might not be embroidered from the newspaper account of any wedding in any part of the civilised world.

Mr. Mackail, it may be presumed, has deliberately chosen a rather inarticulate type of people in order to make his study more convincing. We see them waking, breakfasting, making final preparations, exchanging commonplace remarks. We follow them to church, listen to the ceremony and see the register signed. We hear what they ate and what everybody said at the reception; follow the bride and bridegroom to their respective changing rooms, and see them off in a shower of confetti and rice as the curtain falls. That is all.

DISPUTE IN DUBLIN CLOTHING TRADE

300 WORKERS AFFECTED

Unless a settlement is arrived at over the week-end, employés of the Sabin Clothing Company, 31 Eustace street, Dublin, to the number of approximately three hundred, will withdraw their labour from Monday next.

A dispute has arisen out of a notice which has been given by the directors of the company that, "as from Monday, 12th August next, the working system in this factory will be changed from time to piece-work." The trades unions to which the employés belong are opposed to the introduction of the piece-work system in a firm where, they say, it has not before operated, and are against piece-work on principle, as they maintain that it lends itself to "sweating" and a general worsening of the conditions of employment.

The three trades unions concerned are the National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers, the Irish Garment Makers' Industrial Union, and the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union, and the committees of these unions held a joint meeting last night at the offices of the Garment Makers' Union, Eustace street, at the close of which the following statement was issued:—

"The Sabin Clothing Company have notified their employés that the present system of time rate will be changed to that of piece-work as from Monday, 12th August next; on the other hand, the employés have decided on three occasions not to accept the latter. Unless the notice is withdrawn a stoppage will take place. About three hundred will be affected."

DUBLIN INQUESTS

VISITOR'S DEATH AT KILLINEY.

Dr. J. P. Brennan (Coroner for South County Dublin) and a jury held an inquest at St. Michael's Hospital, Dun Laoghaire, yesterday on the body of John Philbin (29), a single man, of 41 Wellington road, Stockport, Cheshire. Philbin died in the hospital on Thursday as a result of injuries which he received on Saturday in a cycling accident on Killiney Hill, County Dublin.

Richard Philbin said that his brother had come to Ireland to spend his holidays.

George Parr, of Stockport, said that with Philbin he cycled up Killiney Hill at about 11.30 on the day of the accident. He had gone on down the hill until he had found that his companion had not followed him. When he returned he found Philbin being attended by a doctor at the side of the road.

James O'Driscoll, of Dun Laoghaire, said that he was walking on the hill on the same day, when he was suddenly struck on the back by what he believed was the handle-bar of a bicycle. He was knocked down, and when he rose he saw a man lying on the road. Dr. Fitzpatrick helped him to remove the man to the side of the road, where they attended to him.

Dr. F. D. Fitzpatrick said that he was motoring on the hill when he saw a cyclist coming down it at a high speed. He heard a crash, and when he got out of the car he saw a man lying on the road. He helped to carry him to the side of the road, and sent another person to telephone for an ambulance. The injured man was unconscious.

Dr. W. J. Roche (house surgeon) said that Philbin had been unconscious almost all the time since he was admitted to the hospital. Death was due to fracture of the skull and cerebral hemorrhage.

The jury found that death was in accordance with the doctor's evidence, and expressed sympathy with the relatives of the deceased man.

'BUS CONDUCTOR DROWNED IN CANAL

Dr. J. P. Shanley, Acting Coroner for Dublin City, with a jury, at the Mater Hospital, Dublin, yesterday, held an inquest on teh body of James Doyle (18), a 'bus conductor, which was taken from the Royal Canal at Broom Bridge, Cabra, County Dublin, on Wednesday last.

Patrick O'Callaghan and James Feery, both of Dublin, stated that they had made attempts to rescue Doyle when he was in difficulties in the water, but had been unable to do so.

Dr. P. Davin said that death was due to asphyxia, following drowning, and the jury returned a verdict accordingly, adding that they thought that bathing at the place where the accident took place ought to be prohibited.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE CHARGE

In Bray District Court yesterday, before Mr. Conroy, Acting District Justice, John Duffy, Castle street, Wicklow, a plasterer, who was charged with attempting to commit suicide on Monday last, was remanded on bail until 21st August next.

Superintendent Collins said that on Monday evening Duffy was found undressed on the quay at Wicklow. He was met by two Guards, who advised him to go home. Duffy dressed and went away, but later came back and jumped into the river fully dressed. He had to be rescued and taken into a boat, out of which he again tried to jump into the water. He was taken to Wicklow Hospital for the night and arrested the following morning, since when he had been in custody

A medical report from Mountjoy Prison stated that there was no evidence of gross mental confusion in the state of Duffy and that the incident appeared to have been due to alcoholic confusion.

Mr. J. McCarroll (J. H. McCarroll and Co., solicitors, Wicklow), who appeared for Duffy, said that his client was a competent swimmer and was swimming when rescued.

Bail was fixed at £500.

The Liffey Scheme

There seems to be no reason why the Griffith-Moynihan-Kettle scheme for a combined water and electricity supply should not be taken in hands at once. The two experts who were retained to report on its feasibility and value have reported, and give the scheme their virtually unqualified approval. Herren Buchi and Meyer Peter, whose names are a sufficient guarantee of their authority, urge precisely the same course that the most distinguished Irish engineers have been urging for some years past. Herr J. Buchi is one of those experts who were called into consultation before the Shannon scheme was adopted, in order to prepare a Liffey hydro-electric scheme with Mr. L. J. Kettle. Recently the Dublin Corporation asked him to examine the Griffith-Moynihan-Kettle scheme, from its aspect as a water supply. His report, which was favourable, has been in existence for the last two months. Still further investigation, however, was demanded by the Electricity Supply Board, which was not satisfied completely at the time that the scheme would suit its needs, as an alternative source of supply of current, and Professor Meyer Peter, one of the four continental experts who reported originally on the Shannon scheme, was brought into consultation. These two gentlemen have now made a final, joint—and, as we have said, favourable—report to the Electricity Supply Board. We may presume, therefore, that there will be no further opposition to the views of so many responsible engineers. The Griffith-Moynihan-Kettle scheme is one of those rare undertakings whose feasibility, while approved by expert opinion, is at the same time apparent to the man in the street. Its immediate adoption is urged by logic and common-sense. The cost is decidedly low for a reform of such magnitude; the Shannon scheme will be supplemented so naturally that no trouble is likely to occur in regard to electric current for many years; and Dublin's water supply will be guaranteed indefinitely.

The essence of the scheme is the impounding of Liffey water in a huge, new reservoir at Poulaphouca. Thence the water will be led to a new service reservoir at Belgard Hill, near Clondalkin, and from there so distributed as to supply the whole northern area of Dublin. The supply of drinking water, however, will demand less than a fifth of the quantity impounded at Poulaphouca; the greater part will operate a new electrical power station, whose duty will be to supply all the region that is supplied at present by the Pigeon House steam station—and a great deal more. Thoroughness is the scheme's principal advantage. There are other means by which Dublin's need of an improved water supply—a need which has become dangerously insistent, and is more formidable every year—could be satisfied; and the electrical supply could be increased by further development of the Shannon scheme and by the continued use of the Pigeon House station. There is, however, no other means by which these ends can be served so thoroughly and so cheaply. Even if the Electricity Supply Board should reject the experts' findings—which is exceedingly improbable—the Poulaphouca reservoir still would provide by far the most satisfactory source of water supply for Dublin. Viewed separately, the proposals to use the Liffey for a water supply and to use it as a generator of current are eminently worthy of adoption. Viewed together, as they have been considered by all engineers, the arguments in their favour are impregnable. The existence of so useful a catchment area in the neighbourhood of Dublin is a blessing that most cities would be glad to possess; and it is a standing wonder that the adoption of a scheme which solves so many difficulties at one stroke has been deferred so long. Happily, no shadow of excuse remains for any further postponement.

It is not unreasonable to infer from Professor Meyer Peter's endorsement of the Liffey scheme that he is disappointed in the Shannon. Ten years ago it was understood that the full development of the Shannon scheme would fulfil the Free State's electrical needs, for all practical purposes, for ever. The experience of those years has shown that the experts were optimistic. Not only has the demand for current increased more rapidly than anybody expected, but it appears that the effect of an abnormally dry summer had not received full consideration. In a word, there is grave doubt to-day whether any more money ought to be spent on the development of the Shannon. Infinitely more logical is the present proposal—to leave the Shannon scheme where it stands at present, supplying current to all parts of the twenty-six counties outside the Dublin area, and to proceed at once with the development of the Liffey. We do not know the secret minds either of the Dublin Corporation or of the Electricity Supply Board; but we have not the slightest doubt that they are convinced already by the weight of evidence, and will accept the logical course without further hesitation. As we understand, the only matter in dispute is the division of the expenditure. Is the Corporation or the E.S.B. to bear the cost of the embankment at Poulaphouca which will create the huge parent reservoir? The suggestion, made in our columns to-day, is that the E.S.B., inasmuch as some four-fifths of the water will be devoted to its purposes, ought to bear that particular expense, while all the other works of construction—conduits, subsidiary reservoirs, and the like—which will be necessary for the distribution of potable water will be provided from the Corporation's pocket. However it may be arranged, the division of expense is not a serious obstacle. If the work is taken in hand at once, it can be completed, at the longest estimate, within three years. Let it begin without delay.

Danzig and Poland

It seems that, for the time being, at any rate, the trouble between the Germans and the Poles in Danzig has been liquidated. An agreement has been made whereby the Free City has undertaken to withdraw its recent decrees which lifted the duties on certain imports from Germany, while Poland, in her turn, has arranged to withdraw her regulation imposing additional duties on imports through the port of Danzig. For the moment, therefore, all is reasonably well, and the situation in the Free City is brought back to where it was three weeks ago. The agreement, significantly enough, seems to have been concluded by direct negotiation between Danzig and Warsaw, without the intervention of the League of Nations, under whose ægis the Free City exists. Mr. Sean Lester, who was on holiday in Ireland when the dispute came to a head, rushed back to Danzig about a week ago; but apparently his good offices were not required. The position of Danzig constitutes one of the major problems of post-war Europe. When the World War ended, and the ancient Kingdom of Poland was restored as a Republic, the Poles very naturally made a bold bid for the old Hanseatic city of Danzig. They demanded above all else an outlet to the sea, and took the view that Danzig, with its age-old tradition of commercial prosperity, constituted their natural port. As Danzig is almost entirely a German city, Messrs. Wilson and Lloyd George strove against the Polish claim, with the result that the inevitable compromise was arranged. The egregious "corridor" was formed, and Danzig was created a Free City. In order to placate the Poles the city was included in the Polish Customs system. Furthermore, it was arranged that Danzig's representation abroad should be in the hands of the Polish Foreign Office; but the city itself was placed under the tutelage of the League of Nations, whose High Commissioner was installed in the ancient castle of the Dukes. From the beginning the relations between Germans and Poles in Danzig were unsatisfactory. The Germans, who constituted the mercantile aristocracy of the city, resented bitterly the position of the Poles, while the latter, not to be outdone in bitterness, resolved to do as much damage as possible to Danzig's trade. With this object in view they transformed the little fishing village of Gdingen into a first-rate modern port, known now as Gdynia, and deliberately set out to divert Danzig's vast entrepôt trade to the new port. The advent of the Nazi Party, and the emergence of Herr Greiser as President of the Danzig Senate, did not tend to improve matters, and, although the German Government made a ten years' pact of peace with Warsaw, the Danzig situation became worse instead of better. There is no doubt that the growth of Gdynia has done enormous harm to Danzig's trade; but the Danzigers are an independent and stiff-necked people, who are inordinately proud of their city's history. They certainly will not be coerced into political union with Poland; on the contrary, the attitude of the Polish authorities merely has been playing into Herr Hitler's hands. Sooner or later—and probably sooner rather than later—the situation in Danzig will become critical. The Free City constitutes the key to the whole problem of the Polish "corridor," and nobody who has the slightest knowledge of German-Polish affairs believes for a moment that the existing position can be stabilised.

The Pest Problem

When one tries to improve on Nature the results sometimes are a little disappointing. Many years ago, for instance, the thrifty farmers of Aberdeenshire found that wild birds and other pests were causing great damage to their crops, and they decided that drastic steps would have to be taken in the matter. An "Agricultural Pests Extermination Committee" was set up, and it went about its work with vigour. Confining its activities mainly to rooks—which were held to be the chief cause of the trouble—it carried the campaign to such lengths that seventy thousand to eighty thousand rooks are killed in Aberdeenshire every year. According to theory, the crops now should be in a magnificent condition, but. actually, they are not. The Scottish Society for the Protection of Wild Birds, a trifle shocked by the news of the annual massacre, decided to find out for itself what effect the absence of the "pests" was having on the condition of the crops. Oats and barley are the principal crops in Aberdeenshire, and it has been found that their yield per acre is actually less than the yield in other Scottish counties, which do not organise campaigns of this kind. Is it possible, then, that the whole idea is mistaken, and that the rook, although he raids the farmer's fields, may not be such an enemy as Aberdeen thinks him to be? He may help himself to oats and barley in too lavish a manner, but, at least, one good thing must be said for his enormous appetite—it can be satisfied only by a varied menu. He is no vegetarian, and turns his attention to grubs and insects with quite as much enthusiasm as to cereals. Left to themselves, these smaller pests would over-run the crops, and there is reason to think that many of the birds and animals which we regard as a nuisance are, in reality, doing valuable police-work for us. If they have rather too generous ideas about their wages, at least they do something to earn them.

A Forestry Conference

A British Empire Forestry Conference will be held at Durban on the 2nd September. It will be the fourth of a series. The first conference was held in Great Britain in 1920, the second in Canada in 1923, and the third in Australia and New Zealand in 1928. These are conferences of experts. Their purpose is, we are told, to bring about a better realisation of the part which forests have to play in national economics, and, on that basis, to study the actual growing and maintenance of forests. The pooling of information by these experts is invaluable; for the British Empire contains colossal tracts of forest, including every possible variety of tree, and her authorities have brought the science of the subject to a high degree. Such questions will be discussed as the depletion and regeneration of forests, their effect on soil erosion, water supply and local climate, and the consumption, supply and marketing of timber. We do not know if the Free State Government proposes to be represented at this conference; but we urge it, if a decision has not yet been reached, to send a representative of the Minister of Lands and Forests. We admit that the Free State is not confronted with problems of the magnitude that face the larger Dominions, with their gigantic areas of forest; but a great deal can be learned from such a gathering of experts, and something can be contributed by our own representatives. The fact that the conference exists at all is a sign of the importance that the Dominion Governments, in common with all Governments, attach to the welfare of their forests. It is only within recent years that the subject has received scientific study, and its value has been recognised, and the Saorstát would be foolish to sacrifice an opportunity to improve her own knowledge, merely because she might dislike the conference's title.

FRIDAY NIGHT.

In pursuance of the Government's decision to expand the Air Force, the Air Ministry has placed orders for aeroplanes, engines, spares and equipment, amounting to nearly fifteen million pounds. This year nine millions will be spent on new aircraft and equipment, and, at the same time, orders will be placed for delivery of other machines within eighteen months. The new types of aeroplanes, many of which will be on the "secret list," will ensure that Britain will have the most advanced air force in the world. Fighters with a speed of three hundred miles an hour will soon be in service, while the fastest bombers of to-day will be outpaced easily by the new types on order. Ten new stations have been opened in different parts of the country for the recruitment of the largely increased personnel that will be required. Generally speaking, recruitment has been satisfactory.

Cecils in Office

Lord Cranborne's appointment as Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs brings the total number of members of the Cecil family who have held Foreign Office posts in less than half a century up to four. Forty years ago his grandfather was Foreign Secretary, thirty years ago his father was Under-Foreign Secretary, and twenty years ago the same post was held by his uncle. When the present Marquess of Salisbury was Under-Secretary he was often out of his depth in answering supplementary questions, and, in consequence of several awkward and, perhaps, tactless answers which he gave in the House, received peremptory instructions to remain silent in the face of all attempts to extract information from him, and to confine himself to reading the written answer with which the Foreign Office supplied him. With a mistaken sense of humour certain members bombarded him with "supplementaries," and not a few members of the Irish Nationalist Party lent a hand in completing the junior Minister's discomfiture. Throughout the bombardments, however, the then Lord Cranborne remained as expressionless as the sphinx.

The Derry Airport

The first report prepared by Mr. Maxwell Ayrton, F.R.I.B.A., on Londonderry as an airport and seaplane base was presented to the Air Ministry yesterday. The report, which is very favourable, deals with the inspection of three possible sites for an aerodrome, one of which is regarded as unsuitable for the purpose. Three sites were inspected as possible seaplane bases, two of which can be adapted at a small cost and the other at an estimated cost of £25,000. A second report is being prepared by Mr. Ayrton in collaboration with one of the leading aeronautical experts, and will be submitted to the Air Ministry next month. Copies of the first report have been supplied to the Canadian Government and the Government of Northern Ireland.

Britannia

The King's famous cutter Britannia has not repeated the remarkable successes which she attained at previous Cowes Regattas. Though long past the usual life allotted to a racing yacht, Britannia has always proved a formidable antagonist up to this season to the best of modern craft, but her performances this week have been disappointing, and it is said that the King contemplates the building of a new vessel to compete in the big classes. Britannia has been unfortunate in that light winds have prevailed at Cowes. Many of the races had to be called off, as the yachts were becalmed miles away from the finishing mark. She is at her best in a stiff breeze—in fact, nothing but a gale would prevent her getting under sail. Apart from the weather conditions not being to her advantage, it is doubtful whether the change of sail area has improved her capabilities. Experts say that it has had the opposite effect, but she has not been really tried out with her new spread of canvas in conditions which suit her best.

The Milk Board

Farmers will be gravely inconvenienced if the Milk Marketing Board executes its threat to hold up payments to producers for milk delivered on contract during July. The amount of money involved is 3½ millions. These payments, made about the middle of every month, are relied on to pay weekly wage bills. Polling on the question of the abolition of the Board, which is elected by the milk producers, closes next Thursday, and the Board has maintained that if the poll results in abolition every farmer will be liable to a debt not exceeding £1 for every cow he has had in his possession during the preceding twelve months. The number of milch cows in this country is roughly 3¼ millions. One of the advantages of the marketing scheme is its arrangements with the banks to advance farmers money up to the extent of their average monthly milk account before the cheque is paid in by the Board. Now, however, the banks, having been notified that the July money is being withheld pending the result of the poll, are declining advances, which means that many farmers will have to call on their private securities to pay the regular weekly wages.

Strike in Nottinghamshire

There is no prospect of settlement in the mining dispute in the Nottinghamshire coalfields. The trouble is over the men's demands for a new price list for machine-cut coal and the employment of non-union labour. The deadlock is now entering upon its eighth week. Attempts have been made by the Minister of Mines to bring the parties together, but neither seems in a mood to negotiate. There is fear of the strike spreading, and at the moment the situation is critical, especially in view of the general temper of the men throughout the industry. It is not at all improbable that the country will be definitely faced not far hence with another big miners' strike for an all-round increase of wages and other concessions.

Waterloo Bridge

The demolition of Waterloo Bridge proceeds apace, and the London County Council has offered the fine bronze lamp standards, which stood on the bridge, to the Dominions, Colonies and Protectorates as mementoes of the famous structure. The forty lamps which illuminated the roadway have an interesting history. They were designed by a friend of John Rennie, and, after being in position for nearly a century, were removed. Then for the first time Londoners remembered that these standards were of beautiful workmanship, and there was an outcry for their restoration. They were rescued from a sale as scrap metal and brought back to the bridge. Not only the lamps, but the stones of the bridge, are being sought as relics. Already four great blocks, weighing several tons, have been sent to Canberra to be incorporated in the new Parliament Buildings, and one huge block of granite is awaiting despatch to New Zealand.

The amateur golf international matches ended at Lytham and St. Anne's, Lancashire, yesterday, in a tie for the championship between Scotland (the holders), England and Ireland, each having gained two victories, while Wales was beaten by each of the other three nations. Yesterday Scotland had a very easy victory over England by eleven matches to one, and Ireland beat Wales by eleven matches to three.

FIGHT FOR THE AGA KHAN TROPHY

IRELAND'S GREAT VICTORY SEEN BY 33,000 PEOPLE

MEMORABLE DAY IN THE GREAT ENCLOSURE

BLOODSTOCK SALES SO FAR REALISE 72,000 GUINEAS

"IT is a proud day for Ireland, surely," said a Dublin Horse Show visitor yesterday, and that was the general opinion. The attendance figure was "almost a record" to begin with; it fell a mere two thousand or so below the previous highest peak.

The figure was 33,794 for the day, compared with 25,062 in 1934, and 26,636 in 1933.

Mr. de Valera, most of his Ministers, and the Free State Diplomatic Corps were in the Viceregal box in the jumping enclosure when thirty thousand people thundered applause of the Free State's magnificent victory in the premier international event of the week—the Aga Khan Challenge Trophy contest.

The Show promises to be the best ever, financially, and in every way.

The sales of bloodstock yesterday brought 9,985 guineas for twenty-one lots, making a total for the four days of more than 72,000 guineas.

The total attendance of visitors up to last night was 83,662, and, with a continuance of the fine weather to-day, it is expected that the 100,000 mark will have been reached.

PARADE OF THE TEAMS

The great, tree-shaded enclosure at Ballsbridge resembled Ascot in brilliance of the womenfolk's attire and in the dignity of the crowds' slow movements. In the Viceregal box, where Mr. de Valera sat with his Ministers, the Diplomatic Corps, and the leaders of the Royal Dublin Society, the Aga Khan's big challenge cup gleamed golden in the bright sunshine of the afternoon. Around this cup centred a splendid pageant, and later a thrilling battle, as four nations eagerly sought to possess it.

Successively the teams paraded before the grand stand, to halt in white-gloved salute as the Free State Army's premier band ("in special attendance," said the programme, "by direction of the Chief of Staff and officers of the Army, to honour the countries represented") played each National Anthem. First came the Netherlands team, in black tunics, and breeches with blue and red facings, and silently faced the Viceregal box for the Anthem. The Swedish officers followed, in their blue and gold; then the Germans, in their grey-green tunics, with blue-green breeches.

The crowds rose to their feet, and stood solemnly for "Deutschland Über Alles"; but almost everyone forgot that Germany has a second National Anthem (the Nazi "Horstwessellied"), and, having sat down, had to rise quickly again.

Of course, the warmest cheers were reserved for the Irish officers, who paraded last. Then, headed by the band, whose fifty pairs of infantry leggings made the parade look truly martial, the whole body moved around the enclosure once.

THE CONTEST

The contest started with an immediate thrill. Ritmeester Heuff (Netherlands), the first competitor, was pitched off at the very first jump. Then the crowd was impressed by the immovable monocle of First-Lieutenant de Bruine (Netherlands), and there was some amused appreciation of the skill with which he retained it over stone walls and bars, water jump and double bank.

In the first round (which is over the ordinary six jumps, plus six special, and particularly difficult, others) the faults were: Netherlands, 77; Sweden, 32; Germany, 28.

The crowds became keenly excited when, after this record of faults, the first Irish officer, Commandant O'Dwyer, initiated Ireland's attempt upon the trophy with a faultless round upon Limerick Lace. But they went almost hysterical when the whole Irish team completed the gruelling course with only one fault. The applause lasted for minutes. Jump by jump the onlookers had followed the Irishmen's riding: groaning pathetically in unison at the sign of a slip, drawing breath in huge, loud hisses before roaring "Well over!" when all went well.

IRELAND'S VICTORY

"The National Anthem of the successful country in this competition will again be played as the trophy is presented," said the programme. It was a fine moment when the drumsticks and cymbals rose and fell in the tempo of the "Soldier's Song." The Irish officers, who had come in last, paraded out first, having received the trophy from Viscount Powerscourt, President of the Royal Dublin Society. The remarkable scoring was:—

	Faults.
Ireland	15
Germany	59
Sweden	86
Netherlands	143

The military competition, of course, was not the only attraction of the afternoon in the enclosure. There were also a contest for cobs and ponies, the judging of single harness horses, a consolation class "over the course," and a parade of hunters ridden side-saddle by women in hunting costume.

Even when the thirty thousand were in the enclosure there were still the odd three or four thousand enjoying the music of the orchestra in the ten gardens, the orchestra in the lawn pavilion, the lovely sights and scents of the Royal Horticultural Society of Ireland's Flower Show in the Pembroke Hall, the interesting art exhibitions on the balcony of the Main Hall, or any of the two hundred striking trade stands.

THE GREATEST SHOW

Indeed, the Horse Show has become so successful that it shows signs of requiring to burst out of its fifty acres at Ballsbridge, and as that is not conceivable it has now got to begin "growing upwards" (so the Director says) by way of taller buildings.

"It has been a perfect day," said Dr. Bohane last night. "I am confident that to-morrow we shall be able to announce that this has been the greatest show that the Royal Dublin Society has ever had. To-day's win of our Irish jumping team, who have wrested the Aga Khan trophy from Germany, is a crowning triumph of their wonderful season. The attendance to-day was only two or three thousand short of the record. Further, the private blood-stock sales have been most satisfactory again to-day. Here are the figures:—

1935 ... 9,985 guineas for 121 lots.
1934 ... 8,395 guineas for 108 lots.

"The trade stands are doing remarkably well also, and many visitors from cross-Channel and overseas have expressed their delight at seeing our industries' products displayed to such remarkable advantage. They say that there is no trade exhibition that can compare with ours for the charming settings and the manner of display. This is the more extraordinary when one takes into consideration that our native industries have only become so prominent in the past three years.

"Plainly, we shall need further housing for man and beast, and in providing it we shall have to look upwards. The time may not be far distant when we will see horses at our show going to stables on a second floor, where they will be provided for as comfortably as now on the ground floor."

GOVERNMENT PARTY

When Mr. de Valera visited the Show he was accompanied by the Vice-President, Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly; the Minister for Finance, Mr. Sean MacEntee, and Mrs. MacEntee; the Minister for Industry and Commerce, Mr. Sean Lemass, and Mrs. Lemass; the Minister for Agriculture, Dr. J. Ryan, and Mrs. Ryan; the Minister for Justice, Mr. P. J. Ruttledge, and Mrs. Ruttledge; the Minister for Education, Mr. T. Derrig, and Mrs. Derrig; the Acting-Minister for Defence, Mr. G. Boland, and Mrs. Boland; the Minister for Lands, Senator Connolly, and the Chief of Staff of the Army, Major-General Brennan, with Mrs. Brennan.

The Government party was received and escorted to the Viceregal box by the President of the Society, Viscount Powerscourt; the Vice-presidents, Mr. Justice Wylie, Mr. D. R. Pack-Beresford, Colonel E. Farrell; Dr. Walter Starkie, a member of the Council; Dr. E. Bohane, the Director of the Society; and the Hon. Secretaries, Dr. Hackett and Mr. John Leonard.

With the official party in the box were also:—The French Minister, M. Guerlet, and Mme. Guerlet; the German Minister, Herr Wilhelm von Kuhlmann, and Frau Kuhlmann; the Italian Consul-General, Signor Romano Lodi Fe, and Signora Lodi Fe; the Envoy Extraordinary for the United States of America, Mr. Alvin Manfield Owsley, and Mrs. Owsley; the Belgian Consul-General, M. Goor, and Mme. Goor; the Consul for Sweden, Mr. H. Errickson; the Consul-General for the Netherlands, Mynheer I. R. A. Weenick; the Consul for Czechoslovakia and Mme. Ruzicka; the Swiss Consul-General, Dr. Bensigner, and Mme. Bensigner.

RECENT BELFAST TROUBLE

VIEWS AT TRADES COUNCIL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

The monthly meeting of the Belfast Trades Council was devoted almost exclusively to discussions on the recent riots.

Mr. Dawson Gordon, Chairman, explained how they had gone to the Lord Mayor with the proposal that all sections of the religious and political community should be called together to issue a joint appeal for peace, but unfortunately it was thought that would not be the proper thing. They were pleased to think they had been the first body to make a move to stir the public conscience. The clergy had then taken their lead.

In reference to the housing problem on the Glenard Estate, the Chairman reported a meeting with the builder, Mr. McKibbin. Mr. McKibbin was prepared to accept persons already in the houses under the usual tenancy requirements, or, if these could not be obtained, on the recommendation of the clergy or the St. Vincent de Paul Society. Mr. McKibbin proposed to complete the houses four or five at a time and then transfer the occupants.

Mr. Reavey (Railway Workers' Union) proposed a vote of confidence in all the actions taken by the Executive Committee during the riot period. This was seconded and adopted.

Mr. Reavey said that in view of the fact that the people who were causing the trouble were only being fined 40s. and given time to pay, and that these people were getting the necessary backing to carry on, could power not be given to a magistrate to take the unemployment or other relief card from such prisoners, and by some mark, impose a fine of 2s. or 2s. 6d. for ten or fifteen years towards the damage caused in the city.

AT THE SALUTE

CATHOLICS IN GERMANY

CONCERN OF THE POPE

SEES THE BISHOP OF BERLIN

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

VATICAN CITY, Friday.

THE POPE continues to be very perturbed about the position of Catholics in Germany and has given an audience to Count Preysing, Bishop of Berlin, with whom the situation was discussed.

To-day the Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano, publishes an inspired article written in the style of the Pope himself which returns to the attack on German methods of sterilisation and, in particular, on the recent speech of Dr. Frick, the Minister of the Interior, against Catholics.

The article states: "Slavery is execrable, not only when it makes man a chattel, but when it makes him a sterile brute."

With regard to Dr. Frick's statement that the Vatican might eventually change its outworn ideas about sterilisation, even as it did its opposition to the views of Copernicus and Galileo, the Osservatore Romano replies: "To Dr. Frick's remarks that not even the Vatican will be able to contest that the earth revolves round the sun, it is only necessary to recall that the one man to contest it to-day is the German Einstein.

BASED ON MATERIALISM

"The doctrine of heredity as is premised in the German laws is not 'scientific knowledge' and sterilisation is not the only method of making heredity effective."

The article proceeds to state that the Catholic Church preaches "the noble virtue of renunciation. The theory of sterilisation, on the other hand, does not believe in the spiritual nature, in conscience or in will. It believes only in compulsion and the surgeon's knife, and the operating table acquires a national significance.

"Sterilisation is based on materialism. It does not believe in education or in man. It is an arduous undertaking unless health can be identified with hygiene. Nations are not hospitals and convalescent wards."

HEAVY DEBT OF GERMANY

£1,500,000,000 OWED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

Germany now owes at home and abroad between 18 and 19 milliard marks, or about £1,500,000,000 at the official ruling rate. This is the deduction which may be drawn from careful estimates, coupled with official figures, which are published here to-night.

The Ministry of Finance states that Germany's consolidated debts on June 30th last amounted to 8,541,000,000 marks, to which must be added the debts in foreign currencies, including the Dawes and Young Loans, amounting to 1,724,000,000 marks.

The consolidated debts thus amount to 10,265,000,000 marks.

The floating debt on the same date had reached 2,903,000,000 marks.

Other debts to be added to the two latter amounts are 913,000,000 marks, plus 547,000,000 marks, tax credit certificates given to the Reichsbank as security for the work-creating programme, and, in addition, the sums spent on preliminary work-creating schemes and Germany's rearmament.

Figures for the two latter debts are not given officially, but unofficial financial experts here estimate the expenditure for the preliminary financing of the works' programme at 2,000,000,000 marks—which so far have not been consolidated—and the cost of rearming Germany so far at 2,250,000,000 marks.

A fair estimate of the total indebtedness of the Reich thus seems to be roughly 18,878 million marks.

STATION ON TOP OF DUMP

DISCOVERY AT ARRAS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ARRAS, Friday.

Ever since the War Arras Railway Station has been standing on a British ammunition dump.

The track is now being relaid, and excavations have brought the dump to light. It consists mainly of 4.5-inch shells. Already 250 of these have been extracted from the ground without accident.

DIPLOMAT KILLED IN CAR SMASH

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

METZ, Friday.

M. Divilkovsky, counsellor to the Soviet Embassy in Paris, was fatally injured in a motor accident near here to-day when travelling to Berlin, accompanied by his family. He was rushed to a hospital, where he died.

Mrs. Sarah Saylinhenkin, sister of the well-known composer, Irving Berlin, was killed yesterday by a fall from the roof of a four-storey building in New York.

SWITZERLAND NEXT?

EXPANSION OF ITALY

TICINO UNION PROPAGANDA

TRIAL FOR HIGH TREASON ORDERED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERNE, Friday.

THE Swiss Federal Council are taking a grave view of the propaganda which has been going on in the Ticino, the Italian-speaking part of Switzerland, for its union with Italy.

The Council have decided to prosecute on a charge of high treason, Signor Emilio Colombi and Signorina Bontempi, who have been carrying on a pro-Italian campaign in a small local paper, the Adula, in Bellinzona, and who have just been arrested.

The Federal Council consider that the correspondence which has been seized indicates that the two arrested persons and other supporters of the movement advocated by the Adula, are aiming at intervention by a foreign Power in the internal affairs of Switzerland.

Speaking on the occasion of the Swiss national festival last week, M. Minger, the Swiss President, warned other countries not to interfere in the internal affairs of Switzerland, and declared that the Swiss people would defend their independence with arms if necessary.

Rumours are current in the towns of the Swiss-Italian frontier to-day that a considerable number of deserters from the Italian Army have crossed the frontier into Switzerland during the past few days. Many of them are understood to belong to units under orders for service in East Africa.

Italian frontier guards are taking special precautions, and, consequently, deserters are forced to cross the frontier at wild and desolate parts of the Alps. The Ticino offers special attraction to the deserters, as they can most easily conceal themselves owing to the language and sympathy of the inhabitants.

ITALIAN ISLANDS ACTIVITY

RHODES A HOSPITAL BASE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ATHENS, Friday.

News of feverish activity in the Italian islands of Rhodes and Leros, in the Dodecanese, has been received here. According to these reports Rhodes has been converted by the Italian authorities into a large hospital base, to which all cases from the Abyssinian front are being transported instead of to Italy.

So many men, it is stated, are suffering from the effects of the tropical climate that it is feared depression might be caused in Italy if they were allowed to return home. The two large and palatial hotels in Rhodes have been turned into hospitals for their benefit.

Leros, on the other hand, has been converted into a fortress bristling with guns, where curfew is rigidly enforced and everyone has to be indoors at 6 p.m. Fresh troops are being landed in the island and no one is allowed near the fortifications under pain of severe punishment.

VOLUNTEERS FOR ETHIOPIA

MANY APPLICATIONS IN BERLIN

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

Applications from foreigners who wish to join the Abyssinian Army are now being received by the Ethiopian Consulate here at the rate of a hundred a day.

The number of applications so far received totals several thousands, and an extra staff has had to be employed at the Consulate to cope with the current work.

The applications do not come only from Germany. Many have been received from Britain, Poland, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and other countries, while one is from a responsible resident of the Gold Coast. He declares that he can put at the disposal of the Abyssinians within a week ten thousand men and one hundred native girls to act as "Black Cross" ambulance workers.

All the applications are being refused, because, apart from political reasons, it is felt that many Europeans are unsuited for the physical conditions.

FREEDOM OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN

PROPOSAL TO HONOUR SIR JOHN LAVERY

The conferring upon Sir John Lavery of the Freedom of the City of Dublin will be the subject of a notice of motion to be put forward at a meeting of the Dublin Corporation on next Monday.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman Alfred Byrne, T.D.), will propose: "That the Dublin City Council, desiring to express its appreciation of the action of Sir John Lavery, R.A., R.H.A., in presenting to the City of Dublin the important historical group of his pictures, hereby resolves to confer upon him the honorary freedom of the City of Dublin, and that he be accordingly elected and admitted an honorary burgess of the County borough of Dublin."

CAPE FLIGHT ABANDONED

RECORD HOP TO CAIRO

ENGINE NOW TO BE OVERHAULED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAIRO, Friday.

AFTER creating a record for the first stage of his flight as far as Cairo, Mr. T. Campbell Black this morning decided to abandon his attempt to fly to Cape Town in thirty-six hours, and he is returning to London.

Mr. Black told Reuter in an interview that his 'plane had developed engine trouble, and that he was afraid that one of the engines would have to be overhauled.

"I noticed that the feed pump was not working satisfactorily some ninety minutes before reaching Cairo," he said.

"The damage could, of course, be repaired here, and I could proceed after a few hours without hampering my attempt on the record, but I want to keep to my prepared schedule."

He added that he had decided to return to London by easy stages. "I intend to attempt the flight again very shortly," he declared.

Mr. Black landed here this morning after having covered the 2,240 miles separating Hatfield and Cairo in 11 hours and 18 minutes. The next stop was to have been Kisumu, in Kenya.

The 'plane in which he and Mr. J. H. G. McArthur, as second pilot, are flying is a D. H. Comet. They were hoping not only to reach the Cape in thirty-six hours, but also to be back in England again within five days.

The present record for the flight from England to Cape Town is held by Mrs. Mollison, who made the trip in four days six hours and fifty-four minutes in December, 1932. Mr. Black was aiming to beat this record by a large margin, his necessary overall speed for the 7,300 miles of the flight being some 200 miles per hour, including the stops at Cairo and Kisumu.

BELFAST RIOT SEQUEL

ACQUITTED MEN TO BE INTERNED

Francis Coogan, of Baker street, and Daniel Toner, of Christian place, who were charged at Belfast Police Court yesterday with illegal possession of firearms, were discharged, the magistrate saying that there was no prima facie case against them.

On leaving the dock they were conducted to the police cells to await completion of an internment order issued by the Minister of Home Affairs under the Civil Authorities Special Powers Act.

Both men were arrested after shots had been fired at an Orange procession at the corner of Royal avenue and North street on July 12th.

On a similar charge Joseph McDonald, of Massereene street, was returned for trial in custody.

QUOTA SYSTEM TO GO

FRANCE TO HAVE IMPORT DUTIES COMMITTEE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

Paving the way to abolition of the quota system one of the new decree laws announced last night sets up a Council on Customs Tariff Reform, on the model of the British Import Duties Advisory Committee created in 1932.

The report to the President on the proposal observes that the British Committee has "rendered the greatest service to the British Government, and enabled it during a period of instability to develop national economic activity as regards both industry and agriculture."

The report observes that the quota system renders extremely difficult the conclusion of commercial agreements conducive to the increase of France's foreign trade. Protection, it adds, remains necessary pending stabilisation of world economic conditions. Nevertheless, it is possible in certain cases to modify the form of protection of industry and agriculture by substituting a tariff increase for the quota.

NEW B. B. C. CONTROLLER

SIR C. CARPENDALE TO REMAIN DEPUTY-GENERAL

The B.B.C. announced last night that, in view of recent adjustments in its organisation and of impending changes in the higher staff and the inauguration of the experimental television service, Sir Charles Carpendale's term of office has been further extended, and he will stay on for the present as Deputy Director-General.

The vacancy thus created in the post of Controller of the Administration Division will be filled by the promotion of Mr. B. E. Nicolls. These appointments will take effect on October 1.

REMARKABLE COLLISION

FLYING BOAT AND YACHT

CREWS ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY

A ROYAL AIR FORCE amphibian flying boat collided off Calshot yesterday with a 6-metre yacht which was returning from Cowes Regatta. The flying boat was taking off from the water when it struck the mast of the yacht. The Dragon, which is owned by Mr. H. F. Edwards.

The mast was snapped off close to the deck, and fell, with the sails, into the sea. The machine was undamaged, except for one wing, and the pilot was able to alight safely on the water.

Motor launches rushed out from Calshot Air Station to lend assistance, and found that the occupants of the flying boat and of the yacht had all escaped serious injury.

EYE-WITNESS'S STATEMENT

The flying boat was able to taxi into the air station, and a launch took the yacht in tow to Calshot and then to Hamble.

An eye-witness of the collision was Captain D. H. MacMillan, Hydrographical Surveyor to Southampton Harbour Board, who was in the Harbour Board launch a few hundred yards away.

In the collision the gear of the yacht was torn away, he said, but the yacht managed to right herself. The mast had snapped off about three or four feet from the deck, and the sails were in the water.

The 'plane managed to land the right side up, and shortly afterwards taxied back to Calshot.

"I immediately signalled to Calshot advising them to send a doctor, and put on full speed and made for the yacht. There was no one visible until I arrived, and then I found that the only occupants were a man named Jupe and a boy. The boy was unhurt, but the man had bruises on his arms and neck, and appeared to be badly shaken.

"I rendered first aid, and they were then towed into Calshot." The Dragon had been taking part in the day's racing at Cowes, and was on her way back to Hamble when the collision occurred.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

WARNING FIGURES

The Times says in a leading article to-day, suggested by a letter to the Editor on the declining population of the British Empire:—The national and the imperial problems of population are inseparable. If immigrants of British stock are to fill the empty spaces, then England must provide the surplus; if foreign immigrants are to be admitted, then the sooner the fact is announced the better for peace and security. Nations far less prosperous and no less overcrowded than Britain have checked the falling birth rate by simple adjustments of taxation and other measures to encourage early marriage in the prolific and healthy classes. Their leaders, it is true, think in terms of power, numbers and expansion, and believe that space should go to the energetic and the fertile. But population difficulties, like so many pressing problems, cry for international action if they are not to be solved by force; and who is to take the initiative—the nation with the space or the nation with the numbers? To breed for breeding's sake is no solution for our own or for any other nation's difficulties.

It is not for this country to join in the race without thought for the consequences and the alternatives. Racial pride must be tempered with economic sense. What matters is that the full implications of the present British birth rate and the prospect for the future should be worked out with official encouragement, and the public educated before the population has become stationary. Some policy there will have to be. While it is talked about, the population of the world will be increasing yearly by 20,000,000. Asia will be growing and Europe dwindling. It will be a dangerous moment for the British race to stand still.

DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED

CASE OF COMMANDANT O'BRIEN

The following announcement was issued last evening by the Free State Government Information Bureau:—

"The sentence of death passed on Leo O'Brien, who was convicted of the murder of John A. Stokes, has been commuted to one of penal servitude for life."

O'Brien, who held the rank of Commandant in the Free State Army, and is 34 years of age, was convicted after a second trial on June 27th, of the murder of his brother-in-law, John Stokes, an official of the Department of Education, by shooting him with a revolver. The Court of Criminal Appeal subsequently rejected an application for leave to appeal against the decision. Next Wednesday had been fixed as the date of the execution.

IMPORTATION OF ONIONS

FURTHER QUOTA ORDER

A further order under the Control of Imports Act, 1934, in connection with the regulation of the importation of onions was made by the Executive Council yesterday.

Under this order the period 2nd September to the 31st October, 1935, has been appointed as the first quota period, and the quota for that period has been fixed at 20,000 cwts.

Importers of onions are reminded that none but registered importers will be entitled to apply for licences for the importation of onions during the quota period which has been appointed, and that applications for licences must be made on or before the 19th instant, i.e., 14 clear days before the commencement of the quota period as prescribed by the Control of Imports Act, 1934. Importers who have not yet registered should, therefore, communicate immediately with the Department of Industry and Commerce, Lord Edward street, Dublin, where all information concerning registration and applications for licences may be obtained.

NEW FRENCH DECREES

LECTURE BY M. LAVAL

TOULON AND BREST QUIET

SUB-PREFECTS PUBLICLY CONGRATULATED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

FOR the first time in the history of the Third Republic all the Prefects of France—with two exceptions—assembled to-day in Paris for a lecture by the Prime Minister.

The two absentees were the Prefects of the Var Department, in which is situated Toulon, and of Finistere, of which Brest is the chief city. These two officials were otherwise engaged in their disturbed cities.

M. Laval, flanked by his Ministers, gave the others a talk at the Quai d'Orsay on the mechanism of the new decree laws.

In the course of this afternoon's gathering M. Laval particularly commended the attitude adopted by the Sub-Prefects of Brest and Toulon during the disturbances in their towns and publicly congratulated them.

SOCIALISTS AND RIOTS

A meeting of the leaders of all Left wing parties summoned by the Socialist leader (M. Blum) and the Communist (M. Ramette) was attended by only a dozen deputies at the Chamber this afternoon. The object of the meeting was to discuss what action should be taken following the riots at Brest and Toulon.

M. Blum addressed the gathering, and it was decided to send commissions of inquiry to both ports. These will report to a further meeting of the Left groups on the 13th.

M. Laval (the Premier) meanwhile received M. Jouhaux (Secretary of the General Confederation of Labour) to-day. He is anxious that the latter should use all his influence with Socialist trade unionists to calm the present anti-Governmental agitation.

SHOPS CLOSED IN TOULON

UNDERTAKING BY TRADE UNION LEADERS

After last night's rioting, with its toll of dead and injured, Brest and Toulon had a quiet day. In Brest the workers at the arsenal reported for duty this morning and the day's work passed normally. This evening, when the gates were opened, they streamed out peacefully.

In Toulon the naval arsenal also worked as usual, and there were no disorders when the workers left this evening, but the town is by no means normal. All the shops are closed, and hundreds of smashed windows bear evidence to the violence of last night's rioting.

Mobile Guards, with rifles and steel helmets, and Senegalese sharpshooters, in field kit, are patrolling the streets and guarding strategic points.

Local trade union leaders have given the Maritime Prefect, Vice-Admiral Berthelot, an undertaking that they will urge the workers to remain calm. This afternoon the Vice-Admiral declared: "The workers, unfortunately, have served as a pedestal for professional rowdies. They themselves are deeply upset at the grave turn events took last night."

He was referring to the action of the dockyard workers who sent a deputation to-day to assure him that they disavowed the rioters and were anxious not to be confused with them.

FOREIGNERS ARRESTED

Seventy-three suspects arrested in the Toulon rioting last night were examined to-day, and 33 were released and will be summoned later to appear in the Police Court on minor charges, involving fines. The remaining 40 have been detained, and will be tried shortly before the Correctional Court. Among them are an Italian, a Spaniard and a Pole.

At 9 o'clock this evening the city was absolutely quiet. The citizens appeared to have obeyed the appeal made by the Mayor to remain at home, for very few persons were seen in the streets.

BREST AND LE HAVRE

A Divisional Commissioner of Police has been sent to Brest to investigate the causes of the recent rioting. It appears that the results so far have been negative.

He is understood to have established that the German arrested on Wednesday night was not connected with the riot. His papers were in perfect order, and the "dagger" which he was reported to have been carrying was simply an awl used in his work.

The fact that three known Communists arrived in Brest from Paris just before the riots is established, butt there appears to be no proof that they preached disaffection in the dockyard.

Shortly after two o'clock the liner Champlain sailed for New York, two days late. An hour later she was followed by the Colombie on a cruise to the Baltic. At 6.15 p.m. the Lafayette sailed on time for Canada. Among her passengers are 320 French ex-Service men on a visit to their Canadian comrades.

WHEN KING EDWARD PLAYED CRICKET

It was announced yesterday that the Prince of Wales has presented to Norfolk Cricket Club an old score-book he has found in a cupboard at St. James's Palace. The book contains a record of the only known match in which King Edward participated.

The match was played between the Zingari and the Gentlemen of Norfolk at Sandringham Park on July 17th and 18th, 1866. King Edward, then Prince of Wales, went in first for the Zingari, but was bowled second ball for a "duck" by Charles Wright, of Dereham. The Prince batted only once, because the Zingari beat Norfolk by a single innings.

DUBLIN ELECTRICITY AND WATER SUPPLIES

EXPERTS APPROVE THE LIFFEY SCHEME

SUBJECT only to agreement being reached on questions of financial details between the Electricity Supply Board and the Corporation, as the authority responsible for providing water supplies for Dublin and its outlying suburbs from Greystones to Howth, it may now be taken as reasonably certain that the Griffith-Moynihan-Kettle scheme, for supplementary electricity and domestic water supplies from the proposed Poulaphouca reservoir, will very soon receive official approval.

As previously announced, final decisions by the Electricity Supply Board and the Corporation have only awaited the final report of Professor Myer Peter, one of the four European experts who examined and reported to the Government on the original Shannon scheme, and Herr Buchi—who co-operated with Mr. Kettle in preparing one of the Liffey schemes submitted to the Oireachtas prior to the adoption of the Shannon undertaking. Some months ago Herr Buchi reported favourably to the Corporation on the Poulaphouca project, but further research was then stated to be necessary to satisfy the Electricity Supply Board upon the power-production aspect of the joint undertaking.

GRIFFITH-MOYNIHAN SCHEME

As the result of these further investigations Herr Buchi and Professor Myer Peter have now made a final report to the Electricity Supply Board, in which, subject to reservations of some points of detail, they recommend the adoption of the joint proposals of Sir John Griffith, Mr. Moynihan, the City Engineer, and Mr. Kettle, for the utilisation of the Liffey for both power and water supply services.

It is understood that the report will be considered at a joint conference of the E.S.B and the Corporation within the next two or three weeks; and, in view of the urgency of the city's need for increased water resources, it is not to be anticipated that there will be further serious delay in reaching final decisions.

FUTURE OF THE SHANNON

An interesting phase of the experts' recommendations deals with certain modifications of the Shannon scheme as originally planned. It is understood that this aspect of the report is based upon experience derived during recent periods of abnormally low rainfalls.

Should the report be accepted by both parties, it seems to be likely that tenders for certain sections of the work may be invited within the next two or three months, provided that legislation necessary for the acquisition of lands for the new reservoir and other purposes is given priority by both Houses of the Oireachtas.

One of the major questions which are yet to be determined is, whether the E.S.B. or the Corporation will assume responsibility for the construction of the Poulaphuca dam and reservoir. In view of the fact that the Corporation's requirements will be met by less than one-fifth of the water to be impounded, it has been suggested that the reservoir section of the work should be assigned to the Electricity Supply Board, and that the water supply, conduits, service reservoirs and other works not concerned with electricity supplies should be undertaken by the Corporation. Such an arrangement, it is pointed out, would tend to expedite, rather than to impede, rapid progress, as the building of the aqueducts and service reservoirs would require a longer period for completion than the construction of the reservoir works at Poulaphuca.

NATURAL ADVANTAGES

Interviewed yesterday on certain technical aspects of the project, a civil engineering authority expressed the view that the construction of the Poulaphouca dam should prove to be an eminently simple and economic piece of engineering work. He knew of no other case in which the natural configuration of the area and its geological formation would permit of impounding a 5,000-acre lake as the result of constructing an embankment about 200 feet wide and 100 feet high. He found it difficult to understand why such natural conditions were not taken advantage of when the Vartry scheme was adopted. Had Sir John Grey and his advisers been able to foresee to-day's demands for water he had no doubt that the Poulaphouca dam would have been built sixty years ago.

His view was that the whole hydro-electric and water supply scheme now proposed should be completed in two, or at the outside three years from its initiation. While certain preliminary works might possibly be carried out by direct labour, he was quite convinced that the services of competent contractors would be necessary to expedite operations and keep the cost of the undertaking within reasonable limits.

GROUSE SHOOTING SEASON

PROSPECTS IN THE NORTH

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

Grouse shooting prospects in Northern Ireland for the 12th are satisfactory. Birds are plentiful and strong on the wing in most mountain districts. The favourable weather during the nesting season, and the dry, warm months which succeeded contributed largely to the formation of coveys of healthy and matured birds.

In the Sperrin Mountains, Co. Tyrone, there have been some depredations by foxes, but in recent months the farmers have waged a war on the foxes, and many of them have been shot.

In the Antrim Mountains the grouse are numerous. Over 100 foxes were trapped by an expert during the months of April, May and June under the auspices of the North of Ireland Game Protection Society, so that the mountain range from Ballycastle to Glenarm has been safe for grouse and other game.

In Co. Fermanagh the outlook for the grouse shooting season also is favourable.

SHEEP SMUGGLING BY BOAT

FARM LABOURER FINED £200

Sixty-six sheep, transported by boat from Moville, in the Irish Free State, across six miles of Lough Foyle to Magilligan Strand, Co. Londonderry, were left grazing in the charge of a young farm labourer.

The suspicions of the police were aroused, and last night at Limavady James Bradley, of Carnagarve, Co. Donegal, was charged with being knowingly concerned in the importation of the sheep for the purpose of evading the payment of Customs duties.

A policeman said that Bradley, in a statement, admitted being concerned in bringing the sheep from Moville in a boat. The men landed at Magilligan between 3 and 4 o'c. on Thursday morning and drove the animals up the sand and left them in the rough ground. He was left in charge of them with instructions that they were to be loaded on lorries which would call for them.

Mr. Hanna, the magistrate, said that it was a most flagrant case of smuggling, but Bradley was only a scapegoat, and the real villain was not before the Court. He would be fined £200 or in default one month's imprisonment.

His counsel appealed for leniency, and said that Bradley was only a labouring boy, not yet twenty, and the eldest of a family of six, more or less dependent on him. He had been asked to give a hand in the shipping of the sheep, and, employment being scarce, he took the job. He was only a very subordinate agent.

IRISH AERO CLUB "AT HOME"

An "at home" will be held by the Irish Aero Club at Baldonnel to-morrow. Included in the programme will be the annual handicap race for the Irish Cup, presented by Lady Nelson, and a landing competition, the prize for which will be a camera, presented by E. J. Dease. The limit machine in the race will take off at 3.30 p.m., and the first machine in the landing competition will take off at 5.30 p.m. The race will consist of three laps of a 25-mile course, and the machines should be in view from the aerodrome for the greater part of the time. Another attraction will be a display of gliding by the Baldonnel Gliding Club.

FATHER SEES CHILD KILLED

EVIDENCE AT CORK INQUEST

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Friday.

A father, who saw his child killed in Cork last evening, gave evidence to-day at the inquest at the South Infirmary on the body of Ellen Murray ($3\frac{1}{2}$), of 25 Sullivan's Quay, Cork, who was knocked down and fatally injured near her home by a motor van.

The father, Michael Murray, stated that he sent his two daughters to an adjoining shop for matches. When they were crossing the road on their way back he saw the motor van turn into the street and strike both of them. Mary, the elder girl, escaped with slight injuries, but Ellen was fatally hurt.

The inquest was adjourned.

Armagh, had narrow escapes when the motor car in which they were travelling from Aughnacloy towards Augher this evening failed to negotiate a sharp corner at Favor Royal Bridge. The vehicle, which was driven by Mr. Stewart, dashed over the fence. The occupants were thrown into the river below. Fortunately both escaped with a ducking and minor injuries.

THE LIMERICK DISTURBANCES

BATCH OF COURT CASES

MAN FROM THE NORTH SENTENCED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LIMERICK, Friday.

IN the Limerick District Court to-day twenty-one defendants were charged with complicity in the rioting in Limerick on the night of July 20, when a Protestant church, the residences of two Protestant clergymen, and several premises owned by Protestants were stoned.

Three of the defendants: David McNally, Lower Gerald Griffin street; Gerard Lee, New street, and Edward Dignan, Naughton's lane, were charged with being implicated in the breaking of the windows of Messrs. Stockill and Widdess.

Evidence against McNally showed that he was observed by two Guards throwing stones at Messrs. Stockill's premises. He was not seen to do any damage, but when brought to the barrack four stones were found in his pockets. McNally admitted firing stones.

The evidence against Lee and Dignan was that they were in a crowd during the rioting.

FROM THE NORTH

McNally, in cross-examination, admitted that he was from the Six Counties, but denied he was a ringleader of the rioters or that he had encouraged youths to attack Protestant residents. He was baptised a Catholic. He was not going round the city pretending to become a convert.

District Justice Flood sentenced him to three months' imprisonment, and bound Lee and Dignan to the peace for twelve months.

In the case against Mary Mulqueen, charged with conduct calculated to lead to a breach of the peace, the evidence showed that the defendant, while in a crowd, was shouting. She referred to the treatment of Northern Catholics, and refused to move on when requested.

She was, on the application of the State Solicitor, bound to the peace for twelve months.

On a charge of refusing to obey the Guards, Robert Mahony also was bound to the peace for six months.

The charges against Patrick Lynch, Mary Lynch, Joseph Treacy, Francis Treacy, and Patrick Royce, of unlawful assembly were dismissed in the absence of sufficient evidence to convict.

The evidence in the charge against William O'Neill went to show that he was one of a party of four or five who emerged from Patrick street during the disturbances. When searched stones were found in his possession.

The defendant stated that in the course of the rioting he picked up two stones, but had no intention of breaking any windows. He did not agree with the destruction of property, and was only out on the occasion in question viewing the damage done. He did not take part in the disturbances, and the only windows he saw broken were those of the Protestant Young Men's Association.

Mr. McNiece, for the defendant, said that O'Neill had never been previously charged.

The Justice bound the defendant over in bails of £25 and two sureties of £15 to keep the peace for six months.

The case against Mary O'Brien and Mary Anne Healy, charged with conduct calculated to lead to breach of the peace, was dismissed, as they denied any complicity in the disturbances.

GAVE LIFE TO SAVE EMPLOYES

BELFAST MAN'S SACRIFICE

The heroism of Mr. Ernest Powell, who died from shock following burns received while rescuing girl workers at the fire in Messrs. Sefton's premises, Belfast, on August 2, was related at the inquest yesterday. The Coroner (Mr. T. E. Alexander), returning a verdict of "death from shock," said:—

"This is a very sorrowful and tragic fatality to a popular and gallant citizen. But the tragedy of it is, if I may say so, soothed to a certain extent by the exemplary courage and bravery of the deceased man. He happened to be outside, but the moment he noticed the fire he dashed into the burning building and did everything possible to allay and calm their fears. He had every opportunity of saving himself, but courageously stood by the girls in smoke and flames until every one of them had been rescued. He eventually was rescued himself, with his clothes in flames.

"He showed a courage and sacrifice and an indifference to death worthy of the greatest heroes. Sacrifice and service to help his fellows was part of the good nature which God had given him. He sacrificed his own life to save the lives of his employés. Certainly, but for his heroism many more lives would have been lost. The firemen deserved to be complimented upon the courage and coolness they displayed in rescue. My heart beats in sympathy with the deceased man's widow and family of young children in their hour of sorrow and grief, and I know they have the sympathy of the whole community."

U.S. JAMBOREE CANCELLED

PRESIDENT AND EPIDEMIC

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

Owing to an infantile paralysis epidemic in surrounding States, President Roosevelt has cancelled a National Boy Scout Jamboree which was to have been held here from August 21st to 30th. Fourteen years ago Mr. Roosevelt's own life was seriously threatened by infantile paralysis. He announces the cancellation of the Jamboree "with great regret."

Some 35,000 boys were to have attended the event, including a British contingent, and it is reported that some are now en route from France, Spain, South America and the Philippines.

Already 1,400 tents have been erected on the Potomac River, and these will now have to be dismantled. An address which the President was to have made at the Jamboree will be delivered in a national broadcast on September 21st.

Reuter was informed at the offices of the Boy Scouts' Association in London today that a party of fifty-five British Scouts who were to have attended the Jamboree had not yet sailed.

DUMFRIES BY-ELECTION

CONSERVATIVES TO BACK LIBERAL

The Executive Committee of the Dumfriesshire Unionist Association yesterday agreed to co-operate with the Liberals in the coming by-election in the promotion of the candidature as National Government candidate of Sir Henry Fildes, formerly Liberal M.P. for Stockport. The Unionist Association, however, held itself free to take what action it might decide at the general election in the circumstances then presenting themselves.

This decision was later submitted to the General Council of the Association, and it was adopted by a large majority against an amendment to take no part in the election at all.

More than 900 foreign scientists representing thirty-seven countries were among the 1,500 delegates who attended the opening ceremony at Leningrad yesterday of the 15th International Physiology Congress.

OBITUARY

LORD WOOLAVINGTON

Lord Woolavington, a famous owner and breeder of racehorses, died yesterday at his Sussex home, Lavington Park, near Petworth, after a long illness. He was 86. Lord Woolavington as James Buchanan began his business career as a commercial traveller. At his death he was Chairman of James Buchanan and Co., Ltd., London, and W. P. Lowrie and Co., Ltd., Glasgow. He was created a baronet in 1920 and a baron in 1922. There is no heir. In the short period of thirty years Lord Woolavington became a millionaire, was elected a member of the Jockey Club and built up a world-famous racing stud. He also made a name for his great benefactions to hospitals and other causes. He twice won the Derby. His wife died in October, 1918. The only child is a daughter.

Lord Woolavington had been ill for about nine months, and his medical attendants included Lord Dawson of Penn. He recovered sufficiently to be conveyed to his house at Potters Bar, but at his express wish he was brought back to Lavington Park for Goodwood Week, during which several very old friends stayed at the house.

APPEALS TO PRIVY COUNCILS

CORPORATION AND MAGISTRATES

PROPOSED ACTION IN THE NORTH

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

TWO appeals from Northern Ireland have been sent forward for consideration by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. One is an appeal by the Belfast Corporation against an education levy imposed by the Northern Parliament upon the basis of 1s. in the £ on local rates as a contribution from the rates to the cost of educational services (principally the salaries of elementary school teachers).

The Belfast Corporation contends that the Northern Parliament has no power, under the Government of Ireland Act, to levy upon the rates and use the proceeds for relieving an educational State charge, while the Government maintains that it is following the British principle of a contribution from local authorities towards the salaries of teachers, and that it has been urged to make the levy upon representations put forward by the British Treasury.

In the meantime the levy has not been imposed on the rates in Belfast, but the Northern Ireland Ministry of Finance has given notice of meeting the default by deducting a corresponding sum, roughly £90,000, from grants payable by the Government to the Corporation.

In accordance with the Government of Ireland Act, the appeal was sent by the Corporation to the Governor of Northern Ireland, who has forwarded it to the proper quarter in London. The Corporation has engaged eminent counsel to argue the case before the Judicial Committee, and the Northern Government will be represented by the Attorney-General, assisted by English barristers.

THE MAGISTRATES

The Northern Ireland Magistrates' Association has forwarded a petition to the King against the Criminal Justice and Summary Jurisdiction Bill, which abolishes most of the judicial functions of the justices of the peace. The petition was forwarded through the Home Secretary (Sir John Simon), who has been in communication with the Association, and has made certain observations on the petition. These will be considered by a special meeting of the Association next week, when a decision will be taken whether an appeal should be lodged with the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

The petition to the King prays that His Majesty may be pleased to direct the Governor to reserve the bill for the signification of the King's pleasure, or, in the alternative, that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council be directed to consider whether the bill, as it refers to the powers of the magistrates, is beyond the powers of the subordinate Parliament of Northern Ireland.

The bill received the Royal assent in June, through the Governor of Northern Ireland, and certain provisions came into operation on July 24, but the portions of the Act relating to the powers of the unpaid magistrates are not to come into force until September 1. Its operation, however, may be postponed pending a decision in regard to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

AMMUNITION IN PARCEL

BELFAST POLICE ALLEGATION

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

To-day in the Belfast Custody Court John B. Hoey, Springmount street, was charged before Mr. H. Toppin, R.M., with being in possession of ammunition, with intent to endanger life.

Head-Constable Kenny said that at 12.30 that morning he, with Sergeant Armstrong and Constable Crozier, saw the prisoner running from Foreman street to M'Tier street. He had a parcel under his left arm. Witness asked him what was in the parcel and he said: "A pair of boots." Witness took accused man to Brown square barrack, and in his presence opened and examined the parcel

He found it was a cardboard boot box, wrapped in an English newspaper, dated August 8, 1935, and tied with cord.

It contained 151 rounds of assorted rifle ammunition.

The parcel also contained 17 charges and 4 sporting cartridges 12 bore No. 5 shot. At the police office he formally charged the prisoner, who made no reply.

Accused man was remanded for a week in custody.

INSTITUTE OF THE MOTOR TRADE

PRESENTATION TO HONORARY SECRETARY

In appreciation of his work in connection with the first national convention of the Institute of the Motor Trade (Incorporated), Mr. T. J. Tanham, F.I.M.T., last night in the Central Hotel, Dublin, was made a presentation by the Free State delegates who attended the convention. Mr. Tanham is honorary secretary and chief Free State organiser of the Institute, and had been responsible for the organising of the Irish party to the convention, which was held at Birmingham on July 4, 5 and 6 last.

The Chairman (Mr. R. W. Archer), in making the presentation, which took the form of a chiming clock, said that it gave him the utmost pleasure to express in this tangible manner the feeling the Committee of the Institute and the fellows and members had for their honorary secretary and organiser. The trip to Birmingham, which was the culmination of many long years of hard work by Mr. Tanham, could not have been more enjoyable. Mr. Tanham was, he felt, the only man who could have carried out the programme, and they owed to him a debt of gratitude for his ability as organiser.

Replying, Mr. Tanham said that there were many people who had spent their whole lives organising the motor trade in the Free State, and they were better deserving of praise than he was. For that reason he felt doubly honoured that night, when the members were making him that excellent presentation. His one great satisfaction, as organiser of the Birmingham trip, was the Institute's fine response: that had meant a great deal to him, and had made for the success of their party. Considering the distance, and that it was one of the busiest times of the season in the motor trade, the response of the members had been remarkable, indeed. Mr. Tanham then went on to speak of the convention, and spoke of the "magnificent" hospitality which they had received at Birmingham.

The English people they had met, he said, had a great regard for Ireland and her people. There had been a rush with applications for next year's convention, but he knew that they had only to say the word and it would be granted to Dublin. There were 200 members of their Institute in the Free State, a very creditable total, but there was room for improvement if the Institute was to make any real steady progress.

Mr. L. J. Callow (President, I.M.T.A., Irish Section) also spoke in praise of Mr. Tanham.

The attendance of members and fellows, apart from those already mentioned, included:—Messrs. W. J. Henderson, H. J. Ging, J. J. Jameson, R. C. Thompson, A. S. Hudson, G. Mackenzie, E. G. Fagan, A. Crafter, J. Hope, J. A. Duggan, F. Duggan, C. Drumm, E. Curling, W. Withers, E. J. Shannon, M. McStay.

NEXT WEEK'S COMPETITIONS

FLYING KILO AND HILL CLIMB

AN UNFORTUNATE CLASH

IT is unfortunate that the two very interesting competitions arranged for Saturday next could not have been fixed for different dates. One is the Knock Club's flying kilometre competition, to be held on the Castledawson-Toomebridge road, and the other is the Dublin University Club's annual hill climb, which this year has been transferred from Mount Venus to Kilternan.

The flying kilometre is the first event of its type to be held in Northern Ireland, and the first in Ireland for a number of years. It will probably be the first kilometre speed event including a class for cars ever held in this country.

The stretch of road to be used has a splendid surface, and has an up gradient of one in 220. Very high speeds should be possible, and it is to be regretted that some of the fastest men will prefer to be at Kilternan.

Entries must be made by Wednesday next. There are classes for motor cycles in all the popular cubic capacity sizes and for cars up to 800 c.c., from 800 to 1,100 c.c. and over 1,100 c.c.

At Kilternan there will be the following classes:—Motor cycles up to 350 c.c., unlimited c.c., and all-comers handicap, motor cars' open handicap, open scratch and up to 1,500 c.c. handicap. Entries close to-day.

The motor cycle events will incorporate the Southern Centre M.C.U.I. hill-climb championships.

Kilternan is not likely to be much faster than Mount Venus, but it is a much safer hill, and the University Club expect the event to be very interesting.

WOODS IN SWEDEN

Stanley Woods is to ride a Husquvarna in Sunday's Swedish Grand Prix race. It was upon a Husquvarna that he rode in last year's Tourist Trophy races.

He will return to Ireland to compete, a fortnight later, in the Ulster Grand Prix, in which he will ride the Moto Guzzi which Tenni, the Italian rider, rode in the Senior T.T. race.

Woods is not giving away any information about his plans for next year, but it would cause no surprise if he drove a Velocette in many of the most important races.

He is using the air a lot now in travelling to and from the continent and part of his journey from England to Sweden was by 'plane.

THE LATE MR. GEORGE RUSSELL

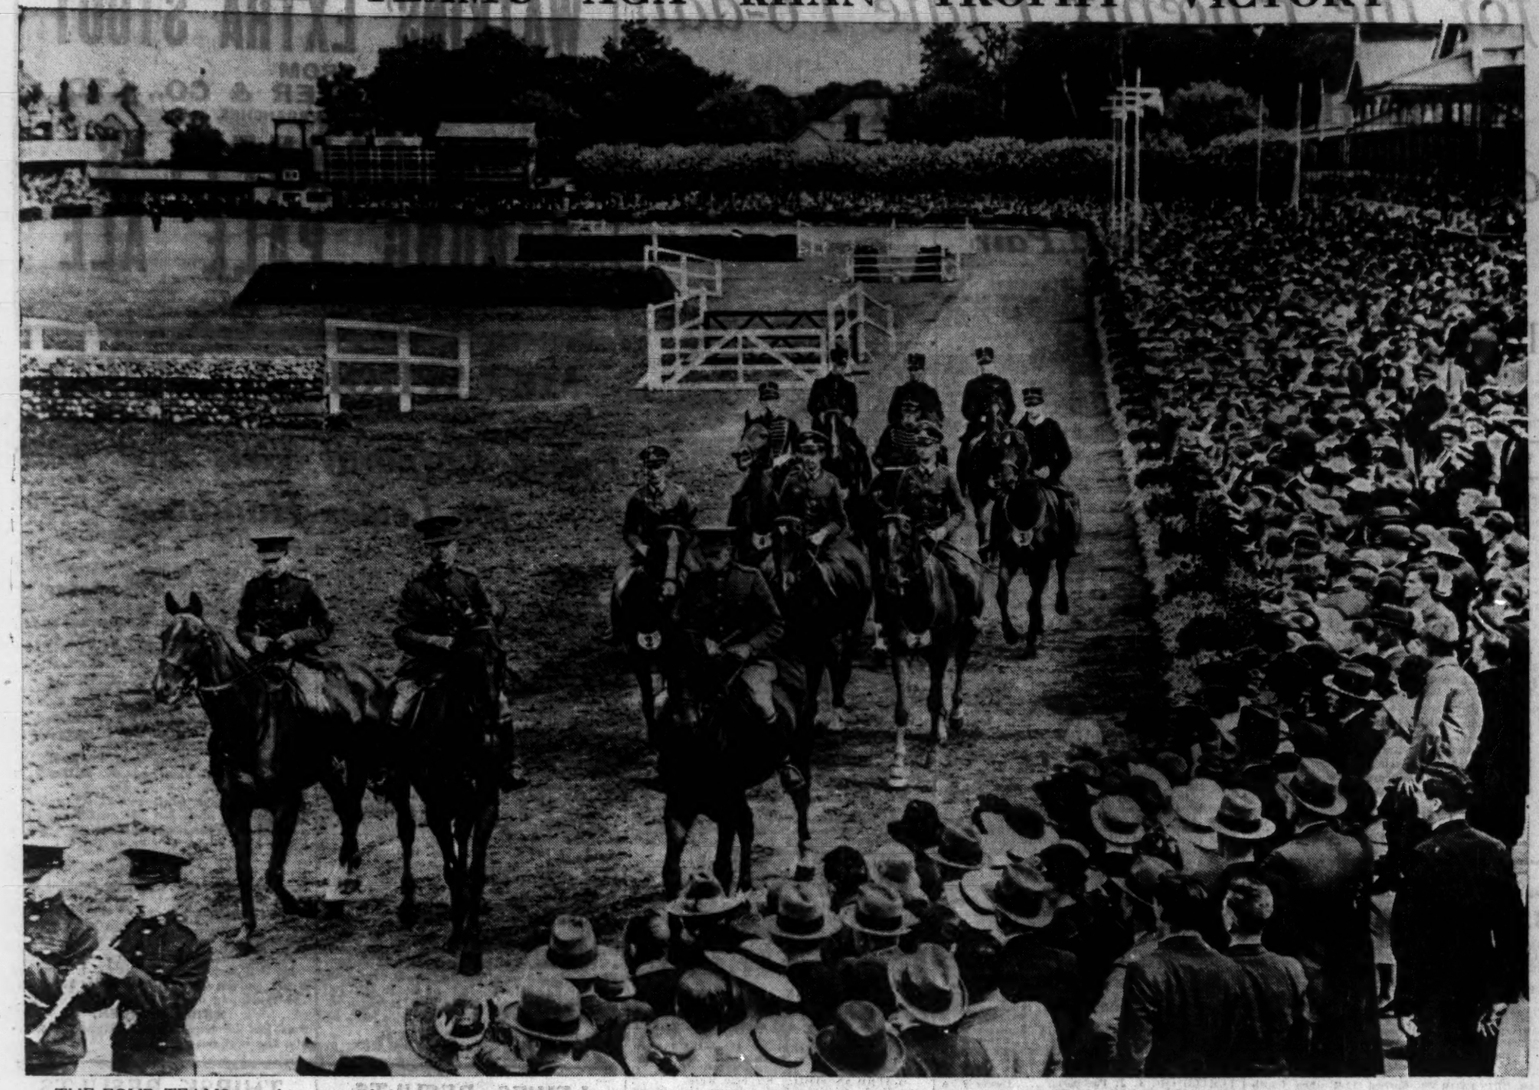

At their meeting this week, the members of the Irish Agricultural Organisation Society expressed deep regret at the passing of Mr. George W. Russell (A.E.), to whose relatives they extended their deep sympathy.

"We pay to his memory the tribute of our gratitude for the services he rendered to the movement we represent," stated the resolution of condolence passed by the meeting. "His advocacy of agricultural co-operation as a social ideal won for our movement the commendation of the best minds of our time, while his practical counsels were sought and valued by the society in the discharge of its functions. What literature could do for the spread of co-operation among Irish farmers was amply and ably provided by him."

The resolution added that if there was a future for agricultural co-operation in Ireland, Mr. Russell would stand prominent among those to whom the country would be indebted for that benefit.

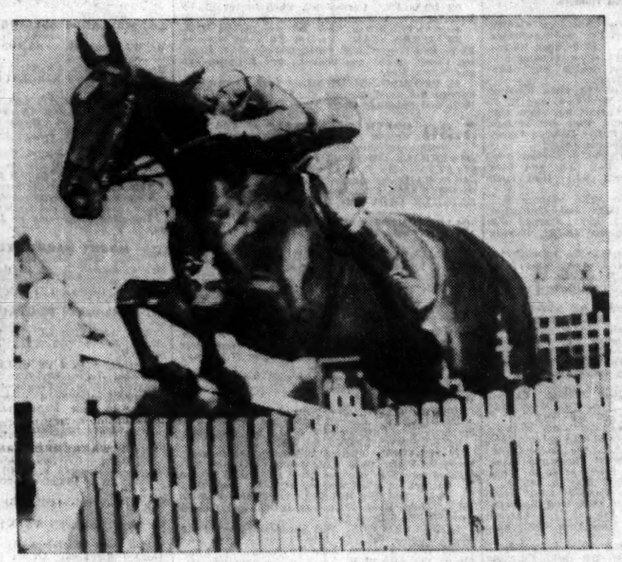

The Committee also extended their sympathy to Dr. Henry Kennedy, secretary of the society, in the bereavement sustained by him in the deaths of his wife and brother.

HORSE SHOW FASHIONS

BRILLIANT SCENE IN THE GROUNDS

Yesterday afternoon the Horse Show reached a brilliant climax, when hardly ever before has such an enormous crowd been seen in the jumping enclosure. From end to end all the stands were packed with people, and it was well-nigh impossible to move through the congestion which prevailed in front of the grand stand. It was all a wonderful finish to what is now regarded as being the most popular day of the Show. The spectacular military jumping competition for the Aga Khan Challenge Trophy was the main event of the afternoon, and enthusiasm ran high when, after several exacting rounds, the coveted prize was awarded to the Irish team.

Happily the previous day's break in the weather proved but temporary, for, once again, the atmosphere was very warm, and the sun shone almost continuously. Light frocks of every hue predominated in the gathering, and some very smart navy and white toilettes caught the eye.

At about 3 o'clock the seats in the Vice-regal Box were gradually filled with Government Ministers and members of the Diplomatic Corps and their wives, and, shortly before the hour for the international jumping competition to commence, President de Valera arrived and sat in one of the front seats of the stand. It really seemed as if the President was the most stared-at person in the Show, for all during the afternoon a constant stream of visitors of every nationality passed the box in an endeavour to catch a glimpse of him.

THE DRESSES

The guests were received by Viscount Powerscourt, President of the Royal Dublin Society, and by Viscountess Powerscourt, who wore a smart black bowler-shaped hat, trimmed with beige egrets, and an elegant black romaine dress, with a cape to match edged with black fox fur. The American Minister was accompanied by Mrs. Owsley, who wore a graceful navy blue satin frock with a swathed turban to match. The German Minister was present with Frau Kuhlmann, who was wearing a black and white checked taffeta two-piece with a black tagal hat, trimmed with black and white spot ribbon. Madame Guerlet, who arrived with the French Minister, wore a navy blue coat over a pretty navy and pale blue diagonal-striped frock, with a small navy hat. Madame Ruzicka was wearing a frock of stone grey marocain, relieved with a white jabot, and a felt hat in the same shade. Frau Schiemann was attired in a beige coat, trimmed with fox fur, and a sailor-shaped hat to tone. Mrs. Balch's navy and white printed silk dress was worn with a navy coat and a navy blue halo-shaped hat. Mrs. Brennan wore a navy toque and eye veil with a dusky pink wool marocain frock.

The party also included Mr. D. R. Pack-Beresford, vice-president of the Royal Dublin Society; Colonel E. F. Farrell, also a vice-president; Mr. John Leonard and Dr. Felix Hackett, hon. secretaries.

Also present were:—The Countess of Warwick, wearing a small white crowned hat with a navy brim, and a navy and white figured silk dress. The Hon. Mrs. Brinsley Plunket looked very well in a black romaine frock, trimmed with a stiff white muslin vest, and a large white and black halo hat. Lady HolmPatrick was wearing a blue flecked tweed suit with a smart hat in the same shade. Lady Warrender was in a navy tailored suit and a navy felt hat. The Hon. Mrs. Charles Guinness chose a navy and grey checked two-piece to wear with a navy hat, trimmed with flesh pink. Miss Elizabeth McDonald wore a halo hat with her pretty blue taffeta frock, fastened at the throat with white gardenias. Miss Hogg came in a prune-coloured frock coloured with cyclamen pink, and worn with a hat to tone. Mrs. Hill-Whitsen was attired in a navy georgette ensemble with touches of white, and a navy blue hat.

A smart green and white spotted silk two-piece was worn by Miss Finlan, with an emerald green straw hat. Frau Brasé wore a navy and white ensemble, and a white picture hat. Mrs. J. Lambert was wearing a black tailored suit with a black hat banded with white. Mrs. Davidson's patterned crêpe-de-Chine frock was worn with a white hat. Instead of a hat, Miss Mollie Bishop had her hair banded with navy ribbon, to tone with a navy-figured silk dress and fox furs. Miss Stopford was wearing a navy flecked suit and a navy felt hat. Miss Camilla Russel wore furs with a black dress and a large Leghorn picture hat. Miss Waters came in an oyster two-piece, worn with a pink tartan hat. Miss J. Ruthven chose a blue marocain coat to wear over a blue flowered frock, with a hat to tone. A navy coat frock collared with white, and a navy hat, was worn by Mrs. Sadlier. Miss B. Cowper wore a chocolate brown hat with her old-rose pink frock. Miss Wylie was smart in beige, with a dark green hat. Mrs. Nugent Popoff's black and white hail-shower two-piece was worn with a hat to tone, while Mrs. Donal O'Sullivan came in a white picture hat embroidered in coloured flowers, and worn with a white linen suit.

THE "EVIL EYE"

"CURED" BY X-RAYS IN AUSTRALIA

Convinced that she was beset by malignant spirits, an aboriginal woman has just been brought into Bellingen Hospital, New South Wales, and "cured" of them.

The native belief is that an enemy can cast an "evil eye" spell on another member of the tribe by taking pieces of his or her clothing into the mountains, reciting incantations to the devils, and leaving the pieces there. The woman had missed portions of her scanty wardrobe after a dispute, and was convinced she was under the "evil eye."

She became very ill indeed, and was told to visit a powerful tribal medicine man. A white man, however, persuaded her to go to Bellingen Hospital. There she was subjected to X-rays as part of a pre-arranged plan. The doctor told her that had debbil-debbils been at work on her the rays would have revealed it. But the magic machine showed no trace.

Thereupon the woman recovered almost incredibly quickly. But for the treatment, she would undoubtedly have died.

COUNTY LIMERICK EXCAVATIONS

FURTHER DISCOVERIES

The 1935 excavations at Cush, Kilfinane, County Limerick, have now been in progress for over four weeks. The excavations are being conducted on behalf of the National Museum and the Commissioners of Public Works, and are financed as a scheme for the relief of unemployment.

Investigations on this site in 1934 led to important and interesting results. These have been added to by the discoveries to date during the present season. One of the ring forts in the main group has proved to have in it a souterrain (under-ground house) of a form different from those previously discovered on the site. Operations have been begun on a second group of ring forts not excavated last year.

Here another souterrain has come to light, and in the upper layer of the filling two bronze brooches were discovered; one of these is ornamented with an animal head terminal, and may be dated to about the early 9th century. This is an important addition to the available knowledge of the site, since it shows the habitation to have gone on well into the Christian period—a surprising fact when one remembers that the 1934 excavations here yielded burials as early as Middle Bronze Age times.

The excavations are under the charge of Mr. Seán P. O Ríordáin, M.A., of the National Museum, assisted by a staff of students and voluntary workers.

GIRL DROWNED IN SQUALL

SIX RESCUED AFTER BOAT SANK

A sudden squall capsized and sank a small open sailing boat a mile from the Shetland mainland yesterday, and its seven occupants, members of a holiday party at Sandlodge, were thrown into the sea.

Miss Baker, an eighteen years old Colinton (Edinburgh) girl was not seen again, and it is presumed that she became entangled in the boat's gear and was taken down by the boat. She was a strong swimmer. Of the six other people, Mr. John B. Wingate, of London, swam to the assistance of Mrs. Caesar Hawkins, also of London, aged about 70, and kept her afloat. Among the others, who were in the sea for half-an-hour before being rescued by a motor boat, were Mr. George Baker, a medical student, brother of the drowned girl, and Captain Mearns, of Aberdeen, home on leave from India, who arrived in Shetland only yesterday.

MAN'S DEATH IN A BREWERY

An inquest was held at Steeven's Hospital, Dublin, by the Acting City Coroner (Dr. T. P. Shanley) on the body of John Maher (55), of 4 Rialto terrace, Donore avenue, who was found dead in a tank of ullage in Messrs. Guinness's brewery on Wednesday night last.

Mrs. Maher identified the body as that of her husband, who she said, had been a little depressed following the death of his brother on August 3 last.

Evidence was given that the man had been missed from his work and of the finding of his body following a search.

The jury returned a verdict that death was due to suffocation, following immersion in the liquid in the tank, and recommended the relatives of the dead man to the consideration of Messrs. Guinness.

Mr. W. J. Barrett, Inspector of Factories, appeared for the Department of Industry and Commerce, and Mr. H. F. Stephens, solicitor, appeared for Messrs. Guinness.

Patrick Chichester, in reply, thanked those present for their welcome and the tenantry for their presentation of an address and old Irish silver cup.

Seventeen Runners for the Phœnix Plate To-day

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

CORA DEANS BEATEN

Diana Buttercup Holds Her Lead to Win by a Neck

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LEWES, Friday Night.

SIR CHARLES HYDE brought off a double on the opening day of the Lewes Meeting, winning the thousand pounds Astley Plate with Kong and the Nevill Plate with Kingsem. It was the third occasion on which Sir Charles had won the Astley Plate. His previous winners were Game Shot and Arcona.

Kong was bred by Sir Charles Hyde, being by his good horse, Baytown. Kingsem was bought as a yearling for 750 guineas. Kingsem and Kong were both favourites, and another first choice to score during the afternoon was Gold Standard II.

It was generally considered that the De Warrenne Handicap was a match between Cora Deans and Valkyrie. The pair had run in the Stewards' Cup, in which Cora Deans was third, with Valkyrie, interfered with in the running, unplaced.

The Goodwood form was confirmed in that Cora Deans finished half a length in front of Valkyrie. Both, however, were beaten by Diana Buttercup, ridden by P. Evans.

Won by a Neck

From the start Diana Buttercup and Cora Deans were the most prominent. As they came down the hill Diana Buttercup drew out with a good lead, and, though in the last furlong Cora Deans and Valkyrie came with strong challenges and were overtaking the leader, they were not up soon enough, for the filly reached the post a neck in front.

As a juvenile Diana Buttercup was a smart filly, and won six of her eight races. Last year she ran six times without reaching the first three. After being unplaced in two races this year she showed a return to form when running La Rubia to a short-head at Hurst Park last month.

To-day she covered the five furlongs in 58 seconds, which is a record for the course. The previous best was 58 4-5 seconds.

An Easy Ride

Kong, who had run well in her previous races, won the Astley Plate comfortably. From the start she was going like a winner. Antenor was prominent in the early stages, and from the distance Gordon Richards delivered a strong challenge on Pink Boy. So easily was Kong going, however, that Fox was able to sit still while the filly drew away to win by four lengths.

Kingsem, who had been running in sprint races, stayed on well to win the Nevill Plate over a mile and a quarter. As Quillon drew away in the straight the challenger was set a hard task to catch him, but, galloping on with resolution, Kingsem wore down the leader in the last furlong to gain a narrow victory.

Lord Carnarvon won the Members' Cup on Jack, beating the odds-on favourite, Redford, ridden by Mr. P. Herbert. It was the first outing this season of Jack, who gave his owner a winning ride at Windsor last year.

Favourite Disappoints

Jack set off at the start to make the running. Half-way up the straight he was joined by Redford, and for a few strides the favourite looked certain to win, but his backers' hopes were dashed as Jack drew away again to win by three-quarters of a length.

E. Smith rode a confident race to win the Wallands Selling Handicap on Sandstar. The winner had never been placed before, but here he found himself in his element. After Pretty Clean had made the running Sandstar took the lead in the straight, and, without being asked for an additional effort, he held off the challenges of Watfun and Kirrimuir. The winner was sold to Mr. H. Smyth for 330 guineas.

Gold Standard II., who was made an odds-on favourite for the Mount Harry Selling Plate, won very easily. For about half the journey Tetarn filly kept with the favourite, but after that Gold Standard II. drew away to win on a tight rein. He was subsequently bought in for 105 guineas.

Selections

To-morrow the Lewes Handicap may be won by LANCE CORPORAL, the Barcombe Plate by SAMOTRICA, and the Ringmer Plate by MEADOW GRASS.

GALTEE MORE.

HIGH-CLASS TWO-YEAR-OLDS

Grangemore May be Followed Home by Heath-Trained Pair

'Bus Service from O'Connell Bridge.

THE programme for the Phœnix Park this afternoon is one of the most interesting that has been submitted for a long time, and there is every prospect of the meeting marking a fitting wind-up to the round of Horse Show festivities.

The seventeen declared runners for the Phœnix Plate include the cream of the season's two-year-olds, with the exception of Flammarion, who is not engaged in the big race, but runs for the Nobber Plate. Grangemore, Terraceford and Solo Whist catch the eye as a likely trio from which the winner should come. H. Beasley has been engaged to ride Solo Whist, and M. Beary will probably be on African Spoil, who will be a much-fancied candidate.

Tote Double on Third and Fifth Races.

who won the only two races she ran for in masterly style, is given the preference over Terraceford and Solo Whist.

It should be noted that the free forecast will be on the fifth race. Selections:—

Naul Plate—Without Benefit.
Naas Plate—Cree.
Horse Show Plate—Careful Prince.
Nobber Plate—Marjorie's Pet.
Phœnix Plate—Grangemore.
North Wall Plate—Double Toy.

TOTE DOUBLE.

Careful Prince and Grangemore.

The tote double event is on the third and fifth races.

Lance Corporal Gets the Vote for Lewes Handicap

GILBERT BENNETT, the Polegate, Sussex, trainer, who had a remunerative double at Brighton on Thursday with Venturer and Cambridge Blue, appears to have a splendid opportunity of winning the £500 Lewes Handicap to-day with Lance Corporal.

The fact that Gordon Richards has been engaged is in itself a sound recommendation. Lance Corporal has had only one race on the flat this year—namely, at Folkestone in June, when he won a twelve furlong handicap in runaway style. That was a great improvement upon his form of last season, when he was competing in selling plate company. I hear that the progress has been maintained in the home gallops.

Bendex, who put up such a magnificent fight against Tiberius in the Goodwood Cup, has not been sent from Newmarket. It is probable, by the way, that this promising young stayer will be trained for the Cesarewitch if the handicapper gives him a fair weight.

The only headquarters' representative will be Angelico. He does not appear to be reliable. He was last of four at Sandown last month, but previously won cleverly over a mile and three-quarters at Yarmouth. Phileas has a nice weight for a consistent six-year-old. He appears to be at the top of his form, as after he scored at Sandown in June he ran fourth in the race won by Near Relation at Goodwood.

Sheldrake can be excused his lapse at Windsor, where he carried a penalty. I understand that he is well fancied. Gipsy Lad has good credentials, for he won over this distance at the May meeting here. Although I fear Gipsy Lad, I shall row in with who is genuinely fancied.

O'Grady won so very easily at Brighton that he will have to be noted if pulled out again for the Barcombe Plate. My choice here is

Meadow Grass, Such Fun, La Noce colt, Saxicola and Metaphor are useful juveniles due to contest the Ringmer Plate. As Persse's horses have struck a winning patch I select METAPHOR.

He has a pull of 7lb. with Meadow Grass for the two lengths that separated them at Sandown in June.

Mr. G. Armstrong, one of the best of the gentlemen riders, should win the Hamsey Handicap on SUSPICION.

M. D. Peacock, the Middleham trainer, has struck out ten of his eleven entries at Thirsk. The remaining one, runs for the Kilvington Handicap. I make him the best bet on the card.

LORD WOOLAVINGTON'S TURF SUCCESSES

Although Lord Woolavington, whose death was announced yesterday, bred a lot of his own horses at the Lavington Park stud, he was always on the look-out for ready-made winners, and horses which he purchased at big prices were Easton, Colorado Kid and Epsom Lad. The last named he bought at the sale of Lord Rosebery's horses in 1900, and won with him the Princess of Wales's Stakes, the Eclipse Stakes and the Kempton Park Stakes, in which Epsom Lad beat the Derby winner, Volodyovski.

With Black Sand, who was purchased out of a selling race, Lord Woolavington won the Cesarewitch and Jockey Club Stakes in 1902, but the greatest bargain he got was when he bought Hurry On as a yearling for 500 guineas; for, not only was Hurry On a great racehorse, but he sired two Derby winners in Captain Cuttle and Coronach. Hurry On did not run as a two-year-old, but the following season he won the St. Leger substitute at Newmarket, and proved himself the best of the year.

Captain Cuttle, in addition to the Derby, won the Wood Dillon Stakes, the St. James's Palace Stakes at Newmarket, and the Prince of Wales's Stakes at Kempton. Coronach won both the Derby and St. Leger, starting an odds-on favourite for the latter race.

Recently Lord Woolavington's horses were trained by F. Darling at Beckhampton, but Epsom Lad and Black Sand were prepared for their victories by the South American trainer, Alvarez.

CRICKET

CRISP IN GREAT FORM

Fine Performance by Glamorgan
Yorks and Derby Win

AFTER the first day's play at Birmingham, the South Africans were never in danger of losing their unbeaten record, and they won by an innings and 174 runs, getting Warwickshire out a second time in an hour and fifty minutes for 103. The tropical rain of Thursday left the wicket more favourable to bowlers, and Crisp always had the batsmen in difficulties. Varying his pace with rare judgment, he got five wickets for 36 runs in the second innings, and his complete figures for the match were ten for 67.

Yorkshire beat Leicestershire at Leicester by ten wickets, but, as in the first innings, the Yorkshire fielding was below par in Leicestershire's second attempt. Shipman, Dowen and Astill were missed, the latter twice in his first five runs, and, just as it looked possible for the innings victory to be secured, a couple of overthrows while the last pair were together allowed the Yorkshire total to be passed, so that they had to bat again to score twelve runs.

Derbyshire found the path to victory easy at Northampton, where they won by 100 runs. Derbyshire have now won thirteen championship matches—one more than in any previous year.

Glamorgan faced a fourth innings' task requiring a scoring rate of 94 runs an hour in great style at Hastings, and won in what was the last over in extra time by three wickets. Turnbull gave the right lead to his side by opening the innings and attacking the fresh bowlers in bold fashion, and everyone who went in joined wholeheartedly in the bid for fifteen points. Drenched by a storm the previous evening, the wicket never really became awkward, and, although the loss of Jim Cornford's bowling was serious for Sussex, that does not detract much from a fine performance.

Thanks chiefly to the splendid bowling of Alex. Kennedy, who took six wickets for 84, Hampshire defeated Essex at Chelmsford by 78 runs. Incidentally, Kennedy's performance was all the more significant because it marked his first appearance of the season for the county.

N. S. Mitchell Innes, hitting his first century for Somerset, enabled the Westerners to retrieve their position at Weston-super-Mare, where Lancashire were not only baulked of an early finish, and an afternoon train home to Manchester, but also of victory. It was Mitchell Innes's second 100 of the season off the Lancashire bowling, as he obtained 102 for Oxford University.

JAMES MACDONALD SETS A RECORD

A great display of batting by James Macdonald, who has scored 129, placed North Down (the holders) in a strong position at the close of the first day's play in the Ulster Cup final against Cliftonville yesterday. North Down lost four wickets for 39, but James Macdonald and Andrews put on 117 for the fifth. Macdonald went on to pass the record individual score for the final (118 by B. R. Matier, Woodvale, in 1933) and was undefeated at the finish, when North Down had scored 258 for 8.

GAELIC GAMES

MUNSTER HURLING FINAL

GREAT GAME EXPECTED AT CORK

(By PAT'O.)

TO-MORROW'S match in Cork for the Munster Hurling Championship final has attracted wide attention. Limerick's continued success raises the question: "Can the present champions be beaten whilst their personnel remains intact?" They are an overwhelming side, 20 per cent. better this year than when they won the All-Ireland title in 1934. There was a polish about their work in recent outings, and behind it all was dynamic force. Their new full forward, McMahon, continues to improve, and the whole front line are an effective finishing medium for powerful mid-fielders and Knowledgable backs.

Limerick hurling was always robust. The present team holds all the traditional courage, which touches the borderline of recklessness at times. Yet it must be written that every ball is truly hit, and always in the right direction. My impression is that Limerick were fully wound up for their game against Cork, and it may be that they will have got a shade stale for their game with their neighbours from Tipperary to-morrow. So reliable are this selected fifteen, however, that Tipperary are set a formidable task.

TIPPERARY'S RECOVERY

Tipperary had a number of lean years since 1930, when they won through, and it was not until June, 1934, that we marked a recovery. Half-a-dozen young players from Carrick-on-Suir were introduced into the side, and they have rapidly advanced in experience and resource.

They led Cork for 50 minutes last year, and improved through the League sufficiently to run Kilkenny to within a point or two. That was a heartening game for Tipperary with the championship approaching.

Since then I have heard many flattering accounts of Tipperary. Martin Kennedy, the old Toomevara forward, is playing as skilfully as ever, and gives reliance to a fast attack. Heeney, Cronin and O'Donnell combined so well against Waterford in the first round of the championship that Tipperary won by a score per man. Old followers believe that such a team has not arisen in Tipperary for a dozen years. Cooney is, perhaps, the best attacking mid-fielder in Munster. He has been a pillar with U.C.D. in recent Fitzgibbon Cup matches. He learned his hurling in his native Carrick, and has size, weight and dash.

One thing is certain—Tipperary feel that they have the beating of Limerick at last, and it will be a fast, eager game, but I think Limerick will qualify for the final against Kilkenny on September 1st.

THE CHAMPIONSHIPS AT ST. JAMES'S PARK

What is a loss—and a distinct one it will be—to Thurles will to-morrow be Kilkenny's gain. Originally the championship meeting of the N.A.C.A. of Ireland was fixed for Thurles, wherein the Gaelic Athletic Association was founded; but an attempt was, however, made by the management of the Thurles grounds to impose restrictions on the governing body which the latter, with championships at stake, could not submit to, and the venue was changed to St. James's Park, Kilkenny.

The local committee at once set to work on ground improvements and so forth, and everything that could possibly be done to ensure the success of to-morrow's meeting has been attended to.

Athletes and cyclists have thrown themselves whole-heartedly into the effort to make the meeting a notable one. There are almost two hundred entries for the athletic events and sixty for the cycling, and, as interest in athletics is much keener in the provinces than in Dublin, the financial well-being of the venture is also fully assured.

Every Free State athlete and cyclist of note appears on the programme, and while it is not likely that records will go in the track events, it is expected that in more than one of the field events—the "weights" especially—the performances will be of exceptional merit.

GOLF

THREE COUNTRIES TIE

Unique Feat by Irish Amateurs at St. Anne's

By a Special Correspondent.

ST. ANNES, Friday Evening.

Ireland's amateur golfers were a happy band to-day when they dashed away from St. Annes to catch a special train to connect with the boat at Liverpool. They had achieved something unique in the history of Irish golf. They had tied with England and Scotland for the honour of being the champion country.

There was an air of exuberance about the Irishmen at the interval when they led Wales by two points on the foursomes, and they went out in the singles in a mood that merited only victory. Burke and McMullan should have made the foursomes lead still more impressive, but they could only halve with Black and Roberts after being two up with seven to play.

A FIGHTING FINISH

Black and Roberts won the 12th, but they should not have been allowed to square at the thirteenth, where the Irishmen were half-stymied from three yards. With two for a half McMullan consulted his partner, and they decided to go for a win. The ball slipped a few feet past the hole, and Burke missed the return putt. The Irish pair took the lead again at the sixteenth, but Burke drove into a bunker at the 17th to lose the hole, and the 18th was halved.

There was never any doubt about the superiority of McConnell and O'Sullivan, who were four under fours for the thirteen holes they played in beating Henry Howell and A. D. Evans. Dr. MacCormack thoroughly enjoyed the real Irish fight he and Joseph Brown had against R. M. Lloyd and G. S. Noon; for, after being five down with seven to play, the Irish pair struggled on to lose the match only on the last green. That was the only Irish defeat in the foursomes, and it was very nearly averted. At any rate, MacCormack, who, to use his own words, "never hit a shot for fourteen holes," was quite pleased with the play of his side.

IRISH LEADER AGAIN FAILS

The Irish captain made no mistake in the afternoon, when he had his revenge on Noon to the tune of a four and three victory.

An almost clean sweep by Ireland in the singles was, however, spoilt by the unaccountable failure of the champion, Roy McConnell, who played rather indifferent golf against the Welsh champion, B. Roberts.

McConnell was three down with four played, but he made a great recovery, and was only one down at the tenth. An unlucky kick at the eleventh cost him the hole, and he became three down again at the twelfth. Once more the Irish champion recovered and won back two holes, but a ten yards' putt by Roberts settled the issue at the seventeenth.

Burke played at his best and was altogether too good for Howell, the Irish ex-champion, being four up at the eleventh and winning by four and three. Brown, out in 36 and turning three up, found Black easy game, for the Welshman missed too many putts to make a fight of it.

O'Sullivan, one down at the fourth, made a grand recovery, turned one up, and simply smashed his way to a five and three victory.

It was a stirring sight for the Irish supporters to see their men come in from different parts of the course victors, for they placed Ireland definitely on the map in international golf.

The victory over England last year showed the qualities of Irish golf, and the Scotsmen this week can testify ruefully to the tremendous development of the amateur game in the Emerald Isle. The fervent hope of the men who have worked so hard by wise selection and enthusiastic encouragement to give Ireland a place in the sun is that next year, in Scotland, Ireland will accomplish in one tournament what they have done in the past two years, and beat both Scotland and England.

BRITISH CUP TEAM COMPLETED

The British Ryder Cup team to play against the United States professionals at Ridgwood Country Club, New Jersey, on September 28 and 29 has been completed.

The last two places have been given to Ernest Whitcombe (Meyrick Park) and Reginald Whitcombe (Parkstone), who tied for the Open Championship of Ireland at Newcastle, which Ernest won on the play-off.

All the three Whitcombe brothers are now in the team, Charles, of Crews Hill, having been elected captain some time ago.

The complete teams are:—

GREAT BRITAIN—Charles Whitcombe (Crews Hill (captain), Reginald Whitcombe (Parkstone), Ernest Whitcombe (Meyrick Park), Percy Alliss (Beaconsfield), Alfred Perry (Leatherhead), R. Burton (Hooton), J. J. Busson (Pannal), W. J. Cox (Addington), E. W. Jarman (Prenton) and A. H. Padgham (Sundridge Park).

UNITED STATES—Walter Hagen (captain), Paul Runyan, Sam Parks (jun.), Olin Dutra, Ky Lafoon, Johnny Revolta, Henry Picard, Horton Smith, Gene Sarazen and Craig Wood.

The inclusion of the three Whitcombes makes golfing history. There has never been an another instance of three brothers, amateurs or professionals, playing in the same match for their country.

Ernest Whitcombe, who was born at Berrow, Somerset, forty-five years ago, is the oldest of the three. Reginald, who is playing in the Ryder Cup match for the first time, is the youngest. He is thirty-seven. Ernest and Reginald, as remarked, tied for the Open Championship of Ireland two weeks ago, and Ernest won the replay by three strokes; but in choosing both to fill the vacant places the selectors, no doubt, had in mind the fact that Reginald won the Roehampton match-play tournament last year and reached the semi-final stage of the 1,040 guineas match-play event.

Until last year Reginald was considered to be one of Britain's best stroke players, and it is only recently that he has gained prominence as a match player. The inclusion of Ernest and Reginald raises considerably the average age of the British team, which before their selection was thirty-one. It was generally considered that the choice of the last two men would depend upon the form in the Open Championship of Ireland and the assistants' tournament, but in the latter event neither Sam King (Knole Park) nor W. J. Branch (Henbury) played up to form.

Charles Whitcombe played in all four previous Ryder Cup matches, and Ernest in 1927 and 1931. On the last-mentioned occasion he played under the captaincy of his brother Charles.

BOXING

VICTORY FOR IRELAND

France Defeated by Five Fights to Three

IRELAND defeated France by five contests to three in the international at the Dépôt Square, Phœnix Park, last evening, before a very large crowd. It was a capital evening's boxing, the first six bouts all producing really fine scrapping; and, as is generally the case, the Irishmen's superior boxing gave them their margin of success. The Frenchmen were all fast, strong and aggressive—with the exception of the cruiser-weight—but, technically, they were behind the Irishmen, and this just made the difference.

The first round of the fly-weight fight was mainly a close-quarter affair. Connolly was aggressive from the bell looking for openings, but the Frenchman's defence was good and he held his own well close in. Connolly attacked hard at the start of the second round and landed some useful punches to his opponent's body, and, both in this and the third round, he was clever in checking his opponent's rushes, though he was inclined to hold. The Frenchman changed his tactics in the fourth round, keeping at long range, but Connolly collected points with straight lefts, although Bonnet proved very strong and aggressive. The latter kept up a continual attack in the fifth, but his punching was wild, and Connolly countered well with right crosses. Bonnet was like a terrier in the last round, keeping up a ceaseless worrying attack, but his swings were wild, and Connolly not only blocked them well, but scored with straighter punches, to gain a narrow, but well-deserved verdict. It was not a very attractive fight, being mostly of a scrambling nature.

KERR'S SPEED

Crisp punching from long range featured the bantam-weight contest, in which Kerr's lightning footwork and speed of punch gave him a clear margin in the first two rounds. Mortureux showed that he had a punch when he got close in, but Kerr seldom let him get there. The Frenchman did not launch a real attack until the third round, but Kerr's countering proved more than adequate, and, at the start of the fourth round, the Irishman landed a hail of hard punches which shook shook Mortureux, though he showed his strength by doing his fair share of attacking afterwards. Kerr opened Mortureux's left eye in the fifth round, in which he boxed beautifully, scoring at will, and he was well on top in the sixth, scoring the easiest of victories after an impressive display.

Aupetit, the visiting feather-weight, made matters lively from the start against Gernon. Swinging his punches with both hands at terrific speed, he fairly played a tattoo on Gernon at the start of each round; but the latter stood up splendidly, and not only landed some heavy punches himself in a quieter way, but did some attacking towards the end of each round, especially the fourth, in which he landed a couple of good rights. However, Aupetit was not to be denied in the fifth, in which he landed heavily with left hooks. Both were tired in the last round. Gernon had his openings, but he was unable to take them, and Aupetit was a clear winner. Gernon, however, had put up an excellent showing against a strong and most aggressive fighter.

SMITH'S SUCCESS

The light-weight bout was almost decided in the opening minute, Smith putting Langlaney down with a perfect right to the jaw as the Frenchman was coming in. He got up before the count, but he was groggy, and only just managed to last out the round. He made a good recovery in the interval, but Smith continually caught him with punches to the face as he came in, Langlaney's defence being weak and his leads slow. As the fight progressed Langlaney seemed to grow stronger, and he was on the attack from the fourth round, but, although the earlier snap had departed from Smith's punches, he was clearly the better boxer. He needed all his skill to keep Langlaney off in the fifth round, for the Frenchman attacked hard and was dangerous with short-arm punches. Again in the last round the Irishman was on the defensive, but he avoided punishment skilfully and was well worth the decision on his earlier work. Langlaney, however, made a remarkable recovery and won the last two rounds.

HOW BYRNE WON

After losing the opening round in the welter-weight bout, T. Byrne boxed beautifully to level matters in the second, and he went ahead in the third, his neat blocking of swings and severe short-arm jabs gaining him points. Renaudie, however, was very strong, and dealt out heavy punishment at the start of the fourth round, his swings finding their mark, but subsequently Byrne failed to make use of some easy openings. Still, he kept Renaudie quieter in the fifth, and collected points at close quarters. The Irishman made a splendid rally in the last round, tying up Renaudie and landing continually with right hooks to earn the verdict over a rugged fighter whom he had outboxed.

The visiting middle-weight, Despeaux, carried too much speed for Hennelly, Despeaux fought in whirlwind style at close quarters, and Hennelly could only block some of the rain of punches. Hennelly was by no means idle himself, and his right did good work at the in-fighting, but Despeaux was just too fast and aggressive. Had the Frenchman's punching been up to the same level as his speed and attacking spirit, Hennelly would not have lasted through the first two rounds, but speed and attacking spirit, Hennelly would he tired, and the rough Irishman actually had the better of the last two rounds, but he was too late to make up for lost ground.

Hearns was far too strong for an obviously inexperienced opponent in J. Maffre, the French cruiser-weight. Maffre proved rather difficult to hit at first, for he kept very close in as much as possible, but a hefty left shook him in the second round, and when he went down to a right swing in the third for a count of four he had had enough and retired.

J. Murphy appeared to carry too many guns for a very crude heavy-weight in Pallot. The Frenchman was terribly slow, and although Murphy was by no means fast, his punches carried the sting which Pallot's lacked. In the third round, however, Murphy's eye was split, and, after taking some punishment, he retired at the end of the round owing to the injury.

DOYLE WILL BE ABLE TO MEET BAER

TRENTON (NEW JERSEY), Friday.

The indefinite suspension of Jack Doyle's licence is announced by the New Jersey State Athletic Commission. This means that Doyle will not be able to fight in thirty-seven States which have mutual agreements with the New Jersey Commission until the suspension is lifted.

Doyle's fight with Buddy Baer on August 22 will not be affected, since it will be fought under the jurisdiction of the New York State Commission, who have no working agreement with New Jersey. The action by the New Jersey Commission follows Doyle's refusal to submit to a medical examination after he had announced that he would be unable to meet Leo Williams on account of an injured arm.

Financial News & Notes

DUBLIN FEATURELESS

RAILS EASIER

COURTAULDS SUPPORTED

There was a small improvement in trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, due chiefly to end-account adjustments, but there was little of outstanding interest to note.

The Funds showed practically no change and Corporation issues were maintained, while the only change in Banks was the loss of a few pence in Nationals.

Guinness Ord., after a firmer opening, eased to a steady close. Distillers Ord. improved, but Dublin Distillers "A" declined to 2s. 1½d.

There was a little support for Grand Canal Ord., which brought about a good rise of 5s.

Home Rails were mostly sellers. Great Northern Ord. dropped to 13¼ and Great Southern Pref. to 44, while the Deb. fell a point.

Johnston, Mooney Pref. and Ranks (Ireland) Pref. were pence lower, and Irish Shell Pref. gave way to 21s. Alliance Gas Ord. held 14¼.

There was good buying of Courtaulds, and they advanced to 58s. 6d., while other Textiles showed a harder tendency.

Vickers Ord. made headway to 16s. 1½d., but Imperial Tobaccos and Imperial Chemicals both shaded off.

LONDON FIRM

SHARP RISE IN OLD CONSOLS

Although carry-over arrangements tended to restrict business, the London Stock markets wound up the long holiday account, in good form yesterday, as the tone in most sections was firm throughout the session, and the trend of values favoured holders. Active conditions developed in several directions, and there was no lack of good features, prominent among them being fresh support for Gilt-edged securities, particularly Old Consols, buying of Industrials for the new account, and a further improvement in British Rail stocks.

Substantial buying of Old Consols predominated in the Gilt-edged market, and with the floating supply of stock limited the recent upward movement was accelerated, the price jumping another ½ to 87¼. Business in other issues was not large, but renewed investment and fresh Continental buying caused an early advance.

The Foreign Bond section, though less active than on the preceding day, displayed firmness. Owing to the improving traffic position, buyers were again attracted to Peruvian Corporation issues, and the Debs. added another point to 51, while the Pref. at 9⅞ were ⅜ higher. Brazilians were distinctly quieter, and moved irregularly, but Chinese descriptions recovered further, and Japanese hardened.

There was little going on in the Foreign Rail group, but a few Argentines attracted buyers, and recovered part of this week's declines. Among Colonials, "Can Pacs" were a dull spot at 9⅝.

Under the influence of recent good company and trade news, the Industrial market was generally firm. Raleigh Cycle, on anticipations of an increased dividend, were a particularly active spot, and certain heavy Motor issues continued to advance, while Iron and Steels attracted a good deal of support. In the Rayon group, Courtaulds made fresh headway in view of the fact that Viscose Rayon prices have been raised in America, and among Aircrafts interest revived in Rolls-Royce. Elsewhere Triplex were strong on hopes that the coming accounts will show improved results, and others which advanced included Ever Ready, Woolworth and Austins.

The turnover in the Mining markets was of moderate proportions, and good features were few. Kaffirs were inclined to ease owing to selling from the Cape and lack of support, and West Africans, though fairly firm, moved narrowly. Changes in other Gold shares were of little importance, while in the Base Metal section Tins were not greatly affected by the quota news. There was no material expansion in trading in Oil shares, but the tendency was firm, and under the lead of Royal Dutch prices were slightly higher.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

IRON AND STEELS IN DEMAND

Although dealers in the Industrial market yesterday were engaged in preliminary arrangements for the carry-over, a fair turnover was recorded, and the account ended cheerfully. Some modest buying for "new time" was reported among the leading home issues, noticeably in the Motor and Iron and Steel departments.

The trans-Atlantic counters showed irregularity at times, but eventually finished with a fairly firm appearance. "Emmies" eased at first, but recovered later. Cables and Wireless stocks seemed rather undecided. The renewed buying of Rolls-Royce was the main feature among Aviation and kindred descriptions, and, as a result of the day's business, a rise of 1/16 was recorded at 8 3/16. Bristol Aeroplanes strengthened to 62s. 3d., and small gains occurred in Hawker and Handley Page Participating Preferences.

The shares of the manufacturers of heavy vehicles continued prominent in the Motor group. A.E.C. and Leylands continued to be sought. Dennis Bros. also finished higher.

Iron and Steel descriptions received a fair amount of attention, price movements in which again mostly favoured holders. Virtually the only exception was Allied Iron Founders, which declined to 43s. Whitehead Iron were a strong spot. Thornycrofts improved, and a recovery was shown by Tube Investments.

A feature was provided among Electrical Equipments by Ever Ready, a demand for which raised the price 1s. 6d. Firmness was also displayed by English, and by Johnson and Phillips.

A steady inquiry existed for Electric Supply shares, Victoria Falls being in request.

BREWERIES SATISFACTORY.

Though easier in places, Breweries made a satisfactory showing on balance. Guinness, Bass Ratcliff, Mitchells and Butlers and Tadcaster Tower were well supported, while Watney Deferred, Courage and Ohlssons gained a few pence.

Tobaccos did not move to any material extent, apart from Tobacco Securities Trust issues, which improved. Textiles were not particularly active, but the tone continued firm. Among Rayons, Courtaulds were again supported, while British Celanese Ordinary improved.

Woolworths were a firm spot among Stores issues. The Provision group was fairly active, and apart from Tate and Lyle, which gave way, values showed to advantage. The two Unilevers were a shade better.

In the Shipping section, R.M. and E.D. Realisation shares came in for further attention, and a fair turnover was again recorded in Clan Line Ordinary. Furness Withy further improved, and P. and O. Deferred gained the turn. African Steam Ship Debentures advanced to 77.

BRIGHT SPOTS.

Under the stimulus of some buying for new time, the Miscellaneous section finished with a generally cheerful appearance. British Oxygens encountered further support, Imperial Chemicals hardened, and Salt Unions gained a few pence. Beechams Deferred provided a bright feature. Boots Drug recovered, and Griffiths Hughes improved, but Aspros exceptionally reacted. British Portland Cements were good. Triplex came into request, and Dunlops found support.

OILS CHEERFUL

In strong contrast with the quiet conditions which had prevailed in the Oil Share market in the earlier days of the week, cheerfulness and strength characterised the closing day of the account. Several of the more speculative descriptions came in for attention, prices generally finishing at the best of the day. Shells and Anglo-Iranians were "takers in," the former in quite a large way; but there was little either way in other descriptions. Trinidad issues participated in the upward movement, and among them Leaseholds provided a strong spot.

RUBBERS NEGLECTED

Trading in the Rubber Share market was at an extremely low ebb, but values were fairly well maintained, and at the finish the only change of any importance was a loss of 6d. to 26s. 3d. in Tandjong Malim. The tendency in the commodity section was steady despite slow business, and spot rubber, selling at 5 11/16d. per lb., was firmer. United Kingdom stocks of rubber are estimated to have increased by 1,300 tons during the past week.

BIRMINGHAM

Several strong features among Motors, including Leylands 70/9, Standards 75/6, and Rileys 51/-. Raleighs jumped to 54/9. Rovers 17/9 and Fords 36/3, both harder. Rolls spurted to 8 3/16.

LONDON MINING MARKET

KAFFIRS MOSTLY EASIER

In the Mining market dealings were very limited yesterday. Kaffirs generally moved within narrow limits, and, apart from a few specialities, quotations had a downward trend. The older shares were mostly idle, but among the newer concerns Venterspost came into good request, and went ahead sharply, and West Wits were an appreciably better market. Although there was not a great deal of business passing in the Rhodesian section, the tone generally remained quite firm.

In the Diamond list De Beers issues were distinctly dull. West Africans attracted but little attention, and in the almost entire absence of public inquiries were allowed to slip back.

Australians made but a poor showing, and a little offering of Commonwealth caused a further decline in the price.

With the better outlook for the metal, Tin shares were again in some request. Most of the usually active counters registered advances.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Tin Quota Raised to 65 per cent.

The International Tin Committee at its meeting in Paris yesterday fixed the tin quota for the quarter July to September at 65 p.c., compared with 50 p.c. for the last quarter. The quota is retrospective from July 1st. This decision did not come as a surprise, although the increase is up to the highest estimates. The Committee meets next at Brussels on September 11.

New Nitrate Pact for Three Years

The negotiations for the renewal of the International Nitrate Cartel agreement are stated to be nearly completed. Percentages have been agreed between the various producers for the markets covered by the agreement and some of the prices have been fixed. In a few cases prices are being raised, but there will, it is understood, be little change at present in the average level. The new agreement between the synthetic and the Chilean producers will run for three years, subject to the right of withdrawal by the participating countries, in certain circumstances, at the end of two years. It is believed that within that time it will be possible to obtain a gradual rise in prices. Favourable treatment has been accorded to Chile in the agreement, the percentages being calculated to give Chile an annual export of over 1,250,000 tons, as compared with about 1,200,000 tons, which she exported last year. The United States market is excluded from the scope of the agreement.

New Buenos Aires Debt Plan

A new debt offer is made to holders of bonds of the Province of Buenos Aires. It is put forward by the Provincial Minister of Finance, Senor Pedro Groppo, and is to come into operation on 1st January next on the expiry of the plan of January, 1933. The offer affects the Three to Three and a-Half per Cent. Loan of 1906/9, the Five per Cent. Sterling (Drainage) Loan of 1908, the Four and a-Half per Cent. External (Railway) Loan of 1909, the Five per Cent. External Gold Loan of 1910 and the Five per Cent. Consolidation Gold Loan of 1915. With the exception of the first-mentioned loan, the interest on which is to be fully maintained, it calls for a permanent reduction in the rate of interest payable to holders. It is proposed that no amortisation will be paid until after 31st December, 1941, and that while the Three to Three and a-Half per Cent. Loan of 1906/9 will receive its full interest, the Five per Cent. Consolidation Gold Loan of 1915 will receive 4½ per cent. interest. Of the remaining loans, the Five per Cent. Sterling Loan of 1908 (Drainage Loan) will receive interest at the rate of 3½ per cent. until the 31st December, 1938, and thereafter 4 per cent.; the Four and a-Half per Cent. External Loan of 1909 (Railway Loan) 3½ per cent. to 31st December, 1938, and thereafter 3¾ per cent., and the Five per Cent. External Gold Loan of 1910 3¾ per cent. interest up to the 31st December, 1938, and thereafter 4 per cent.

Venterspost Gold Mining Company, Limited

Borehole No. 8, on the Farm Gemsbokfontein No. 1, at a depth of 2,113 feet, has intersected a reef averaging 7.4 dwts. over a borehole width of 32 inches. This reef is considered to represent the main reef, but confirmation must await the intersection of the underlying Jeppestown shales.

Portsmouth and Brighton United Breweries.—A meeting of shareholders has been convened for Monday next to consider a proposal of the directors to capitalise £70,000 of reserves as 6 per Cent. A Corsham (Wiltshire) bookmaker said a prayer at his son's bedside before going to a field and cutting his throat and wrist. At an inquest at Bathford, near Bath, last night on the man, Frederick Henry Pullen (55), it was stated that he left two letters in a hat found near him. In one he spoke of health and business worries, and in the other he wrote: "My dear boy, I have just got out of bed and left you. I had a little prayer down by your side while you were asleep." A verdict of suicide during a temporary fit of insanity was recorded.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES.

Conditions in the London Foreign Exchange Market remained very quiet yesterday. Business was on a relatively small scale throughout, while movements of the principal exchanges were within narrow limits. Reports of fresh disturbances in France naturally had an adverse effect on the franc and the other European gold currencies, but pressure was rather less marked than on the preceding day, and, although the London "control" did intervene on one or two occasions to prevent an upward movement in sterling, these operations were on a small scale.

After remaining fairly steady at the overnight level during the greater part of the day, the franc, together with the rest of the European group, yielded to selling pressure towards the close, and finished slightly weaker in terms of sterling.

GOULDING'S MEETING

PRICE OF FERTILISERS

There was little likelihood of an increase in the price of fertilisers, said Sir Basil Goulding, Bart., Chairman, at the annual meeting of Messrs. W. and H. M. Goulding, Ltd., which was held at the company's offices, Molesworth street, Dublin, yesterday.

In moving the adoption of the report of the directors, Sir Basil Goulding, after referring to the death of his father, Sir Lingard Goulding, said that his family had been directly concerned in that old-established business for more than seventy years, and he thought that they had a right to be proud of the steady progress and the strong financial position in which it stood to-day.

The dividends from their investments showed an increase. Their cash resources were ample, and they were in a position to take advantage of any favourable opportunity for development that might present itself in this country. During the past year they had taken an interest in one of the new industries which had been started in the Irish Free State, and they were hoping that it might turn out a satisfactory investment. The consumption of fertilisers in the country had fallen very seriously, and, in consequence, the fertiliser factories were producing very much less than they were a few years ago, and were working a long way below their capacity.

"This company is dependent on the prosperity of Irish agriculture, and I want to say that, notwithstanding the decreased output and an increase in some of our costs, we have not made any advance in the price of superphosphate during recent years, while, in the case of compound fertilisers, we have been able to make some substantial reductions. I want to stress this point because the Saorstat Government, recognising the importance of maintaining an efficient fertiliser industry in the country, has taken steps to control foreign imports, and I take this opportunity of assuring our many customers that, unless anything unforeseen should happen, there will be no advance in our prices of superphosphate and compound fertilisers for the coming season. Our policy is to supply the farmer with high-grade fertilisers at the lowest possible price."

Having thanked the staff for their good work for the year, the Chairman said that he would like to express the hope that in the very near future they might look forward to an improvement in the agricultural position in the country and a consequent increase in their sales.

Sir Stanley Harrington formally seconded the resolution, which was supported by Mr. George Ryce.

SIR LINGARD GOULDING.

Mr. J. F. Corkeran, P.C., Blarney, said that the position in which they found the company to-day reflected the highest credit upon their able management of its affairs and indicated the care and business ability which the directors had devoted to their onerous duties. They were glad to see that company had not lost its connection with the Goulding family, which had given such sterling services for many years past, and that Sir Lingard was to be succeeded by an eminently suitable nominee in the person of his son, who, he was sure, would follow worthily his distinguished father's footsteps. He congratulated, also, Mr. J. W. Milne on his appointment as deputy chairman and managing director of the company, which had met with the cordial approval of the shareholders, who had taken such a big part in the building up of the company to the assured position it held to-day.

The report (which was adopted) stated that it was with deep regret that they had to record the loss sustained in the death of Sir Lingard Goulding, Bart. He had joined the firm in 1903, and, on the death of his father, had become Chairman of the company in 1925. The directors unanimously had appointed his son, Sir William Basil Goulding, Bart., as chairman. Mr. J. W. Milne had been appointed deputy chairman and managing director.

The net profits for the year, including dividends from subsidiary companies and investments, and after making provision for discounts on outstanding accounts, amounted to £32,613 4s. This, with £3,977 6s. 5d. from last account, left a sum of £36,590 10s. 5d. available for distribution. They recommended a dividend at the rate of 5½ per cent. on the Preference shares and 6 per cent. on the Ordinary shares of the company for the year ending June 29, 1935, payable in equal instalments on July 31 and December 31, less income tax. They further recommended that £6,000 be carried to the depreciation account. The sum available for distribution was thus allocated as follows:—Dividend and income tax, £25,775; depreciation account, £6,000; carried to next account, £4,815 10s. 5d. Mr. Cecil D. Hewat had been co-opted a member of the board.

The Right Hon. Sir Stanley Harrington and Major Hugh A. Henry, who retired by rotation, were re-elected. The auditors, Messrs. Atkins, Chirnside and Co., Cork, also were re-elected.

A resolution of sympathy to Lady Goulding and her family on the death of her husband also was passed.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

TWO-DOLLAR ADVANCES FREQUENT

From Reuter's Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Apart from occasional faltering tendencies, the Stock Exchange to-day continued to advance, and many issues reached new high levels for the year. Gains touching two dollars were shown in the general list, following the comparatively high turnover of 2,190,000 shares. Active accumulation of Chrysler Motors and General Motors was evident, while communications issues profited by the strength of Western Union, which responded to reports of excellent earnings figures for July. "Wet" stocks joined in the upward movement on advices of favourable developments in connection with the legislation for alcohol control, and Railroads were encouraged by the buoyancy of Reading and Union Pacific—each of the latter rose 3 points—and by the slightly better-than-seasonal showing of freight-car loadings.

The advance broadened in the late dealings, and the close was strong.

Call money remained at ¼ per cent., and the outside rate was unchanged at ¼ per cent. Prime Paper was quoted at ¾ to 1 per cent. Open market discount rates were unaltered at 3/16 per cent. bid and ⅛ per cent. asked for 90-day Bank Bills, and ⅜ per cent. bid and 5/16 per cent. asked for six months' bills.

Sterling exchange opened ⅛ up at 4.96⅜, and improved to 4.96⅝ during the morning. The rate remained unchanged in the afternoon, but finally closed ⅛ higher, compared with the previous close at 4.96⅜.

Silver was unchanged at 67¾c.

ARDMORE FISHERY PROSECUTION

From Our Correspondent.

YOUGHAL, Friday.

At Ardmore, County Waterford, District Court, before District Justice Farrell, Patrick Duane, commander of the Muirchu, charged John Mansfield, Ardmore, with using a "fixed engine" for the capture of salmon in Ardmore Bay.

Mr. E. A. Ryan, State Solicitor, said that Captain Duane was instructed to keep an eye on the district. On August 18 he found defendant using a net fixed to a stone near the pier.

Mr. Hodnett, solicitor for defendant, said that Mr. Ryan was proceeding under Section 16 of the Act of '69, which fixed the penalty at £50, but, under Section 31 of the Act of 1925, the maximum was fixed at £50, giving the District Justice a discretion.

Captain Duane stated that he left the Muirchu in a small boat, and, rounding Mine Head, came into Ardmore Bay, where he detected Mansfield using a net fixed to a stone 35lb. weight near the pier. He proceeded to get the net aboard, but Mansfield pulled out and cut the net. Witness got 127½ yards. He did not know how much Mansfield got away with. Mansfield said that he did it because of sharks, but witness saw no sharks.

Mr. Hodnett—If I give you evidence that within a week another man lost seven nets with the sharks, would that change your views?—They could have been there, but I did not see them.

Mr. Hodnut submitted that the "stone" was not a "fixed engine" properly so called. His client had earned a precarious existence for fifty years fishing, but owing to the depredations of foreigners the lobster fishing was almost destroyed. As a "national" of the Free State he was entitled to the protection of the State forces. It seemed strange that the State should instruct the Muirchu to train her guns on such a small target as a poor Ardmore fisherman, while there was much bigger game in the foreign marauders, who were ruining their fishery all around the coast.

The defendant, having given evidence, the Justice held that the net tied to the stone was a "fixed engine."

Mr. Ryan said that they would return the net to Mansfield if a penalty was imposed.

Defendant was fined 20s. and 1s. for the day the net was used, and the net formally forfeited.

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

103,300 PERSONS ON THE LISTS

A total of 103,300 persons, equivalent to 34.06 per 1,000 of the population, were in receipt of Public Assistance under the Poor Law in the Free State on the last Saturday in June, 1935. Compared with that for the previous month, the number showed a decline of 832, and it was 18,727 less than on the corresponding day last year.

The number of persons in receipt of Home Assistance on the same day was 85,157, or 436 less than the previous month, and 18,592 less than on that date in 1934. The average cost of Home Assistance in the State was £11,562 per week, which was £2,078 lower per week than in June of last year.

In Dublin City the numbers on Home Assistance were 27.34 per cent. of the total for the whole State. These statistics do not include persons receiving medical relief at dispensaries and patients in public mental hospitals.

Miss Joyce Kingscote, daughter of Captain Maurice John Kingscote, of Sherston, near Swindon, who injured her skull by falling down a 100 foot cliff on July 21st, has sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital at Como.

CONTROL BOARD FOR BOOKS

SUGGESTION IN BELFAST

WORKS THAT SHOULD BE FLUNG IN THE SEA

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Friday.

A BOARD of Control for the sale of books was advocated by Mr. H. H. Mayne, at a luncheon given in Belfast this afternoon by the Northern Ireland Branch of the Associated Booksellers' of Great Britain and Ireland. The guest of honour was Mr. Basil Blackwell, Oxford, president of the association.

Mr. Mayne said that a Board of Control was advocated for the herring industry, and he felt that the bookselling business should be treated in a similar manner by the Government. If they considered the number of books issued last year alone, the query arose, how many of those publications should have been flung into the sea, if not into the pulping pot.

THE BOOK-SHOP HABIT

Another important argument in favour of his suggestion was the improvement in the bookselling shops, as they were all agreed that it was unseemly that books should be sold from under petticoats or other apparel.

The Ministry of Education could do much to foster the bookshop habit. Unfortunately nowadays school children did not even enter a bookshop to buy their schoolbooks, as these were bought in bulk under contract and distributed to them. Booksellers formed a small part of the community, but was it possible to adjudge the moral, spiritual, and intellectual value of one good bookshop to the community?

SELLERS AND SHOPS

Concluding, Mr. Mayne said that his words were a plea that booksellers, with their assistants, and bookshops should be estimated at their true worth and not merely as commercial concerns out to gain monetary profit.

SALE OF SEIZED STOCK

ARMED GUARDS IN FERMOY

From Our Correspondent.

FERMOY, Friday.

The twenty-sixth sheriff's sale of seized farm stock in connection with land annuity arrears took place to-day at the pound in Fermoy Barracks. There was a small number of farmers present, but the authorities took elaborate precautions, and armed guards were seen in and around the sale-yard.

The first lot put up by the chief bailiff, who acted as auctioneer, was sixteen cattle and a petrol engine, seized from James Riordan, Leemount, Coachford, on a warrant for £34 4s. 2d., with £6 8s. expenses.

A stranger opened the bidding at £15, and when the amount reached £40 5s. they were bought in by the owner.

Lot 2 comprised thirty sheep and one motor car and accessories, the property of Denis A. Fitzgerald, Carrigdorrery, Lissards, seized on warrant for £19 6s. 4d., with £2 15s. expenses. This was the third occasion on which this car was seized. The bidding was opened by the stranger at £20, and when the figure amounted to £30 5s. the lot went to the owner.

Lot 3 consisted of two horses, twelve pigs, twenty-three sheep, one binder canvas cover, reins and creel sides, seized from Patrick Lehane, Carrigdrohid, Macroom, on warrant for £40 5s. 6d., together with £6 1s. 3d. expenses.

In this case the stranger opened at £20, and after a series of ten bids the amount reached £48 5s., when the lot was bought on behalf of the owner by a man giving the name of "John Fairplay."

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

WINDOW-BREAKING CHARGE

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

James Donnelly, with an address in Catherine street, was charged with having broken a plate-glass window in the shop of Miss Ellen Molloy, 100 Parnell street, on Thursday evening, the damage being estimated at £6 19s. 6d.

When asked by Mr. Hannan whether he wished to be tried by a judge and jury in the Circuit Court, the accused man replied: "I am prepared to take my medicine now."

The evidence was that the accused man was under the influence of drink, and that he was being led towards his home by his father when he fell. His father said that he fell on the centre of the pathway, and others maintained that he fell against the windows, and thus did the damage.

The hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

ALLEGED THEFTS FROM SPORTS CLUBS

Thomas Sheridan, Harmony row; Michael Kearns, Queen's terrace, and Wm. McDermott, Boyne street, were charged, on remand, with breaking and entering the office of the Palmerston Lawn Tennis Club, Milltown road; the Anglesea Lawn Tennis Club, the Carleton Lawn Tennis Club, and the Pembroke Cricket Club premises at Sandymount.

They were also charged with stealing from the several premises, boots, shirts, caps, tennis shoes and a quantity of cigarettes, and ten shillings from a telephone box, and 3s. 6d. from a cash box.

The defendants were further remanded until Tuesday, and were allowed bail.

Detective Officers Golden, Henry, and Moriarty had charge of the case.

SOLDIER KILLED BY EXPLOSION

STRUCK BY STEEL FRAGMENT

Lance-Sergeant Mitchell, of the Regular Army, was killed yesterday while instructing men of the Territorial Army in blasting work.

An operation for cutting a section of a steel joist was being carried out in a quarry at Dale Hill, near Brighton. The order "fire the cotton" was given. Mitchell lit the safety fuse and ran from the danger zone. He was about two hundred and twenty yards away when the explosion occurred, and he dropped to the ground. He had apparently been struck by a piece of flying steel.

IRISH PEDIGREE SUFFOLK SHEEP FOR CANADA

Recently Messrs. John McCulloch and Sons, of Gerrardstown, County Dublin, shipped to the order of Mr. John Buckley, Shamrock Farm, Alberta, a consignment consisting of one ram and three shearling ewes, and the latter included the supreme champion of the breed at Ballsbridge this year, an outstanding ewe, sired by the imported ram, Hildersham Choice; the other two ewes being of the same sire. The ram lamb is after Gerrardstown Stalky out of a dam by the noted ram Walton Century. Suffolk sheep are valued by breeders in Canada, the short wool of the fleece being suited to withstand the severe climatic conditions. Now that a consignment from a leading Irish flock has been introduced into the country it is hoped that further shipments will follow.

EARLY RELEASE HOPES

KIDNAPPED JOURNALIST

CONTACT WITH MR. GARETH JONES

From Reuter's Correspondent.

PEIPING, Friday.

MR. GARETH JONES, the kidnapped British journalist, was seen last night and is alive and well, according to a report received by the British Embassy here from a Chinese official source.

There is now hope that Mr. Jones may be released very shortly, according to official telegrams from Jehol City, in Japanese-controlled territory.

These messages add that the bandits holding Mr. Jones are in Jehol Province, and that the Japanese military authorities are aware of his location and have made contact with the bandits.

The Chinese report comes from Kalgan, on the southern border of Chahar. It states that the Kalgan authorities have been informed by their agents in contact with the kidnappers that an emissary saw Mr. Jones last night. The place is given as some miles south-east of Ku Yuan. This appears to place him on the Chahar-Jehol frontier, which, it is stated, is not clearly defined in some parts.

This is the first direct news received of Mr. Jones since he and Dr. Mueller, the German Resident Correspondent, parted company soon after their capture. Dr. Mueller was released on parole, and came here to assist the negotiations for the release of Mr. Jones.

THE TOLL OF MONT BLANC

A SERIES OF ACCIDENTS

From Reuter's Correspondent.

CHAMONIX, Friday.

A series of accidents has occurred in the past few days on the Mont Blanc massif, but no British climbers have been involved.

A snow bridge on the Aiguille verte collapsed under the weight of two Swiss, named Blanc and Vuillemer, just as they were arriving at the summit. Vuillemer was buried and killed, but Blanc was unhurt.

A Belgian tourist, named Marcel Merlin, sustained a fracture of the skull when a stone crashed on his head while he was climbing the Aiguille du Gouter.

A Parisian tourist, M. Clapes, ascending the northern face of the Aiguille du Chardonnet with a guide, slipped and dragged down the guide with him. After they had fallen 150 feet the rope connecting them caught on a rock, leaving the tourist and the guide in the air on either side of the rock.

A Czech climber, named Forstlechner, has been missing since he left the Couvercle hut on Wednesday, and no news has been received of another climber, named Camere, who left the Torino hut to climb Mont Blanc by a roundabout route.

THE MONSELL OF TERVOE SHRINE

RECOVERED AFTER FIFTY YEARS

Through the courtesy of Commander Monsell, R.N., of Tervoe, Clarina, County Limerick, the National Museum has now secured, "on unlimited loan," the shrine known as "the Monsell of Tervoe Shrine." This was believed to have been lost for the last fifty years or so.

The late Right Hon. William Monsell, of Tervoe, County Limerick (afterwards Lord Emly), in all probability acquired the shrine in the 'sixties of the nineteenth century, at the same time at which his brother-in-law, the late Lord Dunraven, built up his famous collection and began to collect material for his classical book, "Early Irish Architecture." Whence the shrine came is not known, but it is quite possible that it had something to do with the ancient diocese of Limerick. In any case, failing any clear ascription to any ecclesiastic site, it is best to call the shrine by the name of the family to which it belongs—the Monsells of Tervoe.

In 1871 the shrine was exhibited on loan to the Royal Irish Academy, and it was returned to its owner early in 1872. Since then every trace of it was lost, and in the end Irish antiquarians gave up the hope that it would turn up again. Lord Emly's nephew, Commander Monsell, R.N., of Tervoe, Clarina, County Limerick, started a diligent search for the heirloom when on his Irish demesne last June, and succeeded in finding the object. On representations by the President of the Thomond Archæological Society (Mr. J. N. A. Wallace, of Limerick), he generously consented to deposit the shrine on unlimited loan in the National Museum of Ireland, where it will now take its due place of honour among the other relics of the Early Christian period.

EIGHTH CENTURY SPECIMEN

It is a small shrine, 4½ inches long, 1⅞ inches wide and 3¾ inches high, consisting of a lower and upper portion of yew wood, which are covered with ornamental metal plates on the front only. There does not appear to have ever been any similar encasing of the wooden box on the other sides, but all the edges are protected by fluted bars of bronze, fastened to the wood by pins. The shrine opened by hinges, the present ones, though, being hardly the original hinges.

The most attractive features are the ornamentation on the front of the lower part and roof and the ridge pole surmounting the roof. This ornamentation was originally gilt, as is the case with virtually all similar objects, and the ornament discs, which are mounted separately, have been enamelled, with large central bosses of amber, enamel or rock crystal. The animal heads of the ridge pole and its central mounting, too, had been enamelled.

In spite of the fact that all the enamel and inlay are now gone, the shrine is still a most graceful and attractive masterpiece of eighth century art, betraying the full vigour of the Celtic artistic genius of the period immediately antedating the impact with the Viking world.

Commander Monsell is to be congratulated on his magnanimous decision to deposit this precious little object in the National collection.

BRAY PUBLICAN FINED

In Bray District Court yesterday, before Mr. Conroy, Acting District Justice, Denis Ryan, licensed publican, Dublin road, Bray, was summoned for allowing a breach of the licensing laws on his premises on Sunday last.

In defence, Mr. J. M. Magee, solicitor, who appeared for Ryan, said that his client's wife had died and he had gone to the country. His manager, whom he left in charge, engaged an assistant temporarily, and while the latter was behind the bar the doorman admitted these local men, who were not bona fide travellers. The manager was having his dinner at the time. The Guards then came. It was the first Sunday in fourteen years that Mr. Ryan was absent from the shop.

Mr. Conroy ruled a technical offence had been committed, and imposed a fine of 20s. The men found on the premises were fined 5s. each.
